BORAH DEMANDS CONVENTION BE OPEN AND FAIR

Backs Age Pension; Hits Neutrality.

Landon Bid Tonight

Gov. Landon of Kansas will make his long awaited presentation of national issues in Topeka tonight. The occasion is the celebration of Kansas day. His speech will be heard from W-G-N in the period from 9 to 9:45 o'clock this evening.

[Full text of Senator Borah's Brooklyn address will be found on page 10.]

New York, Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Senator William E. Borah of Idaho opened tonight his eastern campaign for the Republican nomination for President with a declaration that the nominee of the national convention at Cleveland must not be determined in secret with "selfish interests pulling the strings."

The senator spoke to an enthusiastic meeting in Kismet temple, Brooklyn. About 2,000 persons, a smaller number than had been expected, were present. Among points brought out in the course of his address, he made the following clear:

1. That he considers the Republican party at a new low ebb in its fortunes and holds it entirely to blame for its own ailments.

2. That he is against any neutrality policy designed to try to stop any foreign war or that does not cause us to keep our hands off "political embroilments" in other nations.

Favors Pension for Old.

3. That every person over 60 years of age should have a pension of "fifty or sixty dollars a month," but that the Townsend plan is impractical.

4. That he considers Al Smith's speech of Saturday night in the same class as Mark Antony's funeral oration.

5. That he emphatically does not favor "amendments to the constitution through usurpation" either by Congress or the President.

6. That he favors any anti-lynching law that he can be convinced is constitutional.

7. And that "if it became a choice, the people would rather have government regimentation than monopoly regimentation"; that if the people "are going to enjoy political liberty, they must also enjoy economic justice."

Who Will Pick Candidate?

"You doubtless read in your great papers recently a long and learned story of my great unfitness for the presidency," Senator Borah said. "Now, I am not going, tonight or at any other time, to indulge in what must be a pleasant pastime, that of regaling one's personal qualifications for that high office.

"But that brings up the most important pre-convention question that we can consider, and that question is who is going to determine the fitness and how is it going to be determined."

This declaration brought a burst of applause.

"Smoke Filled Room."

With obvious reference to the "smoke filled room" of the 1920 Republican convention, which nominated Warren G. Harding, Senator Borah continued:

"What I desire to know, therefore, is who is going to determine this fitness, and is it going to be determined in the open, after full discussion as to qualifications and views, after the delegates have declared their position, with the voters taking part, in so far as practicably possible to do so, or is it going to be determined in secret conclave behind closed doors, long after midnight, under conditions which I need not describe, with the voters excluded and selfish and sordid interests pulling the strings?"

As the Idaho senator approached the end of his speech, colored men and women in the audience began to heckle him because of his opposition to an anti-lynching bill. He explained he was a member of the committee that considered this bill, and that all members of this committee but one had agreed with him that the bill was unconstitutional, be-

BROWN DERBY IS HIGH HAT NOW, SAYS ROBINSON

Running Mate Calls Smith "Childish."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Alfred E. Smith's plea for the Democratic party to get back to its platform of 1932, remember oaths of office, and respect the constitution, was brushed lightly aside as "childish" by Senate Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas tonight. Robinson, who was Smith's running mate in the 1928 presidential campaign, delivered the administration's reply to Saturday night's Liberty league speech.

Speaking over a nation-wide radio network, Robinson took as his text: "The Voice Is Jacob's Voice, but the Hands Are the Hands of Esau," charging that the brown derby had turned high hat, moving up from the east side to "the gilded towers and palaces of Park avenue."

At his press conference today, President Roosevelt merely smiled and shook his head when asked whether he had any comment to make on Smith's speech.

"Harangue" Called "Barren."

"His hour-long harangue before the miscalled Liberty league," Robinson declared, "was barren and sterile without a single constructive suggestion for meeting the great social and economic problems confronting this government. He laid down a six-point program in which he proposed somewhat childishly that the Democrats should forget about the election, resurrect the platform of 1932, cease compromising with fundamental principles, discontinue efforts to change the fundamental principles of government, remember oaths of office and regard the constitution as a Bible.

"Not a specific proposal in the whole batch. Just a rehash of confusing and meaningless generalities."

Mr. Robinson thus disposed of Mr. Smith's proposals and then accused him of deserting the "common men and women," and going over to the ranks of the enemy—"the lurking figures of men who fought for 25 years against the principles of government he espoused."

Recalls Hoover Criticism.

In reply to Smith's charge that the New Deal is socialistic and communistic, Robinson declared that former President Hoover made the same charge against Smith's program in the 1928 campaign.

"O, my, Gov. Smith, what a short memory you have!" Robinson said. "Your charge that the Roosevelt administration is fostering socialism and communism is so ridiculous, it's actually funny. Honestly, governor, I think you have been seeing things under the bed—you know, those communist spies, that our good friend Ham Fish is always talking about.

"'Where have I heard that charge of socialism and communism before? O, now I recall! That's the identical charge that Herbert Hoover made against you in 1928. Remember governor, after you fearlessly advocated the public ownership, public control and public development of water power sites, poor old Herbert whimpered that it was state socialism because he lacked any adequate or statesmanlike reply to the position you took? And how you nailed poor Herbert on that one?

"You reminded him that the same

Waiter Who Wed Sister of Ex-Kaiser Dies

LUXEMBOURG, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Alexander Zoubkoff, a commoner, who became a brother-in-law of former Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany through his marriage in 1927 to the late Princess Victoria of Shaumburg-Lippe, died today at the age of 35.

Zoubkoff, after his wife's death in 1929, made his living in various ways, including by working as a writer, dancer, acrobat, dish washer, bartender, parachute jumper and sandwich man at local fairs. He was rebuked by friends of the former kaiser when he took a position here several years ago and allowed his employer to advertise, "here you are attended by the kaiser's brother-in-law."

Fled from Germany.

The young Russian had lived in Luxembourg since soon after he fled from Germany, asserting he had been threatened with death by monarchists or incarceration in an asylum. He went to France and was promptly expelled. Belgium also ousted him.

The grand duchess of Luxembourg allowed him to settle here on condition that he live a quiet life and abstain from referring in public to his late wife or to the German imperial family.

Zoubkoff, however, was never reticent about talking of his past and found a variety of employment in public bars, dance halls, and circuses.

Wanted Job in Movies.

He was freely advertised as a jobless prince, a relative of the former German emperor, and a victim of monarchist plots. Recently he said his greatest sorrow was his inability to get a job in the movies.

"But what can I do?" he asked. "I am barred from most countries just because I fled from Soviet Russia and married the kaiser's sister, who had fallen in love with me. After all I am not a criminal but a victim."

EXECUTIONER IN FRANCE ANGERED; WANTS A RIBBON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 28.—A new danger for the government of Premier Albert Sarraut loomed today when Alphonse "Papa" Deibler, official executioner, who for 37 years has manned the third republic's two guillotines, announced he is seeking a deputy to interpellate Minister of Justice Yvon Delbos on his behalf.

Deibler is angered because in the recent lists of appointments for the legion of honor issued by the ministry of justice his name was not included although an humble process server was awarded the precious red ribbon with which the French republic compensates distinguished citizens and faithful servants. Deibler is only waiting for his ribbon to retire, and thinks he is entitled to it now.

Like any good Frenchman with a grievance against the state, Deibler's reaction was to get some deputy to interpellate the government. The Sarraut government being unpopular in the chamber of deputies, he will probably get a prompt response to his appeal. Government in this country has fallen for less.

2 Morro Castle Officers Given Prison Terms

New York, Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Roundly criticizing the individual defendants and the steamship company which operated the vessel, Federal Judge Murray Hulbert today sentenced to prison two officers of the liner Morro Castle for criminal negligence in connection with the burning of the ship Sept. 8, 1934, with a loss of 134 lives.

Eben S. Abbott, chief engineer, was sentenced to serve four years and Acting Captain William F. Warms was sentenced to two years. Henry E. Cabaud, executive vice president of the New York and Cuba Mail Steamship company, operators of the ship, was fined $5,000 and given a suspended sentence of one year in prison.

Ship Company Fined $10,000.

The steamship company was fined the maximum of $10,000. In fixing this fine, Judge Hulbert said his only regret was that statutes did not provide a more severe penalty in the case of the company.

Judge Hulbert condemned Chief Engineer Abbott for deserting his post in a time of emergency. Abbott also was criticized for misdirecting the passengers and was accused by the court of lying.

"Abbott testified he was in such a condition that he was unable to perform his duties in the lifeboat," Judge Hulbert said. "The jury didn't believe that, neither did I."

Cites "Grave Questions."

Of Acting Captain Warms Judge Hulbert said "there was a grave question of whether he had performed his task of directing and disciplining the crew or whether he merely carried out the orders of Capt. Robert Willmott." Capt. Willmott died of a heart attack a few hours before the ship burned, leaving Warms in command.

The court did praise Warms, however, for observing the tradition of the sea and sticking to his ship until ordered off. Of Cabaud the court said that he had received direct evidence that regulations provided by congress were being ignored on two occasions, but that there were other occasions when he might have been ignorant of such evasions of the law.

The court rebuked the mercantile marine as a whole on disciplinary grounds.

Italians Faking Victory Claims, Selassie Says

BY HAILE SELASSIE I.
[Emperor of Ethiopia.]

[Copyright: 1936: By the New York Times.]

DESSYE, Ethiopia, Jan. 28.—The claims of great Italian victories in the north around Makale and in the south around Neghelli are evidently inspired by the necessity of reconstituting the morale of the Italian people, suffering badly from admitted checks and enforced retreats in the north and in Ogaden.

Ras Desta Demtu was not defeated in the south, but withdrew his troops from the plains region north of Dolo to the hills north of Neghelli, where the Italians are unable to use tanks and the terrain is more favorable to the Ethiopian guerrilla tactics.

No Battle, King Insists.

There has been no battle in this region, but, following the withdrawal of our troops, the Italians occupied the area after previously bombing undefended peasant villages.

The Ethiopian attack northwest of Makale resulted in heavy losses for both sides. The Italians were forced to abandon entrenched positions, which are now occupied by our troops, who captured important booty.

We frankly admit that our troops have been greatly hampered by the superior mechanized armament and aviation of the Italians, but they have learned to avoid losses from aerial bombardments, and Italian tanks and motorized transport have demonstrated their ineffectiveness in the mountains.

Ethiopian Morale Excellent.

The morale of our troops is excellent, and the principal sufferers from the Italian mode of warfare are noncombatants in the occupied regions, where the Italian policy of systematic extermination of the population and destruction of their property is being applied under the guise of a mission of civilization.

The universally unfavorable reception of the recent Paris peace proposals and the subsequent retirement, at least temporarily, of their authors from the international political scene have convinced us that there will be no further attempt to reward Italy for disregarding her international obligations and attacking us.

We regret the continued postponement of additional petroleum and other sanctions, which would have the important effect of restraining Italian aviation, whose principal rôle has become the extermination of noncombatants in the occupied regions.

Italy Seizes Red Cross Unit.

ROME, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Italy disclosed the seizure today of a Swedish field hospital unit in southern Ethiopia which it charged was carrying munitions for Emperor Haile Selassie's warriors.

"The Swedish hospital was mounted on five trucks with Red Cross flags and insignia," said a communique. "The cars also contained 27 cases of munitions."

A fresh victory on the northern front after four hours of fighting also was reported.

Premier Mussolini sent a message containing his "fervent praise" to Marshal Pietro Badoglio, Italian commander-in-chief, for the recently reported successes in the north. He particularly lauded the "28th of October" blackshirt division.

Much political capital was made of the seizure of the Swedish unit, particularly since Sweden recently formally protested to Italy against the bombing of a Swedish Red Cross unit. Newspapers, under banner headlines, commented ironically, "bullets do not make medicine."

Charge New Italian Atrocities.

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia, Jan. 28.—(AP)—The Ethiopian government said in a communique today that the Italian artillery had kept up a day and night bombardment since Jan. 23 in an attempt to regain ground lost to Ethiopian troops northwest of Makale. The communique added: "But they are constantly harassed by our troops."

Patrols ordered out by Ras Seyoum, Ethiopian commander, were said to have made three surprise attacks on isolated Italian contingents at Geuralta and Agama, killing 66 Italians, including five officers.

The communique added:

"The Italians burned alive two wounded Ethiopians left on the field. On Jan. 21, three Italian planes dropped blistering gas on our troops northwest of Makale."

FELLOW CONVICT SLAYS SLAYER OF FRANKS BOY

Stolen Razor Used in Murder.

Richard Loeb, 30 years old, son of a wealthy Chicago family and one of the two men who murdered little Bobby Franks in 1924, was slashed to death yesterday with a razor wielded by one of his fellow convicts in the Stateville penitentiary near Joliet.

The man who did the ferocious cutting—there were fifty-six slashes from one inch to two feet long on the body of Loeb—is James Day, 23 years old, a Chicagoan who is serving a prison term of one to ten years for grand larceny. He advanced the claim that he only acted in self-defense after wresting the razor from Loeb.

New Prison Scandal Brewing.

The circumstances surrounding the crime were being made the subject last night of investigation by the Will county authorities, by prison officials, and by A. L. Bowen, state director of public welfare. There were indications that the facts being brought out might again rock the state with a new scandal of lax prison administration. Among these facts were:

1. Loeb, sentenced to both life and ninety-nine year terms in prison for the murder of the Franks boy, had unusual privileges as a semi-trusty in Stateville.

2. Nathan Leopold, who shared in the murder of young Franks and is serving the same sentence that Loeb was, declined to give the investigators any information about events preceding the fatal cutting.

3. The razor used by Day had been stolen on Monday from a prison barber shop near the cells of Leopold, Loeb and Day.

Setting of the Murder.

The scene of the fatal attack was a small shower bath on the first floor of the prison. This room is on the south side of a long corridor leading from the prison mess hall to the administration building. It is part of a suite that formerly was used as a dining hall for officers and employés. The entrance to it is only about 40 feet from the door leading into the mess hall.

Into this shower room shortly after 1 p. m. walked Loeb and Day. Loeb had a key to the suite, which is in process of reconstruction for use as the quarters of a correspondence school which the Loeb-Leopold duo [both were brilliant college students] were conducting within the prison walls.

Loeb Staggers Into Corridor.

After Loeb and Day entered the place the door was locked on the inside. Some twenty minutes or a half hour later Loeb, stark naked, with blood running from his multitude of wounds, unlocked the door and staggered into the corridor.

A few seconds later Day, clad only in a pair of trousers he had hastily donned, walked into the corridor and presented the razor, a conventional straight one with a white handle, to one of the guards who were beginning to pour into the place.

About the bed of the slashed Loeb gathered Warden Joseph Ragen, Leopold, and four prison physicians.

Loeb Whispers His Hope.

"I'm all right, warden; I'll pull through," whispered Loeb.

The physicians, however, realized from the start that there would be no chance of saving the man's life. They summoned other doctors from Joliet. The Loeb family in Chicago was notified and their family physicians, Dr. Lester E. Frankenthal and his son, Dr. Lester Frankenthal Jr., set out for Joliet.

A blood transfusion was decided on and a convict was found who volunteered to donate the blood. The operation hardly sufficed to delay death. There were deep cuts on Loeb's throat. His windpipe had been punctured and the jugular vein nicked. Another cut extended down the abdomen for more than a foot.

At 3:05 p. m. Loeb died. The Frankenthals and Loeb's brother, Ernest, arrived in the hospital just as he passed away.

Warden Ragen, who had issued a first message to the effect that the wounds were not serious, let it be known that one of his two most notorious prisoners was dead. Then the investigation was launched.

What had happened in the shower room?

The only man who could tell was

RICHARD LOEB.

Day, and he was questioned both by the warden and by Edward Powers, chief investigator for State's Attorney William R. McCabe of Will county.

"Loeb brought it on himself," declared Day. "This morning I saw Leopold and Loeb chatting together and eating in a cell. I've had trouble with Loeb before; we had a fight once. He said he'd like to settle our difficulties and I said that would be all right.

"'Meet me in my private bathroom after dinner,' he said. I told him that would be all right. After dinner I went to the door of the room and waited several minutes for Loeb. He came, took the key from his pocket, and unlocked the door. I went in with him and he locked the door on the inside.

Tells Loeb's Razor Threat.

"We undressed and got under the shower. Then he showed me the razor and told me if I did not do what he told me to he would kill me with it. I waited for an opportunity and kicked him hard. He fell to the floor and the razor dropped from his hand. I seized it.

"Then I cut him. He was much bigger than I am and he fought hard. But I cut him repeatedly until he fell. He dropped right in the shower and the hot water poured down on him. He seemed to pass out. But when I turned off the hot water and turned on the cold he revived and moved over to the door.

"He had stopped trying to attack me and I let him go. He unlocked the door and went out. A little later I dragged on my trousers and went out myself."

Day Uninjured in Fight.

Day, who is about 5 feet 6½ inches tall and weighs about 135 pounds, 40 pounds less than Loeb, had a black eye. He had not acquired this in the fight with Loeb, however, but in fisticuffs with another convict several days ago. He had not received even a scratch from the razor in yesterday's battle.

Much of the work of the investigators centered on the question of which man carried the razor into the shower bath. If it was Loeb, it was held, the story of Day probably was true. On the other hand, it was considered entirely possible that Day was telling a false story.

All that the prison administration could say of the matter was that the razor had been reported missing the night before from the barber shop in cellhouse D. Leopold, Loeb, and Day all slept in cellhouse C. As a matter of routine, the 30 razors issued to convict barbers are called in every night. The guards were searching quietly for the missing one all through yesterday morning, but had made no progress in the hunt.

Warden Makes Statement.

Warden Ragen, hearing Day's story, immediately made it plain that Loeb and Leopold were not cellmates.

"They were associated in their correspondence school work," he said, "and temporarily had an office in cells where Day doubtless saw them. They may have been eating food purchased from the commissary. They are not served special meals and they eat with the other inmates."

Concerning the key, the warden commented as follows:

"Loeb did not have a private bath. The old suite that was used for the officers' mess and kitchen, including the shower room and a small storeroom, was being rebuilt for the use of the correspondence school. Loeb had taken a great interest in this. I did not know that he had a key to the place."

All Three Semi-Trusties.

Day, like Leopold and Loeb, according to Warden Ragen, was a semi-trusty. He worked in the prison office and was also a helper at times of the college bred slayers of Bobby Franks. It was in this connection, it was assumed, that he came into close contact with Loeb and came to hate him.

State's Attorney McCabe's investigation, he announced, will be thorough.

"There is no grand jury sitting now in Will county," he said, "but I will convene one if necessary. We are going to get at the bottom of this whole thing."

Leopold refused pointblank to talk with the state's attorney and this was regarded as puzzling since the investigators felt that he must know something of the feud between Loeb and Day. This Leopold denied, however, in a private conversation with Warden Ragen. He insisted that he knew nothing about the slaying or the events that preceded it.

Upsets Escape Plot Rumor.

Mr. McCabe, asked about a recent rumor that Leopold and Loeb were to be freed through a plot in which they were to be reported as dead, declared positively that he had seen the body and that there was no doubt as to Loeb's death.

"I knew the man by sight and I could not be mistaken," he added.

Shortly before 10 p. m. the body of Loeb was placed in an ambulance and started for Chicago. The preparations for removal were carried out with great secrecy. The ambulance which was sent for the body had its license plates and the name of the owner covered with cloth, and prison guards kept all observers far from it while it stood in the prison yard.

State Welfare Director Bowen arrived at the prison about the time of the body's removal. He promised that nothing uncovered in the investigation would be suppressed. It was also pointed out that a Will county coroner's jury of six men had viewed the body before permission to take it to Chicago had been granted.

Bowen Denies Any Favoritism.

Director Bowen declared that there had been no favoritism of any kind shown either Loeb or Leopold since they were sentenced.

"They were treated like all other prisoners," he said. "I know that Gov. Horner, whenever he visited the prison, insisted that neither one be allowed to see him. The same sort of rule prevailed in previous administrations.

"So far as we have been able to learn so far, there were no factions among the inmates with Loeb or Leopold as members. In fact, Loeb was rather popular at Stateville, much more so than Leopold. Those inmates we have questioned so far have insisted that there was nothing unusual about Loeb."

Two cellmates of Day were questioned. One said that he had been nervous and distraught for weeks, the other that he seemed perfectly normal.

It was learned that a prison official some time ago questioned Day about his manifest dislike of Loeb, which had endured more than a year.

"I can't talk about Loeb or why I dislike him while there's a lady present," was his reply.

A girl stenographer was in the room with the prison official and Day steadfastly held to his determination to remain silent on the point.

Founder of Prison School.

Since Loeb entered prison on Sept. 11, 1924, he had had many jobs. He was a laborer in the prison yard, a messenger, a landscape gardener. Finally he became registrar and director of the correspondence school, the idea for which he furnished.

His prison record was better than that of his companion, Leopold, who was punished several times for violating prison rules. The last rebuff handed Leopold was little more than a month ago, when he was displaced as chief assistant to Prof. Ferris F. Laune, Northwestern university sociologist and prison actuary with whom he had collaborated in the formulation of a system of "parole forecasting."

The Franks boy's killers had spent only a small portion of their time in prison together. They were in the old Joliet penitentiary for six months. Then Loeb was transferred to Stateville. Two and a half years ago Leopold was also sent to this institution.

In the earlier days of their prison career, officials held to the view that two such notorious criminals should be kept apart. Their usual good behavior and submissiveness, together with the real good they seemed to be doing with their correspondence school, served to change this attitude.

Record of Killer Day.

Day, the killer, is a far different sort from the slayers of the Franks boy. He has a police record dating back to 1928, when he was only 15 years old. On Aug. 27 of that year he was sent as an incorrigible to the St. Charles school for boys.

Released on Aug. 6, 1929, he was sent back six months later. He was again released on Feb. 7, 1931. He was a frequent offender of school rules and was regarded as "insubordinate."

He did not remain long at liberty. On Oct. 3, 1931, he held up a gasoline station attendant at 955 North Crawford avenue. Arrested a few days later, he confessed the stickup, and on Feb. 9, 1932, he was sentenced to one to ten years in Pontiac reformatory, after Judge Rudolph Desort permitted the charge against him to be reduced to grand larceny.

The state board of pardons and paroles had set February, 1940, as the time for the sentence of one to ten years to expire, and Day would have been eligible for a parole in 1937.

His Family History Told.

Some of the family history of the young killer was related yesterday afternoon by his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Brooks of 3722 School street.

"James was born in Lynchburg, Va.," said Brooks, "four months after the death of his father. His mother remarried some time later. Then, in 1921, she died. My wife, who is the aunt of the boy, and I tried to take care of him and his sister, Mabel.

"He was always hard to handle. I did my best to keep him out of mischief. But he became a thief. When he became a holdup man there was nothing more we could do for him. His letters from the prison indicated that he was getting along all right there and trying to get out and go straight."

Loeb's Mother Told of Death.

Mrs. Albert H. Loeb, mother of the slain Richard, learned of her son's death through another son, Ernest. She was at her home, 5017 Ellis avenue, when she heard the report. Her husband, who was first vice president of Sears, Roebuck & company, was ill in his summer home in Michigan when the Franks killing occurred, and he died on Oct. 27, 1924, leaving a fortune estimated at $5,000,000 to $10,000,000.

Leopold's father, Nathan Leopold Sr., president of the Morris Paper Mills, died on April 4, 1929. His estate was valued at $1,000,000. Mrs. Leopold, mother of the man now in prison, died in his infancy.

The mother of Bobby Franks, the victim of the great "thrill murder" by Leopold and Loeb, remarried after the death of her husband, Jacob Franks. She is the wife of Albert S. Louer, Chicago attorney.

Because of the secrecy with which the body of Loeb was moved it was assumed that his mother and brothers intend to have him buried with a minimum of publicity. State's Attorney McCabe said he understood that the burial will be at 9 o'clock this morning from a south side undertaking establishment.

The Loeb family has always been highly regarded in Chicago social and business circles.

LOEB DEAD IS BETTER OFF THAN LEOPOLD, DARROW'S COMMENT

Clarence Darrow, head of the Loeb-Leopold defense counsel, expressed sorrow last night over the slaying of Loeb in prison, but he remarked: "Death is the easier sentence, compared with life in prison. He is better off than Leopold."

Darrow is now 79 years old, frail and threatened with an eye operation. He lives at 1535 East 60th street.

Circuit Judge John R. Caverly, who sentenced Loeb and Leopold, refused to make a statement at his home in the Edgewater Beach apartments. In an interview with THE TRIBUNE on the anniversary of the crime last May, he said: "It took courage to make the decision I did. I would do the same thing again."

Former State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe, prosecutor of the slayers of Bobby Franks, had this to say of Loeb's death: "Those who live by the sword die by the sword."

The former prosecutor now is engaged in bitter litigation with Joseph P. Savage, whose work as an assistant state's attorney won him recognition during the Loeb-Leopold investigation. Crowe and Savage became law partners with George E. Gorman. After Gorman's death a year ago Crowe sued Savage for an accounting of the law firm's assets, a suit in which the former partners have said many harsh words about each other.

SLAYER, TRAPPED BY STOLEN COAT, GIVEN 99 YEARS

Walter Kruchinski, 23 years old, 2254 West 18th place, a paroled convict, was convicted last night by a Criminal court jury of the murder of John Puwcini, 52 years old, 2154 South Western avenue, on Dec. 8. Judge Cornelius J. Harrington overruled a motion for a new trial and sentenced Kruchinski to 99 years in the penitentiary.

Kruchinski attacked Puwcini and beat him to death in a robbery at 22d place and Western avenue. He robbed his victim of $1.52 and his overcoat.

On Dec. 14 police arrested Kruchinski when he drew a revolver in a tavern at 2158 South Western avenue. Detectives connected him with the murder when they found he had taken Puwcini's overcoat to a loop tailor to be refitted for himself.

Pain for Year in Girl's Throat; Find Needle There

For more than a year Miss Anna Shromek, 22 years old, 4821 North Sawyer avenue, had complained of a "sticking" pain in her throat. Last night the pain became more severe and she went to the County hospital, where Dr. M. I. Edelman discovered a metallic point protruding from the throat wall. He took hold of the point with a pair of forceps and pulled out an inch and a half needle. Miss Shromek said she had no idea of how or when she swallowed it. She was allowed to go home.

PRISON CRIMES REACH A CLIMAX IN LOEB SLAYING

Series of Violent Acts and Escapes Told.

Richard Loeb's violent death yesterday brought to a new climax the series of escapes, shootings, stabbings, and parole mixups that have marked prison administration in Illinois during the last three years.

Since Gov. Henry Horner went into office early in 1933 violence has flared many times in the old Joliet and new Stateville penitentiaries and there have been a number of escapes, including that of Henry J. [Midget] Fernekes, notorious bank robber.

The ease of Fernekes' walkout from the old prison gave rise to the charge that bribery had played a part in the escape. Gov. Horner and his prison officials denied this. After an investigation the escape was blamed on the laxity of prison guards and four of them were discharged.

A list of the scandals and acts of violence in the prisons during recent years follow:

AY 1, 1933—Tony Sanzone, member of the Cardinella gang which committed murders and robberies in Chicago in 1919, escaped from the prison honor farm. He was serving a life term for murder.

JULY 23, 1933—Three men who had been smuggling whisky to prisoners at Joliet were captured by guards. Two other men escaped.

DEC. 1, 1933—Three Chicago convicts serving larceny sentences in the old prison slugged a guard in the prison quarry and escaped on a passing freight train. Two of them were recaptured but the third, Philip McGee, is still at large.

DEC. 18, 1933—The state auditor's office reported to Gov. Horner that it had discovered an apparent shortage of $30,000 in the accounts of Joliet penitentiary.

MARCH 29, 1934—Supplies purchased by the state at a cost of $59,000 were unaccounted for at the two penitentiaries, it was disclosed at legislative committee hearing in Springfield.

MAY 6, 1934—Two convicts, Nicholas Skrynick and C. A. Barnes, walked away from the honor farm.

JUNE 28, 1934—Five prisoners at Stateville were stabbed in a riot during a baseball game.

JULY 13, 1934—Julius Gross, foreman of the tailor shop at the old Joliet prison, was stabbed by two Chicago convicts who attempted to escape. The convicts, Matthew Nowack and Chauncey Tuttle, serving sentences for murder, were seized before they could get away.

JULY 20, 1934—William C. Dale, serving a sentence for robbery, escaped while he was working as a painter.

SEPT. 10, 1934—Frank Belanger and Fred R. Barry, serving robbery sentences, threatened guards with knives in an attempted escape. They were shot to death.

APRIL 28, 1935—Three convicts escaped from the old prison. Two were recaptured but the third, Edward Martin, a robber, is at liberty.

AUG. 3, 1935—Henry J. [Midget] Fernekes walked calmly out of the old prison.

NOV. 1, 1935—William Neill, serving a 30 year sentence for murder, was stabbed to death in the Stateville prison yard, apparently because he welshed on a debt to a race handbook which other convicts were operating.

JAN. 4, 1936—Harry Schwartz, once sentenced to hang for a murder committed in Chicago in 1917, escaped from the honor farm. He was serving a life sentence for the slaying.

Another episode in prison administration under Gov. Horner which aroused public indignation was the parole of Nick Maentanis, who was sentenced at Waukegan in 1932, as a participant in the $150,000 jewel robbery at the home of William H. Mitchell, 901 Rosemary avenue, Lake Forest.

It was learned last Oct. 17, that Maentanis had been released from prison several days before after having served less than four years of his one year to life sentence. The parole board freed Maentanis without giving notice to State's Attorney Charles E. Mason of Lake county.

SUIT CONTESTS WILL OF SPINSTER, 91, WHO LEFT 18 MILLIONS

New York, Jan. 28.—[Special.]—An action to set aside the will of Miss Mary G. Thompson, 91 year old philanthropist, descendant of Lord Gardiner and a member of one of America's oldest families, was started today by her grand-nephew, Robert David Lion Gardiner. He charges undue influence was exerted on her when the will, disposing of $18,000,000, was drawn. The case will come before Surrogate James A. Foley during the March term.

Mr. Gardiner is described as the only surviving male heir at law.

Under the terms of a codicil, Mr. Gardiner received one-half of the income of a $300,000 trust, an outright bequest of $50,000 and one-fourth of the family heirlooms and portraits.

Mr. Gardiner's sister, Alexandra Diodati Gardiner Creel, received one-half interest in a $300,000 trust fund, $50,000 outright and one-fourth of the heirlooms. Sarah Diodati Gardiner, niece, received a legacy of $400,000 and the remaining half of the heirlooms.

The residuary estate was divided equally among charity institutions.

VOTE TO IGNORE COURT ORDER TO PAY WARANTS

The finance committe of the city council voted yesterday to ignore a peremptory writ of mandamus issued on Jan. 3 by Superior Judge James Kelly ordering Mayor Kelly and the council to appropriate $675,000 to pay special assessment warants. Ald. J. M. Arvey [24th], chairman of the committee, said that the council would be open to contempt of court action in ignoring the writ. The committee asked Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes to consider an appeal. The suit to collect the assessments was brought by Mrs. Harry F. Graefe, the Chicago Title and Trust company, the Ready Coal and Construction company, and others, for the payment of special assessment tax warants.

Water Tank Frozen; House Burns as Firemen Look On

A cottage, occupied by Leo Angley and his wife, on the estate of Mrs. Ernest E. Lehmann, a mile and a half east of Lake Villa, was destroyed by fire yesterday. The blaze started while Angley was trying to thaw frozen water pipes with a blow torch. The Lake Villa fire department had the flames virtually under control when it exhausted 200 gallons of water it had taken along. A water storage tank on the grounds was frozen.

SAYS ABOUT THE NEW
Saks Fifth Avenue

"As a painter and designer, I know that simplicity is not an end in itself, but somehow when a thing is good the non-essentials have been eliminated and the result is simple. The new Saks Fifth Avenue is simple and it has elegance in the best sense of the word, with purity of line and distinction of color. It seems to me that the architect has left out one element that would have completed a perfect design—an element that he himself could not give it. Beautiful women! You see, in my preview, the store was not yet open. Women will be beautiful in the New Saks Fifth Avenue."

FRANKS MURDER ONE OF FAMOUS CHICAGO CRIMES

Loeb and Leopold Sent to Prison in 1924.

The slaying of Richard Loeb in Stateville penitentiary recalls again the crime for which he went to prison—the murder of Bobby Franks, 14 year old schoolboy. This was one of the most sensational crimes in Chicago history. It occurred on May 21, 1924.

Throughout the spring, summer and fall of that year the city and the entire nation were startled and fascinated by the details of the murder, the personalities of the murderers, Loeb and Nathan Leopold, and their dramatically successful court fight to evade the death penalty.

Both young men had displayed unusual brilliance in their college studies. Loeb was the youngest student ever to be graduated from the University of Michigan. At 18 Leopold was graduated from the University of Chicago. Both he and Loeb were graduate students at the University of Chicago when they committed their crime.

Get 99 Years and Life.

They were sentenced to prison on Sept. 10, 1924. Each got a 99 year term for kidnaping the Franks boy for ransom and a life term for the child's murder.

The sentences were imposed by Circuit Judge John R. Caverly, then sitting in the Criminal court.

Loeb and Leopold had pleaded guilty to the charges, throwing themselves on the mercy of the court. Judge Caverly heard the case without a jury and the only issue was the punishment.

Defense counsel, headed by Clarence Darrow, fought to save Leopold and Loeb from the gallows. Evidence introduced for them was on the theory that their youth and mental condition were mitigating circumstances in their crime. The trial lasted more than a month, resulting in the prison sentences instead of the death penalty demanded by Robert E. Crowe, who was then state's attorney.

Story of Franks' Slaying.

The story of the crime begins at 5:10 o'clock on the afternoon of May 21, 1924. Bobby Franks was umpiring a baseball game on the playground of the south side school in which he was a pupil. A short time later he departed for his home nearby at 5052 Ellis avenue. He never reached it. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Franks, became alarmed over his absence.

They consulted with Samuel A. Ettelson, former city corporation counsel, a close friend of Mr. Franks. That evening Ettelson and Mr. Franks went to the detective bureau. They decided to put off acting for one day. At home Mrs. Franks received a telephone call from a man saying he was George Johnson and telling her the boy had been kidnaped and was safe.

The next morning, May 22, a workman found the body of a boy, thrust face downward in a culvert, in the forest preserve along the Pennsylvania railroad tracks at 121st street near Hegewisch. The unidentified body was taken to a nearby railway station and later to an undertaking establishment at 13200 Houston avenue.

Glasses Found Near Body.

Automobile tracks were found on a trail leading through the forest preserve and a pair of horn-rimmed glasses were discovered ten feet from the boy's body. At about the same time a letter, typed on two sheets of notepaper, was received by special delivery at the Franks home.

The letter assured the parents that Bobby Franks was safe and demanded $10,000 ransom. Mr. Franks was about to deliver the money to a specified drug store on 63d street when he was informed that the body found in the culvert had been identified as that of his son.

On May 25 Nathan Leopold, then 19 years old, was called to the police station nearest the culvert. He was not under suspicion, but it was known that he had visited the district, lecturing to classes on ornithology.

State's Attorney Crowe assigned one of his assistants, Joseph P. Savage, to trace the horn rimmed spectacles.

After two days of record searching Almer Coe & Co., optometrists, informed Savage and the police that Leopold was the probable owner of the glasses. Leopold was taken to the state's attorney's office and suavely admitted ownership of the spectacles. He said he must have dropped them while he was in the vicinity of the culvert studying birds.

Crowe was puzzled. He sent for Loeb, with whom Leopold said he had been on May 21. Leopold told an elaborate story of going driving in Lincoln park that day with Loeb. The story had been prepared by the two youths and it had been agreed that Loeb would tell it as an alibi if arrested within ten days. But Loeb, due to confusion or forgetfulness, made the fatal error of saying he did not recall what he had done on the day the Franks boy was murdered.

Meanwhile a watchman brought to the police a bloodstained chisel which he had picked up near the Leopold home. The watchman said he had seen the chisel thrown from the same type of car that Leopold drove.

Questioned About Typewriter.

Leopold was questioned about a portable typewriter he had used in his studies. He said he had disposed of it. A squad went to the Leopold home, could not find the typewriter, and returned with Sven Englund, the Leopold chauffeur.

Leopold had said in his alibi story that he and Loeb were riding in Leopold's car on the afternoon of the crime. Englund said the car was in the garage until 10:10 that night. Students brought in typewritten notes from Leopold, the typing of which corresponded with the typing of the ransom letter.

Confronted with these discrepancies, Loeb broke down the next day and confessed. Some hours later—at 1 a. m. on May 31—Leopold also confessed. The two youths tried to throw the guilt for the actual murder on each other.

Pair Indicted on June 6.

On June 6 the young men were indicted by the grand jury. The next day the missing typewriter was recovered from the Jackson park lagoon. On June 11, Loeb's 19th birthday, they were arraigned before Judge Caverly and pleaded not guilty. But on July 21 Attorney Darrow had the young men change their pleas to guilty.

The trial began on July 23. It was established that Leopold and Loeb waited outside the school grounds for a boy, picked up Bobby Franks and offered him a ride home. Somewhere on 50th street the boy was brained with a cold chisel—whether it was Leopold or Loeb who struck the fatal blows has never been definitly told. Darrow asserted it was Loeb.

Then the young men drove on with the body, took it to the culvert and threw it there. Afterward the ransom note was written and telephone calls to the Franks home were made.

A battery of alienists testified for the defense. Dr. H. S. Hulbert declared the young men were victims of a lack of normality in their lives. He blamed the crime on early childhood complexes established in each case by experiences with nursemaids.

Darrow asserted that while Loeb and Leopold might have known intellectually the difference between right and wrong they could not, emotionally, make the distinction.

When Judge Caverly imposed sentence, he said: "In choosing imprisonment instead of death, the court is moved chiefly by the consideration of the age of the defendants. Life imprisonment may not at the moment strike the public imagination as forcibly as would death by hanging."

Leopold and Loeb were taken to prison on Sept. 11, 1924, the day after they were sentenced.

Battle $150,000 Downtown Fire

Follows Explosion

Loss was placed at $150,000 yesterday as the result of the fire that raged four hours in the five story building at 652-4 West Randolph street following a boiler explosion in the early morning. One man was injured. He was Herman Zessack, 35 years old, 1011 North Kedvale avenue, a shipping clerk for the Midland Paper company which occupied most of the structure. Zessack was at work in the basement and was burned severely about the face, arms and chest.

Firemen succeeded in preventing a spread of the fire, but were hampered in their work by the subzero weather. All the fire fighting equipment of downtown companies was brought into use and nearly 100 streams of water were played into the building to make certain the fire did not reach the building next door at 650 West Randolph street, which is occupied by the A. C. Horne company, and which contained a large supply of paints and varnishes. Trafic was tied up, then rerouted.

In another fire, two sons of Dr. Lewis R. Hill, Robert, 8 years old, and James, 5 years old, were carried down ladders to safety by firemen from the Hill home at 225 Sixth avenue, La Grange. Dr. Hill, a professor of bacteriology at Loyola university, and his wife were on a lower floor and were able to flee to safety, carrying with them their baby daughter, Marjorie.

LACKS FIRE; FREEZES TO DEATH.

Neighbors found E. R. Johnson, 45 years old, a bachelor, frozen to death in bed yesterday at his home, Parker avenue and Spencer street, Aurora, where he lived alone. There was no fire in the stove.

ROOT A BRUTAL PLAYBOY, WIFE'S SLAYING DEFENSE

Beat and Threatened Her, Witnesses Testify.

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 28.—(AP)—Brenton Root, slain husband of Daisy Alexander Root, was described by defense witnesses at her murder trial today as a "playboy" who frequently cursed and beat his wife and threatened her with death.

The defense rested after Mrs. E. W. Maddox, who attended the night club party which preceded Root's slaying on Nov. 3, testified that while dancing with Root he pointed to Lucile Underwood, redhaired cabaret "cigaret girl," and said, "There's my heart."

A neighbor, Mrs. G. M. Frye, testified she once saw Root, 32 year old son of a Chicago clergyman, pull a gun on his wife and say, "I'll shoot your —— —— brains out!"

Shot Following Quarrel.

The defendant's friend of eleven years, Mrs. Guy H. Scates, told the jury that on one occasion Root ordered his wife from their home, and when she refused to go he shouted: "You do have to go—I'll get rid of you if I have to kill you."

Root was shot to death in his country home a few hours after he and his wife quarreled over his asserted attentions to Miss Underwood, with whom Mrs. Root exchanged words at the cabaret.

Mrs. Root testified she shot her husband after "he reached for his gun."

Mrs. Scates said the defendant was afraid of Root. Once, she testified, he "slapped her against the kitchen cabinet and their little boy had to ask him to 'leave mama alone.'" She said Root told of prenuptial intimacies with his wife.

Mrs. Scates said she saw the "cigaret girl" in Root's home once.

Mrs. Frye said that she had heard Root curse his wife "lots and lots of times." He continually mistreated her, and his mother, Mrs. Benjamin F. Root, "was afraid of him," she said.

Women Back on Stand.

Both Mrs. Root and her mother-in-law, Mrs. Benjamin F. Root, took the stand for the second time this afternoon for rebuttal testimony.

The elder Mrs. Root testified she saw one "fight" between her son and his wife.

"Once while they were arguing, Daisy slapped Brenton," she testified. "He slapped back and I stepped between them."

Mrs. Root testified that she talked to Daisy about an abortion which Daisy said was caused by a beating by her husband.

The elder Mrs. Root said her daughter-in-law told her she had taken a medical substance "to cause it and I heard her tell a doctor the same thing."

Fire Causes $12,500 Loss in Sheridan Road Building

Fire caused damage estimated at $12,500 in a building at 5000 Sheridan road last night a few hours after a new Walgreen drug store in the building was opened for business for the first time. The flames started in a clothes closet and spread rapidly in the rear of the store and through two dentists' offices on the second floor.

CREATE "WEST POINT" OF SOVIET INDUSTRY TO TRAIN WORKERS

[Copyright: 1936: By the New York Times.]

MOSCOW, Jan. 28.—A "West Point" of soviet industry at which workers from the ranks are to be trained for responsible jobs was created today by an order from Gregory K. Ordjonokidzie, commissar for heavy industry. He directed that special industrial courses be given the 1,500,000 men and women now employed by heavy industry.

The order is a further step in the Stakhanovist industrial efficiency movement, one of whose chief aims is the qualification of individual workers for further productiveness. It also is in line with the fourth point of Dictator Joseph Stalin's six points for the reorganization of industry announced in 1931. This was that the working class must develop its own industrial and technical intelligentsia.

Ordjonokidzie's order today calls for three courses of study to be given selected heavy industrial workers, not only to equip them for command posts in industry but for a broad cultural life. The primary course prescribed for all workers is composed of brief technical-minimum courses to be followed by a state examination.

Travels from Kentucky to Alaska to Open Bank Vault

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Jan. 28.—(AP)—E. J. Goodnough, Covington, Ky., is on his way to Fairbanks to open a balky vault door for the First National bank. He was called after bank officials had been unable to open it for several weeks.

ZERO SIEGE ENDS; ONLY 3 WORSE ON RECORD HERE

With the seven day siege of subzero weather broken yesterday, Forecaster J. R. Lloyd predicted warmer temperatures today with occasional snow. He expects tomorrow to be colder because of a new mass of relatively cold air coming from the northwest. More light snow is probable.

The minimum temperature yesterday was 3 below at 6 and 7 a. m., but the maximum of 15 above at 2 p. m. was the highest reading since last Wednesday when the record cold started. There were two brief "breaks" during this period, but the string of seven days with minimum readings of below zero was the worst cold spell since 1912. Only three arctic sieges in weather bureau history have been worse.

C. A. Donnel, chief meteorologist at the Chicago station, yesterday examined his records for the past fifty years, and disclosed that unusually cold Januaries were almost invariably followed by extremely cold Februaries. Abnormal stretches of cold, as of heat, Mr. Donnel said, usually last for about 60 days. This indicates, he added, that February may be bitter cold.

Two Opposing French Labor Bodies Are Fused

PARIS, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Fusion of France's principal labor bodies, which formerly were divided into two opposing groups, was accomplished tonight with the organization of one general confederation of labor. Included in the new confederation are all unions except three provincial unions and five professional federations.

GEORGE V. LAID TO REST WITH WINDSOR KINGS

Million Mourners Crowd Streets of London.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WINDSOR, England, Jan. 28.—George V. came home to Windsor castle today and he rests among his ancestors in the crypt of St. George's chapel, the glorious headquarters of the knights of the Garter, of which the late king was sovereign.

History will decide whether George V. was a great king, although he is known to have described himself as a very ordinary fellow, but today's proceedings in London and Windsor proved that he was the best loved king in British history. Great Britain turned out in her millions to do honor to the man whom her people regarded less as a sovereign than as the father of a family with all the virtues that go with a good father, and personifying in his own person the ideal of every Englishman, a sportsman, country gentleman, kindly ruler and adviser and a good family man.

The 25 Years' Change.

There was a striking contrast between the funeral of King George and that of King Edward VII. twenty-five years ago, which this correspondent also witnessed. The dominant note in Edward VII.'s funeral was military pomp. Thirteen kings rode behind the coffin, resplendent in glittering uniforms. Today five kings followed George V. on foot and at least two of them, King Leopold III. of the Belgians and King Carol II. of Rumania, wore khaki.

Then the cortège was led by the glittering figure of the then German kaiser, Wilhelm II., on a prancing charger. Today Prince Frederick of Prussia, godson of George V. and the ex-kaiser's grandson, plodded along on foot, clad in great white robes which made a splash of contrast in the somber colors. The military element in George V.'s funeral, however, was not too much subordinated. Thousands of troops lined the route and marched in the procession.

Million People Along Route.

All of London turned out early today to honor the dead king. The funeral was timed to start from Westminster hall at 9:45 a. m. but the streets were lined by thousands before 6 a. m. and the subways and buses were jammed from the earliest hours. As subway crowds pushed up and could not find standing room, dispatchers began running the trains through the heart of London without stopping.

Hawkers, undismayed by the solemnity of the occasion, moved through the crowds selling mourning buttons, old newspapers to ward off the drizzling rain, squares of lineoleum to keep spectators' feet from the soggy pavement, blocks of wood to add a few inches of height, and periscopes for looking over heads. Small merchants sold seats and standing room in their shop windows for $10 upward. Seats in stands erected along the way brought $25.

It is estimated that more than a million people lined the four mile route from Westminster hall to Paddington station. Women fainted and men keeled over and were pulled out of the crowd for attention by ambulance attendants. Seven thousand cases were treated by ambulances and of the 150 persons taken to hospitals, one died.

By the time the procession had started the crowd was dozens deep on either side of the route and police and troops, who displayed most wonderful patience, had the hardest job of keeping the roadway clear.

All Troops Represented.

There were several minor breaks through and two major ones in St. James's street and near Paddington station. Police and troops linked arms and crossed rifles to force the crowd back. There was also a minor break through at Windsor and these, with the inability of some royal mourners to keep the pace set, made the cortège 45 minutes late in arriving at St. George's chapel.

The bell of Big Ben clanged and the bells of Westminster abbey tolled as the plain oak coffin was borne out of Westminster hall, where it stood in state for four days, to the same gun carriage which had carried the bodies of Queen Victoria in 1901 and Edward VII. in 1910, grandmother and father of George V. The coffin was covered with the king's coronation robe, and on it were placed the symbols of kingship — the crown, scepter, and orb—and a lone white wreath, from Queen Mary.

Ahead of the carriage marched troops drawn from all the guards regiments, and all the regiments of which the late king was honorary colonel, the colonial and dominion forces, the air force and the navy.

After the British troops came foreign military attachés and representatives.

New King Pale and Worn.

These were followed by massed bands of guards and massed pipers of the Highland regiment. After the bands came the most gorgeous figures of the whole procession led by the earl marshal of England, the duke of Norfolk.

Then came the gun carriage with the late king's equerries on each side and behind it the royal standard, and then King Edward VIII., pale and worn, marching doggedly along, looking neither to the right nor to the left. His brothers, the dukes of York, Gloucester, and Kent, followed closely and after them the immediate relatives, like King Haakon VII. of Norway, Crown Prince Olaf of Norway, the earl of Athlone, Queen Mary's brother, and the earl of Harewood, who is her son-in-law.

President Albert Lebrun of France, walked next in line with King Christian of Denmark, and King Carol II. of Rumania, followed by King Boris III. of Bulgaria, and King Leopold III. of the Belgians, and after that a crowd of princes and grand dukes and special representatives of foreign sovereigns.

Davis with Litvinov.

Norman H. Davis, the American special ambassador, walked with the ambassadors near the end of the procession. He and Maxim Litvinov, foreign commisar of Russia, alone wore black morning coats and striped pants, departing from the rule of evening dress for those not in uniform.

The procession moved like a machine. Particularly noticeable was the precision of the blue jackets drawing the gun carriage—100 pulling on ropes in front and 50 holding the draglines behind. As the procession slowly wound its way along the streets, the crowds stood bareheaded and silent except for an occasional sob from the women or a suppressed grunt of sorrow from the men.

These were particularly noticeable when seven carriages with the widowed queen and her daughters-in-law, her black clothed little granddaughter, Princess Elizabeth; Queen Maud of Norway, King George's sole surviving sister, and other royal ladies came by near the end of the procession. They were all heavily veiled.

The rear of the procession included a long line of members of the stafs of envoys and minor officials.

Late Reaching Windsor.

The cortège moved down Whitehall past the cenotaph, memorial of the empire's fallen soldiers, where King Edward for once turned his eyes and saluted; veered through the Horse Guards' parade, where on his birthday each June King George reviewed his troops; proceeded down the Mall, within sight of Buckingham palace, then turned sharply to the right past St. James's palace to Piccadilly, usually a gay district.

As it passed the crowds closed in and marched along until by the time the head of the mile long procession had reached Paddington station there was a line nearly four miles long.

Little time was lost at Paddington in filling the mourners' five special trains, as the cortège already was 33 minutes late in starting from the station. The funeral train reached Windsor at 1:08 p. m. One hundred thousand watchers lined the mile and a half march there and caused a further 12 minutes delay. However, the rain had stopped and the sun shone at Windsor.

Inside St. George's chapel the great and near great of the world and the British empire had been assembling since the doors were opened at 11 a. m. and one thousand mourners completely filled the great church. Stalls of the Garter knights were turned over for the occasion to the distinguished mourners.

Grandsons at Chapel.

Included were little Lady Mary Cambridge, a niece of the queen mother, and the two Lascelles boys, Viscount George Lascelles and the Hon. Gerald Lascelles, sons of the princess royal, only sister of the new King Edward. The boys wore kilts of Royal Stuart tartan. The chapel was banked with 2,000 wreaths.

The Military Knights of Windsor, in plumed hats and scarlet cloaks, lined the ailes and other officials took up their positions, but all were in for a long wait. At last, just before 2 p. m., the sound of the minute guns in Windsor Great park announced the funeral cortège was approaching.

The Sebastopol bell, taken in the siege of 1855, tolled 101 times.

Those in the church heard the strains of the "Dead March," from "Saul," played by massed bands of the guards. The sounds grew louder. Then the great south door was thrown open and the music swelled still louder and then stopped, to be taken up by the massed pipes playing that most soul tearing of all highland laments, "Flowers of the Forest." The music of the pipes throbbed and swelled as the coffin was "piped aboard," a tribute to the king's early seafaring life and the fact that he was being buried in a full admiral's uniform.

The coffin was borne up the aile by the grenadiers and laid reverently on the purple draped bier in the center of the choir.

At the head of this procession marched the archbishops of Canterbury and York, the bishops of Winchester and Oxford, and a number of the minor clergy singing "I Am the Resurrection and the Life." Behind the coffin walked King Edward supporting his mother, who carried a tightly rolled umbrella and, in spite of her mourning, appeared regal as ever.

The symbols of kingship were removed from the coffin and laid before it. The coffin then bore the colors of the Grenadier Guards and four wreaths from members of the royal family. A note of modernity was struck by the twelve microphones ranged around the bier.

From this point on the service was as simple and plain as that read over any pauper. It was the Church of England service for the burial of the dead.

When the coffin at 2:14 p. m. sank through the floor of the chapel into the crypt beneath where it will rest and King Edward crumbled a few pinches of Sandringham earth on it, this might have been a scene in any country churchyard. But there was more to come. Immediately after the coffin had disappeared the Garter Principal King of Arms, a gorgeous figure in a scarlet, gold and blue tabard and mantle, stepped forward and slowly and solemnly intoned:

"Of Great Britain, Ireland, and the British dominions beyond the sea, king, defender of the faith, emperor of India, of the most noble Order of the Garter sovereign."

Then came the last hymn, which was an innovation in the British burial service sung by boys of the choir, 'God Be in My Head and in My Understanding," and the benediction by the archbishop of Canterbury. Persons in the chapel passed slowly before the open grave.

It was all over. In a few minutes the new king escorted his mother to her carriage and the whole party left for London and Edward VIII. entered on his duties of the new reign.

The king whom the English buried today will live long in memories as a man who tried to do his duty and made millions of friends.

Storm King Edward.

Millions of eyes watched the new King Edward VIII. today and in the minds of butcher and baker, cockneys from Billingsgate, crown ministers and visiting sovereigns was the question, "What sort of king will he be?"

Wearied from this watching and from 10 days in which he had little more than four hours' sleep each night, Edward returned to London from Windsor in a car with his mother and sister, the countess of Harewood, and aunt, Queen Maud of Norway. He dropped them at Buckingham palace and drove on to St. James's palace, where the crowds discovered and nearly mobbed him and pelted him with bunches of violets.

Police twice drove back the crowds and again protected him as he drove on through the Mall. With difficulty he reached York house, where he is living at present. A downpour of rain deluged London tonight again and proved a boon for the king. It dispersed the crowds and enabled him to slip back unnoticed to Buckingham palace for dinner with Queen Mary.

CAPITAL PAYS LAST TRIBUTE TO GEORGE V. IN SIMPLE SERVICES

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Official Washington paid its last tribute to King George V. at a memorial service today in Washington cathedral, where last May the twenty-fifth anniversary of his coronation was celebrated. Brilliant uniforms of diplomats contrasted with the deep mourning veils worn by the ladies of the British embassy and of the legations of the British dominions.

Mrs. Roosevelt came in on the arm of Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British ambassador, while a member of the staf of the embassy took Lady Lindsay to her place. Vice President and Mrs. Garner, Chief Justice and Mrs. Hughes, Justice Roberts, Justice Butler, and Justice Stone sat with the ambassador and Mrs. Roosevelt.

The simple service was arranged by embassy officials in collaboration with the Right Rev. James W. Freeman and other clergy of the cathedral. Decorations were limited to an American and a British flag, at the foot of the chancel, and a wreath of carnations and roses from the President and Mrs. Roosevelt and a spray of lilies from Secretary of State and Mrs. Hull.

2 EXPERTS OF FRENCH RADIO WILL REMEMBER FUNERAL BROADCAST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 28.—At least two men in this country—anonymous employés of the state radio administration—will never forget the funeral of King George V. of England. One was responsible for mometarily switching on a concert program during the solemnest moment of the funeral ceremonies which the French state stations were broadcasting.

The other was the unfortunate technician assisting the famous Belgian announcer, Theo Fleischman, who was covering the funeral in London for the same French station. Just as the ceremonies were about to start Fleischman muttered:

"Why do they not get going? What is all this worth anyway?"

Then he asked the technician if he was ready with that connection. He said some other things, too, but that was all the millions of radio fans listening in throughout the continent were able to catch. Georges Mandel, minister of communicationsfi has ordered an investigation and punishment of the culprits.

MOURNING OVER, LONDON BOILING WITH INTRIGUES

European Chiefs Stay On for Political Talks.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 28.—Politics and diplomacy will replace mourning in Great Britain again tomorrow. Several kings and foreign ministers who came to the funeral of King George V. will take advantage of their visits for interviews with Capt. Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, over problems concerned with the peace of Europe.

Maxim Litvinov, Russian foreign commissar, will leave England tomorrow, but the new French foreign minister, Pierre-Etienne Flandin, will remain for a couple of days. So will King Carol II. of Rumania. Konstantin von Neurath, German foreign minister, may also remain for a couple of days, and also King Leopold III. of the Belgians.

Report France Seeks Loan.

Flandin, who has already dined and had a talk with Chancellor of the Exchequer Neville Chamberlain, giving rise to renewed rumors that France is seeking a loan on the London market to bolster the franc, will have an interview with Eden tomorrow. It will take in, first, French fears that Germany will take the first opportunity to fortify the demilitarized zone of the Rhineland, which possibility also is causing disquietude in London, and, second, the question of inviting Germany to the London naval conference.

The French oppose extending such an invitation, but the British now apparently are alarmed over the rapidity with which the Germans are building up to 35 per cent of the British fleet's strength under the right accorded them in the agreement last June. The British want to get this treaty embodied in a general agreement which, it is hoped, may come out of the four power conference at the present meeting here.

The French still hold that the British-German agreement of last June was equivalent to ratifying another infraction of the Versailles treaty.

Carol Also Wants a Loan.

King Carol's diplomatic visit will concern a loan also, it is rumored, together with the proposal for oil sanctions against Italy, now before the league of nations, and Rumania's position in the group of nations which agreed to support Great Britain if the latter were attacked by Italy.

Prince Ernst Ruediger von Starhemberg, vice chancellor of Austria, also will stay in London several days for political talks, and so will Koloman de Kanya, Hungarian foreign minister.

The Portuguese foreign minister also is here and it is expected he will sound out London on recent reports that Portuguese colonies might be involved in future plans to satisfy the land hungry bigger nations, such as Germany and Italy. It is known that handing over the Portuguese possessions in Africa has been discussed between the British and the Germans.

Prince Paul, regent of Jugo-Slavia, also is expected to have political interviews with the foreign office before going back.

Speculate on Italian Prince.

The presence of Crown Prince Humbert of Italy in London is another political enigma in view of the rumors last December that he is opposed to Premier Mussolini's African campaign and that the Belgian king, Leopold III., who is Humbert's brother-in-law, was a secret emissary here on behalf of Humbert and his wife, Leopold's sister.

The fact that King Edward VIII. of England invited Prince Frederick of Prussia, former Kaiser Wilhelm's grandson, and several other German princes to Buckingham palace and gave them a warm reception was much commented on in political circles along with the story that Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, German minister of air, who is especially fond of showing off his uniforms, wanted to come to the funeral and was advised not to do so.

IRISH RADIO PLAYS MUSIC DURING PERIOD OF SILENCE FOR KING

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Jan. 28.—(AP)—The Free State radio station did not broadcast any part of the funeral services for King George of Great Britain today. It had a program of light gramophone music during the two minutes of silence in England.

U. S. AND BRITAIN AGREE NOT TO CUT SIZE OF WARSHIPS

Bolt of Japan Is Viewed as a Menace.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 28.—A British-American agreement on the necessity of keeping battleships and cruisers up to the present Washington treaty strength—35,000 tons for battleships and 10,000 tons for cruisers—will be registered tomorrow, when the four power naval conference will reconvene after a ten day adjournment.

The British say they would have liked a reduction in the size of battleships in order to cut costs, but have agreed with the American objections against curtailment in view of the fact that the Japanese bolted the conference.

Eye Franco-Italian Building.

The British admiralty is at the same time anxious to keep ships up to the maximum size in view of the fact that Premier Mussolini is building two 35,000 ton battleships which will be more powerful than the British Rodney and Nelson, and also because the French are laying down a couple of 35,000 ton ships. The British as well as the French are also alarmed at the German plan to build two 30,000 ton battleships.

It seemed probable today that the conference, accordingly, would arrive at no results in reducing the sizes of any types of warship, since France also objects to the British desire to restrict destroyers and flotilla leaders to 1,500 tons and 1,850 tons, respectively.

Davis Changes His Views.

While it was strongly emphasized that the American attitude against cutting down warship sizes on the grounds that the United States requires larger ships for a longer radius of action, having no bases at present in the Pacific, is the main cause of keeping up sizes of ships, the British fears of continental building are also the reason for their agreeing with the United States on this point.

Norman H. Davis, American ambassador at large, it is said, was ready to listen to proposals for cutting the sizes of battleships to 30,000 tons, but the American attitude hardened after Japan withdrew from the conference and indicated unequivocally its hegemonic aims in the western Pacific. The American view is that it would be madness to curtail the American range of naval effectiveness now.

Britain to Spend Billion.

Whether anything except a sort of agreement on exchanging information about future building plans will come out of the conference now seems doubtful.

The British say their plans for spending about a billion dollars on new naval, air, and military defenses will be submitted to parliament next month, and that in view of developments their eleven new battleships, with the first two laid down this year, will be 35,000 ton superdreadnaughts, costing $30,000,000 each.

The British plan also to build twenty-five new cruisers at $15,000,000 each, sixty destroyers, twenty-five submarines and three aircraft carriers.

EIGHT INJURED BY EXPLOSION ON U. S. SUBMARINE

MANILA, P. I., Jan. 28.—(AP)—Eight Cavite navy yard workers were injured, five seriously, when batteries aboard the U. S. navy submarine S40 exploded today. None of the navy personnel was injured. The submarine was seriously damaged.

The S40 was in drydock being overhauled when the blast occurred. The cause was not immediately determined. A navy board began investigating the explosion as soon as the injured, all of them Filipinos, were removed to a hospital.

The S40 is one of six S-type submarines in submarine division ten assigned to the Asiatic fleet which bases at Cavite, naval yard at the entrance to Manila Bay. The vessel was launched in September, 1923, and is due to become officially over-age in September of this year.

SCHOOL PAINTING BY CWA ARTIST STIRS ROCKFORD

Legion Demands It Be Removed.

Rockford, Ill., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Demands that a large painting be removed from the walls of Roosevelt Junior High school here on the ground that the painting is communistic in character have been placed before the board of education by a local American Legion committee. A special committee has been named by the board to consider the charges.

The painting, 14 by 12 feet in size, was painted by a Rockford artist, Herbert Rosengren, in connection with a CWA project. A small brass plate fixed to its base says it belongs to the United States government.

Shackles and Chains.

The painting consists of several panels grouped about three nearly life size workmen swinging mallets such as those used in heavy construction work. One of the panels shows two forearms and hands with the wrists bound with heavy shackles. A man is shown shackled to a wheel which he is turning, while another man is breaking the chain with a chisel and hammer.

Another panel shows several agonized workmen apparently trapped in a mine. To their left a rescue party is drilling through rock to their aid. Immediately above these two scenes a group of grief stricken miners, women and children, is shown with a row of bayonets between the group and the mine shaft. Other panels show a wheat harvesting scene and a dirigible with radio towers in the background.

It Riles Superintendent.

"I agree with the Legion that the picture is a peculiar painting, a very peculiar painting," City Superintendent of School William W. Ankenbrand said today. "It isn't a painting for child life. It makes one get riled up and stirred up. I didn't look at it very long for sometimes it is too dangerous to look at some paintings too long."

Rockford artists rallied to the defense of the painting today, contending that it was not communistic. Rosengren is in New York and cannot be reached for his interpretation of the mural.

Want Bright Paintings

"Bright and lively mural panels to raise the spirits of convalescent children" is the assignment for twenty-two unemployed artists now engaged at the University of Illinois Research and Educational hospitals, 1819 West Polk street, under the direction of Mrs. Increase Robinson, head of WPA art projects for the middle west. The appropriation for this project is $15,000 and Mrs. Robinson said that thirty artists will be employed when the mural work gets farther along. The murals will be scenes in zoos and parks, Mrs. Robinson explained.

MME. STAVISKY ARRIVES IN U. S. AS CHORUS GIRL

New York, Jan. 28.—(AP)—The once wealthy Arlette Stavisky, widow of the French pawnbroker, Alexandre Stavisky, whose financial operations almost caused a revolution, came here today in the rôle of a $50 a week show girl.

Acquitted of complicity after sixteen months in prison, the comely convent bred widow arrived on the French liner Ile de France to assume an inconspicuous rôle in the revue "Folies de Femmes" at a New York cabaret.

"I have come here to work for my two children," she said, expressing bright hopes for the future.

All she has left of the Stavisky estate are remnants of her personal wardrobe, once noted for its lavishness. She said her jewelry had gone to her husband shortly before his pawnshop empire collapsed.

The children, Claude, 9, and Micheline, 5, are with a nurse in Paris, but she hopes to have them join her soon. Still loyal to her husband, she said she did not contemplate remarrying. About her own exoneration she said she never was in doubt.

Germany Bars Dowry for Woman Who Weds Jew

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 28.—An Aryan woman who marries a Jew is not entitled to a dowry, a German appeal court ruled today on grounds that such marriages "violate the sense of honor and moral and legal feelings of the German people." An Aryan girl who had married in 1934, before the anti-Jewish Nuremberg laws went into effect, sued her father for a dowry. The court rejected the plea.

NAZI ROW DRIVES 2 MINISTRIES TO MARK SMUGGLING

Sneak Money Out to Carry on Foreign Propaganda.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Jan. 28.—The ministry of propaganda of the German Nazi government and Alfred Rosenberg's foreign political office, it was learned today, have smuggled large amounts of marks out of Germany in violation of the financial policy laid down by Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichsbank and economic dictator of Germany.

The smuggling was resorted to when Schacht refused to grant Joseph Goebbels, chief Nazi propagandist, or Rosenberg the foreign exchange necessary to carry on their enterprises in other countries.

The money which was taken out has sold at steadily declining rates. It is referred to in banking circles as the "koffermark" or "trunkmark," because it was carried out of the country in trunks or suitcases.

Industrialists Act, Too.

Industrialists in the Ruhr who have acquired fortunes recently as a result of the big Nazi rearmament program are also acting. They, too, have caused vast amounts of "koffermarks" to be carried out in efforts to conserve their earnings.

Nazi agents in foreign countries are also attempting to tap another source of revenue, it is learned, to carry on their propaganda. This source consists of rich leaders of German groups abroad. In Denmark, for instance, a certain Herr Jebsen has promised to advance some money.

German agents who receive this money from "patriots" are allowed to guarantee them that the German government will refund the money loaned in German marks to be spent in Germany at a rate 4 to 5 per cent above the best rate obtainable for register marks.

Americans Used in Deals.

Americans are also being used in deals meant to finance Nazi propaganda. Herr Hasselt, editor of a Nazi paper in Austria, recently approached Americans in Berlin with a proposition for getting marks to them cheaply but legally.

There are about eighteen varieties of marks—all sold for different prices and purposes. One of the cheapest are the "effektenmarks," which theoretically should not be spent until five years after the day they were placed in an effektenmark account. They are quoted at about 10 marks to the dollar instead of the official 2.48 marks.

Hasselt showed the persons he approached a permit from the Reichsbank to draw effektenmarks and to sell them against dollars. The hitch is that the persons buying effektenmarks must turn over an additional sum of 30 per cent in dollars to an account in Austria for the benefit of Hasselt. The American must draw on his New York or London bank so the Austrians cannot charge Hasselt with receiving German money.

RUSSIANS BOMBARD POTATOES WITH SOUND WAVES; BOOST CROPS

MOSCOW, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Russian scientists today reported that potato and pea crops can be greatly increased by bombarding the crop seeds with waves before planting.

"Ultra sound" vibrations with a frequency of several hundred thousand a second and inaudible to the human ear are used.

Potatoes exposed to the waves one minute several months before planting sprouted earlier than usual and yielded up to 60 per cent higher than normal, the Moscow Institute of Roentgenology announced. Green pea yields have been doubled and in some instances tripled.

HOHENZOLLERNS JOIN NAZIS IN MOURNING KING

Hitler Attends Services in Berlin.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 28.—The old imperial Germany and the new Nazi Germany united today to pay homage to the memory of King George V. of England. Reichsfuehrer Hitler and his main lieutenants, as well as the Hohenzollerns, attended a memorial service held in St. George's church in Berlin.

All public buildings throughout the country were flagged at half staf and warships at sea and in ports at half mast.

Rise for Hitler.

The memorial service was held at the same hour the body of the dead king was conveyed to Windsor castle. When Hitler entered the church at noon the entire audience, including ex-Crown Princess Cecile, rose to its feet.

The Hohenzollerns also were represented by Prince August Wilhelm, "Auwi," fourth son of ex-Kaiser Wilhelm II., who holds a high rank in Hitler's Storm Troopers, and by Prince Louis Ferdinand, the ex-crown prince's second son, favorite grandson of the ex-kaiser and great-grandson of the late Queen Victoria of England.

Ferdinand of Bulgaria There.

Members of the Hohenzollern family were seated in a box together with ex-Czar Ferdinand of Bulgaria, resplendent in a field marshal's uniform. The box was decorated with the union jack on a purple background.

Practically the entire diplomatic corps as well as high officers of the fighting services including Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, minister of air, Minister of War Werner von Blomberg and the commander-in-chief of the German army, Baron Werner von Fritsch, attended the service.

NEW RIOTING SWEEPS CAIRO; POLICE FIRE UPON STUDENT MOBS

CAIRO, Egypt, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Two more striking university students were reported shot and wounded by police tonight in a renewal of rioting. The demonstrators smashed street lamps, throwing the town into darkness. All shops were closed.

The disorders followed upon the burial this afternoon of one of three demonstrators who died from wounds suffered in recent disturbances.

Rioters sacked the police commandant's house. The Egyptian university was closely indefinitly.

"RAG DOLL SEED CORN TESTER"

Midwest agricultural colleges recently conducted tests of seed corn. Plenty of weak corn was found, principally because of a late spring, early frost, and the current low temperatures. The Tribune experimental farms will test all of their seed corn, using the "rag doll seed corn tester." Read about these tests in the farm story on page 11 in today's Chicago Tribune.

On the same page you will find the farm lands want ads which now appear on week days adjacent to the farm story.

PRESIDENT SETS JULY 1 FOR FIRST BONUS PAYMENT

Explains Delay Until Near Election.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—The first of the bonus bonds will not be distributed to veterans until July 1, President Roosevelt revealed at his press conference today. The bulk of the bonus bonds will not reach veterans' hands until six or eight weeks after that date or a few weeks before the presidential election.

Mr. Roosevelt said that delay in payment will be forced by the vast amount of calculation necessary to distribute the form of bonus voted overwhelmingly by the house and the senate over his mild veto. He made no comment on the political advantage the delay will bring the Democratic campaign machinery which has already the vast outlay of the works relief program and other alphabetical easy money.

Leaders See Advantage.

It was recalled, however, that Senator Walter F. George of Georgia, after a conference with the President during the latter's visit to Warm Springs last November, said that if the bonus is to be paid he favored payment when it would do most good, just before election. Other politically minded administration leaders have said the late payment will pour oil on the veterans' wrath against the President's vetoes.

Mr. Roosevelt said in reply as to what the administration would do to meet revenues required by the passage of the bonus that the tax situation is still in the study stage and no definite conclusions have yet been reached.

Relief Estimate Late.

At the same time he pointed out that his fiscal requirements regarding relief will be sent to congress as late as possible—probably a month before adjournment. The two will not come at the same time, however, he added.

The President said 28 or 38 million pieces of paper will be required in about 7 million computations to get the bonus out. This he said would necessitate employing between 2,500 and 3,000 clerks six months to get the first of the bonds out by July 1 and the bulk six to eight weeks later. He added he had explained the delay to three national commanders of the major veterans' organizations who understood the problem fully and would advise veterans of the administration's difficulty.

Three Major Steps.

Before the soldiers can get the 1945 value of the adjusted service certificates, issued in 1924, three steps must be taken which are expected to cos tthe government $7,500,000. Seven million interest calculations, canceling interest on loans after Oct. 1, 1931, and computing the worth of each certificate must be made at the veterans' bureau.

The bureau of printing and engraving must print 38 million $50 bonds. The division of accounts and deposits at the treasury will be sent by the veterans' administration a complete record of the amount due each soldier to enable the treasury unit to make payment to the 3,500,000 certificate holders.

Report 8 Killed, 6 Shot in Mexican Liquor Fight

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Newspaper dispatches from Tabasco reported today that eight men were killed and six seriously wounded in a gun fight near the town of Emiliano Zapata. The fighting started, it was reported, when city authorities went to a ranch to search for contraband liquor and were fired on by ranch employés.

OPPONENTS CONSIDER PLANS FOR TEST OF BONUS LAW IN COURT

New York, Jan. 28.—(AP)—The American Veterans' association is studying the possibility of instituting a court test of the soldiers' bonus bill, it became known tonight.

Donald A. Hobart, national commander of the organization, which has actively opposed prepayment of the adjusted service compensation certificates, said a legal committee had been formed to examine the measure passed over President Roosevelt's veto.

If any constitutional defects are found, he indicated, a suit will be filed immediately seeking an injunction against the payment.

RIGGS' EX-WIFE WINS 1ST ROUND IN TRUST FIGHT

MRS. ENID BARRETT.

Circuit Judge Stanley H. Klarkowski ruled yesterday that Mrs. Enid Barrett of Santa Barbara, Cal., shall continue to receive $1,250 a month from a $250,000 trust fund established by her former husband, Elwood Riggs, while Riggs' suit to set aside the fund is pending. The judge entered an order directing the Continental Illinois National bank, as trustee of the fund, to resume the payments to Mrs. Barrett, which were stopped last Nov. 1 when Riggs filed his suit. Riggs, who is a retired optical merchant of Los Angeles, created the fund for Mrs. Barrett while they were married in 1925. He alleged in his bill that he and Mrs. Barrett were never legally married and that she violated the terms of the trust by remarrying.

TRIBUNE OFFICES FURNISH BONUS BLANKS TO VETS

The Tribune's Public Service offices at 1 South Dearborn street and in Tribune Tower last night started distributing bonus application blanks for the convenience of war veterans. The blanks will be available daily from 9 a. m. to 10 p. m. at the tower office and from 9 a. m. to 11 p. m. at the loop office.

Experts will aid in filling out the blanks; they have finger printing facilities for affixing the required identification marks. Bonus applicants are asked to bring with them their bonus [adjusted compensation] certificates or the pink slips they received when they surrendered their certificates for loans. They must also bring identification data, such as army discharge papers or photographs.

If a veteran has lost his pink slip the public service offices will assist him in filling out the required application, but this must be sent to the regional office of the veterans' administration which made his bonus loan. This office will fill in the required data and return the application to the veteran, who must then have it attested before mailing it again to the regional office. For the state of Illinois and the three northern counties of Indiana the regional office is at Hines.

BAN ON CARTOON STAMPS HEADED FOR LEGAL TEST

G.O.P. Unawed by Farley's Ruling on Stickers.

New York, Jan. 28.—[Special.]—The fight over Postmaster General Farley's dictatorial ban from the mails of three cartoon stamps depicting President and Mrs. Roosevelt in ludicrous rôles went on unabated today with both sides adamant.

While the National Republican Council of New York, which issued the stamps as campaign material, considered undertaking a legal test of the ban, the administration stood by the big gun fired by the postmaster general on Jan. 18 when he declared the stamps to be illegal when affixed to an outside wrapper.

Far from being awed by Mr. Farley's decision on the subject, William Ingles, director of the council, announced that it was planned to get out a new batch of the stamp cartoons every month from now on throughout the national campaign.

See Threat to Free Press.

Some members of the council, who question whether Farley's ban was a function in his capacity as postmaster general or in his capacity as chairman of the Democratic national committee, favor carrying an appeal of "this high handed action" to the United States Supreme court, if necessary.

A menace to freedom of the press also was seen in the ban for, it was pointed out, if Farley can bar the present issue of stamps from the mails, the prohibition might be extended to the circulation of newspapers carrying cartoons or editorials reflecting on members of the administration.

Mr. Ingles and his co-workers look upon the development as a "further evidence of the autocratic power which will be employed by the administration to prevent criticism and to perpetuate itself."

Asserting that the post office ban did not affect the contents of letters, Mr. Ingles said that in the future the stickers would be affixed to letters and not to the outside of envelopes.

Three of Five Stamps Banned.

The decision in the matter, given to Mr. Farley by Karl A. Crowley, solicitor of the postoffice department, banned three of the five stamps issued by the Republican council. The decision described the three offending stamps as follows:

"1. This is an illustration having as its foundation Mary Shelley's story 'Frankenstein,' a man who made a monstrous and destructive being. The illustration shows in the lower right hand corner an astonished and frightened individual, bearing an intended resemblence to the President, observing a giant labeled 'Burocratic Government,' dressed in Russian costume, treading upon industrial plants, labeled 'United States Business,' the sticker bearing the title 'Frankenstein [?] D. Roosevelt.'

"2. This shows a caricature of the President flippantly lighting a cigaret from a taper composed of a scroll labeled 'Constitution of the United States.'

"3. This is a caricature of the President and Mrs. Roosevelt seated on the Democratic donkey at the very edge of a precipice, the President and Mrs. Roosevelt both portrayed as laughing while the former holds before him a microphone and Mrs. Roosevelt holds aloft a communistic banner: 'Utopia' in the distance."

Roosevelt Menace Explained.

Lambert Fairchild, chairman of the Republican council, said he was far from convinced the cartoons are out of place in the present order of things in American political life.

"A cartoon is an exaggerated illustration of a point of view, and as such is a most trenchant political weapon," he said. "Thomas Nash proved that back in the '70s when he drove William Marcy Tweed, the then Democratic boss, as far from his control of New York politics as we propose to drive Franklin D. Roosevelt from his dictatorship of national politics.

"We regard the light minded and happy hearted Roosevelt as a greater threat to the nation's welfare than the corrupt and venal Boss Tweed ever could have been. It is the winsome boyishness and undeniable personal charm of this man Roosevelt that makes him dangerous.

"Point the finger of scorn at this inept, scatter brained administration and we will laugh it out of office."

CLARK AND COUNTY PURCHASING AGENT CLASH OVER BILL

A controversy between County Assessor John S. Clark and Joseph Donahue, county superintendent of public service, over the payment of a $16,784 printing bill came to light yesterday in the county building. Mr. Donahue is purchasing agent for the county, and all requisitions are supposed to pass through his hands.

The bill is for printing the 1935 personal property tax schedules, recently mailed to taxpayers, and for other printing supplies. The order was placed by Clark with the Champlin-Shealy company, 100 North La Salle street. James T. Shealy, head of the firm, is known as a friend of the assessor.

Donahue said yesterday he had withheld payment of the bill because the assessor had violated the law in letting the contract without advertising for bids and awarding the work on a competitive basis.

Assessor Clark explained that lack of time necessitated letting the contract without going through the "red tape" of advertising for bids. He also declared that permission to award the contract had been obtained from Donahue, and that in as much as the work was satisfactory the county should pay the bill.

Mr. Donahue denied he had been consulted by the assessor.

COURT UPHOLDS CAROLINA TAX ON ESTATE OF 'T. R.'

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—The right of the state of North Carolina to levy an assessment of $10,000 on the estate of the late President Roosevelt was upheld by the Court of Appeals today. The assessment is against the 100 shares of stock of the Page Trust Company of North Carolina which the estate holds. The bank directors asked the state commissioner of banks, Gurney P. Hood, to take over its affairs and reorganize it when it was found to be insolvent. The commissioner took the necessary legal steps to bring this about but since the plan of reorganization has been abandoned.

The Guaranty Trust company of New York, Edith K. Roosevelt, and George Roosevelt, as trustees of the estate of Theodore Roosevelt, admitted the stock ownership but set up as defenses that they are nonresidents and that no personal service had been made and that they never appeared or submitted themselves to the jurisdiction of the court of North Carolina. They also contended that the assessment was not for the purpose of liquidation but for reorganization.

The court declared the bank commissioner had complied with all the provisions of the North Carolina statute. He held, however, that "nothing in this opinion is to be construed as holding that without personal service within the state personal judgment could be entered against a nonresident stockholder."

Neiman, who has been experimenting on the process for ten years, said he had achieved successful results with rabbits. DRAKE SWINDLE 'LIKE NEW DEAL,' WITNESS FEELS Roosevelt, Hoover, and Setting Hens Invoked.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

President Roosevelt, former President Hoover and setting hens all were alluded to with the same familiarity yesterday by a defendant witness in the Drake estate mail fraud case, nearing completion in the court of Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan.

The witness, a ruddy cheeked farmer, John Hensel of Auburn, Ia., one of 21 remaining defendants, under questioning by George M. Crane, who, with Edward J. Hess, is defense counsel, described how he first had been convinced of the worth of the Drake deal. A fellow farmer had told Hensel about it, and he had asked if it were a "good thing."

Hensel said his friend told him it was so good that "I am taking my settin' hens right off their nests to put all the cash I can into it."

Deal "Just Like Roosevelt's."

"Referring to this letter [a government exhibit, a letter written by Hensel Aug. 25, 1933, to George W. Bang of Lincoln, Neb.], what did you mean when you wrote that 'we feel that the two deals are very closely connected?'" Prosecutor Austin Hall asked Hensel on cross-examination.

"Well, sir, I figured our deal and the New Deal were about the same thing," Hensel replied glibly.

Q.—Did any one ever tell you Roosevelt was pushing your 'deal' [the mythical Drake estate]? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Or that anything about the New Deal was connected with this Drake deal? A.—Well, sir, Hoover——

But Prosecutor Hall was not interested in former President Hoover's statement, and interrupted to tell the witness to answer "yes" or "no."

Tied Financing to NRA.

In the letter in question Hensel had written: ". . . If you realize the power that is pushing our deal you would not feel we were losing time . . . if you will figger out just where and when Roosevelt is going to get the money to finance the NRA you will know when we can expect our checks . . ."

Hensel said that he continued to collect money from farmers and others around Auburn for the Drake "deal" and express it to headquarters in Chicago after the conviction in 1933 of Oscar Hartzell, chief defendant in this trial, on mail fraud charges at Sioux City. He said he had more than $4,000 in the estate himself.

Henry Osborne, Hartley, Ia., another defendant, who said he had invested $400 in the Drake estate, admitted he had taken $25 out of $130 in contributions he sent to Chicago "to buy a new suit." He said he deducted about $650 for expenses in the two years he collected Drake funds, ending in April, 1935.

25 Cent Pillow in Expenses.

Thomas Throckmorton of Mitchell, S. D., another defendant who took the witness stand late in the day, said he itemized his expense accounts as he, his wife and four children traveled over South Dakota spreading the Drake estate faith. He identified an item for 25 cents shown him by Attorney Crane on an expense account as "What I spent for a pillow on the day coach."

Describing, at his attorney's request, a conversation with Hartzell in February, 1933, Throckmorton, a tall man with a lined, patient face and hair brushed carefully over his bald spot, said:

"He said that of course liquidation had to be completed, but that legally he had the assignment [to the Drake estate] and that he had made a deal of a secret nature with the highest powers which no postal power could even penetrate. He couldn't disclose the name of the heir, he said."

NINE SEIZE $12,500 IN SECOND FLOOR RAID NEAR LOOP

While fifty employés worked nearby yesterday, unaware of what was happening, nine masked gunmen menaced three other workers in the second floor office of Rand, McNally & Co., printers, at 536 South Clark street, and escaped with a $12,500 pay roll.

The money had been delivered by an express company only a few minutes before the robbers appeared. As five men guarded the path of escape two others climbed over the wicket surrounding the cashier's cage in a separate room just off the main office space. They warned Miss Rae Motto, 26 years old, 1131 North Mason avenue, a clerk, to "hand over the bag and shut up." One intruder pointed his pistol toward Harold Schaefer, the paymaster, and Walter Nelson, factory superintendent, warning them to be quiet.

The robbers fled with their loot to two waiting automobiles parked near the La Salle street loading platform, each with its motor running and with a driver behind the wheel.

POISON KILLS WOMAN.

Galesburg, Ill., Jan. 28.—(AP)—A note on the front door led a milk man to the body of Mrs. E. G. Lange, 49, in her farm home near Williamsfield today. She was dead of poisoning. Her husband, also poisoned, was hurried to a hospital critically ill.

Mack Gordon, Song Writer of Films, Sued for Divorce

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 28.—(AP)—Rose Gittler, former actress, today sued Mack Gordon, film song writer, for divorce, $5,000 a month alimony and $10,000 attorneys' fees. His real name is Morris Gittler. Mrs. Gittler charged he has been frequently in company of another woman on week-end trips. She estimated Gordon's income at $100,000 a year. Among his lyrics are "Here Comes Cookie," "Paris in Spring," "Love Thy Neighbor," and "With My Eyes Wide Open I'm Dreaming."

COMPLETE JURY TO TRY CANN IN LIGGETT SLAYING

8 Men, 4 Women Begin Hearing Case Today.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—After extended questioning of more than 100 talesmen, a jury was completed late today to hear the trial of Isadore [Kid Cann] Blumenfeld for the murder of Walter W. Liggett, Minneapolis weekly newspaper publisher.

The twelfth juror seated is Logan M. Hardaway, realty salesman, chosen shortly before today's session was scheduled to adjourn. Two other jurors, a man and a woman, were added to the six men and three women accepted previously. Besides Hardaway, the jurors are:

Mrs. Harry F. Rydell, housewife; Harry Young and Wilfred Whalen, WPA workers; Edward E. Pettit, electrician; Armand Levans, hardware estimator; Mrs. Ellen R. Pier, housewife; Albert Messenger, store manager; Mrs. Ann Thompson, housewife; T. Arthur Prichard, credit manager; Mrs. Pearl M. Malmgren, housewife, and David W. Markell, insurance and realty salesman.

More Surprises Hinted.

As attorneys prepared for taking of testimony tomorrow, it became known that one of the three prosecutors, Peter S. Neilson, assistant county attorney, will be called as a defense witness.

Thomas McMeekin, Cann's attorney, indicated that other surprise moves were in store.

One slight flurry interrupted this afternoon's session. After the eleventh juror had been seated and the one hundred and first venireman, Charles M. Verrell, had been accepted by the defense, questioning by the prosecution revealed that Verrell was acquainted with the proprietor of a liquor store in which Cann's brother allegedly holds an interest.

When Verrell said he had seen this man yesterday the state asked a recess and afterwards exercised a peremptory challenge.

State May Change Strategy.

Testimony will start with introduction of charts and plats of the murder scene. Contrary to previous plans, the state today was undecided whether the publisher's widow, who saw him slain, would follow the engineers and surveyors on the stand. Roy A. Frank, assistant attorney general, said Mr. Liggett may not be called until later in the case.

It was in connection with Wesley Andersch's probable testimony that Attorney McMeekin planned to call Neilson as a defense witness. The assistant county attorney would be subpenaed about frequent examinations of Andersch by the state since he first came forward to tell his eyewitness story of the slaying.

Grand Jury Calls for Records.

In another development today the grand jury, which last week indicted seven liquor dealers for perjury, swung its liquor license investigation directly toward the city council. It issued a subpena for Charles Swanson, city clerk, after he was reported to have balked at the jury's request for information.

The subpena was reported to call for all city records on license procedure in the city council. This action came after a group of aldermen had moved to strike from the liquor control ordinance a clause barring convicted felons from holding licenses.

TWO ARMY FLYERS LOSE LIVES WHEN AIRPLANE CRASHES

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Two army fliers lost their lives today when their plane crashed in an attempt to land at Bolling field. The flyers were identified as Lieut. William K. Payne of the air corps reserve of Atlanta, Ga., and Lieut. Dudley Whitten, Wharton, Tex.

Payne was dead when his body was removed from the wreckage and Whitten died a few minutes later.

OLSON REMOVES GUARDSMEN AT KNITTING PLANT

Threatens Martial Law If Trouble Arises.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Warning that martial law would be declared if trouble reappeared, Gov. Floyd B. Olson today ordered the National Guard withdrawn from the Strutwear Knitting company plant, center of labor controversy since last August.

Removal of the troops came as a decision upon a restraining order, asked by the Strutwear company, to prevent further shutdown of the plant by the guardsmen and to secure adequate protection for property and employes was being pondered by three federal judges.

"Responsibility" Is Issue.

The withdrawal was ordered, Gov. Olson said in instructions to Adjt. Gen. Ellard A. Walsh, because of "failure of Minneapolis and Hennepin county officials to accept responsibility" for presence of the guardsmen.

The guard unit, consisting of three officers and 54 men, was sent to the Strutwear plant Dec. 27. This was done at the request of Mayor Thomas E. Latimer and Sheriff John P. Wall, who said that city and county forces were inadequate to maintain order, as a result of disturbances that had occurred at the plant following its closing Aug. 15.

The guard immediately closed the plant. In federal court Saturday neither the mayor nor sheriff would admit responsibility. Mayor Latimer said in his affidavit that he had "suggested" to Gen. Walsh that the plant be closed. The company attorneys charged that he was directly responsible, although the injunction petition also named Olson and the National Guard.

Complicates Injunction Suit.

Removal of the guard unit today injected new complications into the injunction suit. Attorneys thought the litigation might be automatically invalidated. The judges, J. B. Sanborn, G. H. Nordbye, and M. M. Joyce, refused to comment.

Meanwhile there were no plans for reopening of the plant which normally employes 1,100 persons. Five policemen were sent there as the troops left, but there were no disturbances. Three pickets were on hand as representatives of the hosiery workers union whose dispute with the management led to the original shutdown. They said they were there only to see that "nobody pulls a fast one" in the form of trying to get workers into the building.

Gov. Olson made it clear that if any new disturbances arose martial law would follow.

CHICAGOAN CONVICTED.

Allegan, Mich., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Norman Plenn, Chicago, was found guilty last night by a Circuit court jury of stealing money and jewelry from cars parked at the Saugatuck resort last summer and was sentenced by Judge Fred T. Miles to pay costs of $105.91 and $500 fine within 24 hours or serve from 3 to 5 years in prison.

HOTEL SHOOTING SENTENCE BEGUN BY MARTIN QUIRK

CRIMINAL COURT.

Joseph Howard, robbery, sentenced to 1 year to life in the penitentiary by Judge Denis J. Normoyle.

Leonard Mueller, burglary, sentenced to 1 year to life in the penitentiary by Judge Robert C. O'Connell.

Martin [Sonny Boy] Quirk, former south side beer runner, who was sentenced on Jan. 21 to serve a year in the house of correction and to pay a fine of $300 by Judge John C. Lewe in the Criminal court on a charge of carrying concealed weapons, began serving the sentence yesterday.

Quirk was arrested on Nov. 15 after he fired his pistol at dishes in the Croydon hotel grill, 616 Rush street, narrowly missing several waitresses.

When he appeared at the house of correction, Quirk told Assistant Superintendent Frank Wolf that he is an excellent bookkeeper. He was assigned to that duty.

EXPLAIN POSITION OF CATHOLICS ON SOCIAL WELFARE

Speakers Demand an NRA by New Amendment.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Accredited interpreters made plain yesterday the meaning of the encyclical on social and economic justice which was promulgated by Pope Pius in 1931. These interpreters explained the influence which the pontiff's proposals must have on political and industrial movements in America if the ideals of the encyclical are to be converted into action.

Two days of conferences devoted to ways and means of realizing Pope Pius' ideals came to a close last night in the Palmer house. These conferences were conducted under the sponsorship of Cardinal Mundelein and under the honorary chairmanship of Bishop Bernard J. Sheil.

The first and most positive demand, often repeated by speakers yesterday, was for amendments to the United States constitution to make it feasible for congress to determine wages and hours of labor, and to regulate prices of farm products.

Two Leaders Urge Changes.

The first to call for such an amendment was the Rev. James A. Magner of Quigley Preparatory seminary, 103 East Chestnut street. The Rt. Rev. Msgr. John A. Ryan, professor of ethics in the Catholic University of America, in Washington, brought the gathering to a close with the same appeal at the final dinner. Father Magner defended the action of the church in seeking specific legislation.

"The most ready way of attacking the clergy who raise their voices in protest again social and economic abuses is to accuse them of radicalism," said Father Magner. "In certain quarters of conservative society as well as in the camp of violent communists, Pope Pius XI. is denounced as a radical."

Monsignor Ryan termed the loss of NRA a setback to the goal of the encyclical.

Views State Acts as Futile.

"If the NRA had not been abolished," said he at last night's dinner, "it could have been developed within ten years into the system recommended by the pope. As things are, a constitutional amendment is prerequisite to the establishment of that system. Adequate regulation by the various states of industry, commerce, agriculture, labor and finance is impracticable because they can never agree on uniform economic legislation."

Earlier in the day, Monsignor Ryan disputed the opinion expressed in a conference address by Thomas J. Norton, Chicago, constitutional lawyer, that existing statutes are sufficient to achieve both recovery and justice if acts now on the books are enforced.

Reference to Senator Borah by Mr. Norton elictited this reply from Monsignor Ryan:

"Let me see. Senator Borah was born in 1865. His thinking is that of the year of his birth."

The Road to Fascism.

Mr. Norton warned against further centralization of power through constitiutional change as leading to a supergovernment or Fascism.

To this Monsignor Ryan replied:

"A constitution is no protection against supergovernment or Fascism. Armies do not respect a constitution. Would a constitution have stopped Mussolini? Business men haven't learned anything from the depression. If you think they have, read the program of the National Association of Manufacturers, or read the expression of a certain banquet speaker at Washington last Saturday night. Capitalism during the last 50 years has been committing suicide.

"Business is operating under mental limitations rather than ethical. I do not like the implication that business men are not highly moral citizens. The only trouble with business men is that they are stupid for their own sakes. Two years ago they were 'converted,' but now they are unrepentent."

Another Attack on Smith.

Monsignor Ryan alluded to the address of Alfred E. Smith before the American Liberty league. The clergyman's point of view was upheld by S. A. Baldus, editor of the Extension magazine, which is the official journal of the Catholic Extension society of the United States, 360 North Michigana venue. Cardinal Mundelein is the chancellor of the society.

"Speaking as a Catholic layman, Al Smith's bitter attack on the administration seemed to me entirely lacking in Christian charity and justice," asserted Mr. Badrus. "There is one kind of damagog more dangerous that the crack pot who speaks harshly of the rich, and that is the demagog who deliberately and with malice of forethought arouses the rabble to hold the President of the United States—whoever he may be today, or next year or ten years hence—in contempt. Demagogy can descend to no lower depth."

Plea for Golden Mean.

Msgr. Ryan closed the conference with a plea against communism on one hand and "unrestricted competition and unregulated transactions which prevailed before the great depression" on the other hand.

"Both of these are extreme," said Msgr. Ryan, "and both are wrong."

ICKES APPEALS TO G. O. P. PROGRESSIVES TO BACK ROOSEVELT

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Secretary Ickes, representative of the non-Democratic midwest radicals in the cabinet, today issued a call to all Progressive Republicans in the nation to support President Roosevelt in the 1936 campaign.

The secretary asserted in his press conference that the number of Progressive Republicans voting for President Roosevelt would far outnumber the Conservative Democrats who might be led from the Democratic fold if Alfred E. Smith carries out his threat to "walk out" of the Philadelphia convention.

"I don't think there is any doubt that these people will vote for President Roosevelt," the secretary said. "From all I have seen the Republican party is going to be the party of reaction. It is necessary for liberals who are liberals to support the President."

AVOID FACTIONS, EDITOR WHITE WARNS THE G.O.P.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—On returning from a trip to the orient, William Allen White, Kansas publisher and Republican leader, said today he was "surprised and unhappy to see, after four months out of the country, that the Republican campaign definitly has drifted into one of candidates rather than an honest attempt to define issues. Half a dozen Republicans seem about ready to go into the states and battle for delegates. Unfortunately these candidates do not dramatize the issues. They are after votes and naturally are hiding their convictions.

"To see the Republican party enter a squabble for candidates, the same old political row, is disheartening. To win, we Republicans first must deserve to win. Why can't we have a convention of uninstructed delegates who are bent on solving the terrible problem that threatens our country, not a bunch of politicians trying to scramble on the band wagon of some third-rater who is more anxious to go to the White House than serve his country?"

Mr. Nash marked his anniversary by playing 18 holes of golf and holding business conferences with several of his dealer organization in the Los Angeles area, while a family gathering in the evening.

TELLS OF NEW FISCH LETTER IN LINDBERGH CASE

Cuban Attorney Reports Marked Money Query.

HAVANA, Jan. 28.—(AP)—A prominent Cuban banker said tonight it was possible some of the Lindbergh ransom bills might still be in circulation here, if they were introduced into the island following the pay-off of nearly four years ago.

The banker, who asked that his name be withheld, made the comment after Dr. Arturo Gonzalez Alfonso, an attorney, had asserted he saw a letter signed "Isidor Fisch" several years ago which asked about the cashing of "some marked money."

Isidor Fisch, now dead, was blamed by Bruno Richard Hauptmann, condemned kidnaper of the Lindbergh baby, as the man who "planted" the telltale ransom notes in the Hauptmann home.

Cuba "Hot Money" Haven.

The banker, who said he did not recall whether Cuban banks ever made a serious effort to check for the Lindbergh ransom bills, asserted Cuba always has been a haven for changers of "hot" money.

American authorities only recently came to realize that fact, he added.

Cuba, the banker pointed out, is the only country outside the United States where American paper money is used almost to the exclusion of all other money.

This was especially true, he said, at the time the Lindbergh ransom was paid, when Cuba had no paper money of its own and almost all business negotiations were conducted by payment of American paper money. Much of this currency remains in circulation on the island once it gets here, he explained.

Tells of Meeting German.

Dr. Gonzalez, who is president of the Havana provincial assembly of the Unionist party, asserted he met a man at the German consulate several years ago who appeared to be a German, but who was not connected with the consulate.

"One day he asked me if it was against Cuban law to change American marked money that had been used in a kidnaping ransom," the lawyer said. "He then showed me a letter which asked him to change the money, and that letter was signed 'Isidor Fisch.'"

Gonzales said he believed the man, whom he knew only by sight, still to be in the vicinity of Havana. The request was made, he asserted, before Hauptmann was arrested and before Fisch's name entered the public eye.

Joseph Pavlak, 23 years old, 1823 Cullerton avenue, a tailor, died yesterday in the county hospital of injuries he received in a fall on stairs Wednesday night.

HOFFMAN REVIVES PROSPECT OF NEW "JAFSIE" QUESTIONING

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 28.—(AP)—Gov. Harold G. Hoffman revived today the prospect that Dr. John F. [Jafsie] Condon will be questioned anew about the Lindbergh ransom negotiations.

The governor, who has said repeatedly that Dr. Condon should have been questioned before he left for a winter vacation in Latin America, asserted late today Dr. Condon's "conduct and conflicting statements warant far more than the cream puff type of questioning to which he has been subjected previously."

Dr. Condon, on arrival in Panama a week ago, offered to return to the United States voluntarily, but Attorney General David T. Wilentz told the aged Bronx schoolmaster there was no necessity for doing so. Dr. Condon left the country with the attorney general's permission.

Bruno Richard Hauptmann, with his 30 day reprieve granted him by Gov. Hoffman nearly half gone, showed no signs today of changing his oft-told story that he knew nothing about the kidnap murder of Charles A. Lindbergh Jr.

HEARERS CHEER MILLS' ATTACKS ON NEW DEAL

New York, Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Ogden L. Mills, former secretary of the treasury, tonight denounced the New Deal as the American counterpart of the communistic state of the soviet union, the Fascist corporate state of Mussolini, and the totalitarian state of Hitler. He spoke before the Ivy Republican club.

Mr. Mills described the New Deal legislation as endangering the American structure of free government. He was interrupted with prolonged applause when he added:

"These New Deal measures are being knocked out one by one by the United States Supreme court because they conflict with the fundamental principles on which this republic was built."

Mr. Mills, after citing Russia, Italy, and Germany as presenting a series of government controled industrial monopolies, where the individual was a servile subject of the state, added:

"These things would be only academic to Americans but for the fact that the so-called New Deal is an American offshoot of a world-wide movement that threatens to overrun and overwhelm the civilization that a short time ago seemed free from any attack."

WOMEN SNUBBED BY THE NAVY FOR COLBY'S SPEECH

Officers Decline to Talk Before Conference.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—The Women's Patriotic Conference on National Defense was snubbed by the navy today because the organization had permitted a bitter attack on President Roosevelt by Bainbridge Colby, secretary of state in the Wilson administration, at a conference session last night.

The navy speakers who rebuffed the women's group are Rear Admiral Frank B. Upham, Capt. Edward A. Duff, chief of navy chaplains, and Brig. Gen. Thomas Holcomb, commandant of the marine corps school at Quantico. The army did not follow the navy's lead. Maj. Gen. Andrew Moses of the office of the chief of staf fulfilled a speaking engagement.

At first the cancellations were shrouded in mystery. The navy department reported that Admiral Upham had been seized with a minor illness and was taken to the navy hospital; Capt. Duff, who was to have delivered the invocation, sent regrets without an explanation, and Brig. Gen. Holcomb, according to the marine corps headquarters, had been called away on important business.

President Roosevelt at his press conference refused to comment on the incident.

Admiral Upham confirmed rumors that the cancellations were a rebuke to the organization late in the day.

FISH OUTLINES G. O. P. TASK IN M'KINLEY DAY SPEECH AT CANTON, O.

Canton, O., Jan. 28.—(AP)—An outline of what Republicans can do if returned to power came tonight from Representative Hamilton Fish Jr. [Rep., N. Y.] in a McKinley day address before Republicans of President William McKinley's birthplace.

His outline included "retirement of President Roosevelt to private life" and "political liquidation of the brain trusters," repeal of "New Deal experiments," preservation of the constitution, a "constructive and constitutional agricultural program," a start "toward balancing the budget," and a policy of "millions for defense but not one dollar to send American soldiers to fight other peoples' battles."

Stephen A. Day, Evanston, Ill., attorney and constitutional authority, declared President Roosevelt is "a subservient follower of the Tugwell philosophy, hatched in the halls of Columbia university, and grown to maturity in the bloody streets of Moscow."

HEARING REVEALS 4 RELIEF CLIENTS AS 12 YEAR ALIENS

Four relief clients who admitted they had lived in the United States for more than twelve years without becoming citizens were fined by Municipal Judge Thomas A. Green yesterday. Paul Ruska, 45 years old, was fined $200 for operating a moonshine flat at 4404 South Ashland avenue. Paul Zowicke, 55 years old, and Michael Kuzik, 44 years old, of the Ashland avenue address, and Andrew Dubeck, 54 years old, of 4803 South Paulina street, were fined $100 each as inmates. The men were sent to the Bridewell to work out their fines, and Judge Green ordered that the relief authorities be notified.

FLYERS LOST ON REDFERN SEARCH ARE FOUND SAFE

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana. Art Williams and his co-pilot, unreported on a search for the long missing Paul Redfern, are safe on the Dutch Guiana frontier, authorities here were advised late today.

A message said Williams and Harry Wendt were at Springlands, a border town on the Corentyne river. They had left Georgetown Sunday to renew their search for Redfern, who disappeared in 1927 on a projected flight from Brunswick, Ga., to Rio de Janeiro.

Williams decided to land his plane on the river near the town during a violent rain storm yesterday, the message explained.

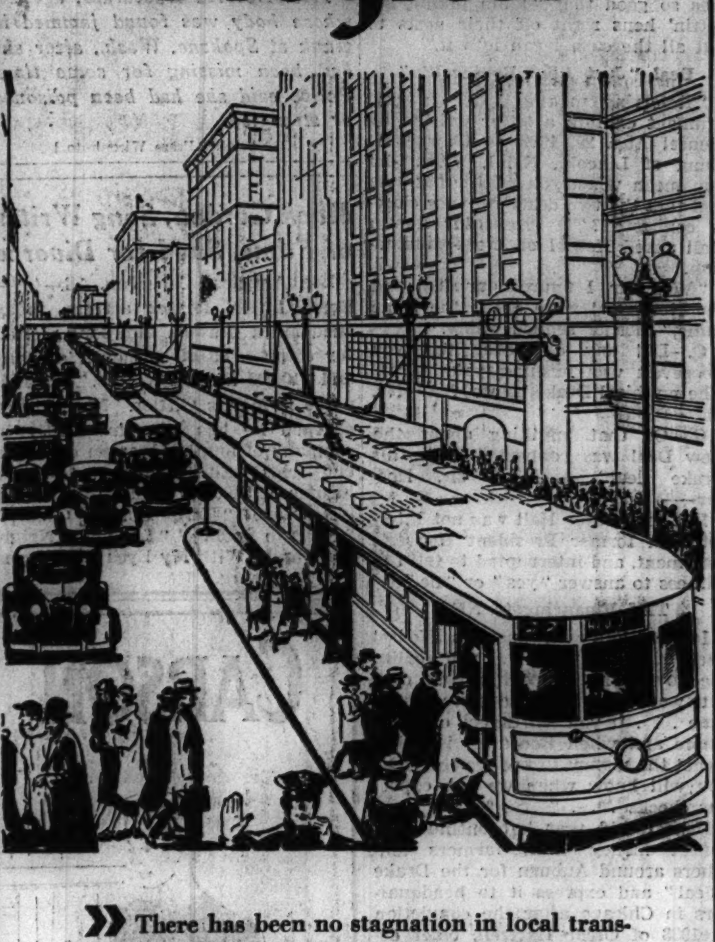
Transportation Progress



There has been no stagnation in local transportation so far as the Chicago Surface Lines is concerned. Though operation under temporary extensions of the franchise since 1927 has been a handicap, it has not stopped improvement and adequate maintenance of plant and equipment.

In these nine years, some $90,000,000 has been spent in renewal and maintenance of the properties. Today they rank among the best maintained transportation systems in the country.

In these nine years more than $9,000,000 also has been spent for new extensions and equipment. A total of 102 new cars, 120 trolley buses, and 62 gasoline buses have been purchased and put into service. One hundred miles of bus routes have been established and 32 miles of rail extensions have been built.

The trolley bus installation is still the largest in the world.

The public has shown that it appreciates this effort to provide service in the face of all difficulties. In 1927 the Chicago Surface Lines was carrying a little more than 75 per cent of all those using local transportation in Chicago. Today it is carrying 80 per cent.

Maximum service at the lowest rate of fare in the city has won popular approval.

SUPREME COURT DEFENDED AFTER ATTACK IN HOUSE

Both Parties Rally to Its Support.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—A fiery attack upon the United States Supreme court, delivered by Representative O. H. Cross, Texas Democrat, was greeted with applause in the house today. Immediately, however, some of the leading legislators on both sides of the chamber rallied to a spirited defense of the court and its power to declare acts of congress unconstitutional.

Asserting that the coming doom of all social legislation passed by this congress could be read in the implications of the court's invalidation of the AAA last Jan. 6, Cross demanded passage of the bill he has introduced which would strip the high court of the right to decide upon the constitutionality of laws, except when a state makes an original application for an interpretation of an act.

Questions Power of Court.

The Cross measure would prevent an appeal to the Supreme court from the decisions of any state or federal court. Inasmuch as direct appeals to the high court are strictly limited under the law, the act, if passed by congress and approved by the President, would greately reduce constitutional interpretations of congressional acts by the court.

"Those nine men—in fact, only six of those nine men in many cases—have set themselves above the congress and the people," shouted Cross. "And they are out of reach of the congress and the people, holding their jobs for life and accountable to no one. Nothing in the constitution gives them the right to declare a law unconstitutional."

Cross in a lengthy review of the court's history cited many of its historical decisions and voiced the conclusion that the court had arbitrarily seized the right to declare acts unconstitutional.

Democrats Defend Court.

The Texan was vociferously applauded at the end of his 45 minute oration. Then, somewhat to the surprise of those who have considered the Democratic majority openly resentful to the court's decisions, first one Democratic leader, then another, came forward to ridicule Cross' bill and dispute his arguments.

Hatton W. Sumners [Dem., Tex.], chairman of the judiciary committee, attempted to interrupt Cross several times, apparently with the desire of disputing his arguments, but Cross refused to yield.

The usually radical Tom Blanton, Texas Democrat, was another who opposed Cross' contentions. The legal way to limit the power of the court was to adopt an amendment to the constitution, he pointed out. He declared that the bill proposed by Cross was utterly illegal.

Republicans, led by Representative John B. Hollister of Ohio, also answered the challenge voiced by Cross.

"Isn't it true," inquired Representative Theodore Christianson [Rep., Minn.], "that the facility with which democratic institutions were wiped out in Germany and Italy was due to the fact that the courts in those countries had no such power as has our Supreme court?"

"As I get it," remarked Representative Harold Knutson, another Minnesota Republican, "Mr. Cross wants to do away with the umpire and leave it to the fans to decide all plays."

MOVE TO BLOCK 7½ MILLION FOR RELIEF FALTERS

Downstaters Muster but 28 Votes.

BY STANLEY ARMSTRONG.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Downstate Democrats, who are acting in a group to support Gov. Horner's opposition to an appropriation of 7½ millions for relief from the state general revenue fund, suffered a temporary defeat today in the Illinois house.

Led by Nicholas L. Hubbard [Dem., Mount Pulaski,] the downstaters found only 28 representatives in their ranks in a vote taken on Hubbard's motion to kill a 7½ million appropriation bill by striking the enacting clause. Republicans and Cook county Democrats polled 60 votes in opposition to the Hubbard proposal. The bill then was advanced to third reading, and the present intention is to call it for passage tomorrow.

Introduced by Boyle.

The appropriation bill was introduced last night by Rep. James P. Boyle [Dem., Chicago]. The amount carried in it meets the demand of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission for funds to supplement until May 1 the 2 millions obtained monthly for relief from the state sales tax. It would be distributed by the IERC or any other agency provided by the general assembly.

"It has been shown that the 7½ millions is needed to feed those still on the relief rolls," said Benjamin S. Adamowski, Chicago, Democratic majority leader. "What does Hubbard propose as a substitute?"

"We propose to substitute house bill No. 10," replied Hubbard.

Would Abolish IERC.

The latter measure, introduced by Representative F. W. Lewis [Dem., Robinson], proposes to abolish the IECR and authorize the governor, lieutenant governor, and state auditor to distribute relief money to the counties. It would give to relief one-half of the sales tax, approximately 3 millions monthly, instead of the present one-third.

In view of statements that his bill wouldn't provide sufficient funds for relief, Lewis in a late afternoon session introduced a new bill that would appropriate 2½ millions from the general fund to be used in February.

Then, he amended his other bill to provide that two-thirds of the sales tax—approximately 4 millions monthly—should go to relief during March and April. After April the diversion of sales tax money to relief would return to the present one-third, which raises approximately 2 millions each month for that purpose. He also eliminated the clause abolishing the IERC, but put in a section giving the state auditor authority to disburse relief funds to the counties, which would cut off IERC revenues.

Lyons Amends Bill.

Earlier, Richard J. Lyons [Rep., Libertyville] amended his bill for the abolition of the IERC so as to make the death blow effective May 1. His argument was that relief work might be thrown into chaos unless an opportunity was afforded the counties to get ready to take over the task.

In its evening session, the senate adopted amendments to house bill No. 8, which would give Cook county's bureau of public welfare the same powers and duties in relation to old age pensions as house bill No. 32 gives to welfare commissions in other counties. The bill was advanced to third reading. Senator Harold G. Ward [Dem., Chicago] said that if the bill was adopted tomorrow and the house concurred in the senate amendments the first special session could, in his opinion, be adjourned sine die.

Two new relief bills were introduced by Senator James O. Monroe [Dem., Collinsville]. They would compel the levying of a state-wide property tax of 30 cents on each $100 of valuation to raise relief revenues, and permit the state to issue tax anticipation warrants against the levy.

BUSINESS FAVORS RAILROAD SWITCH TO EASTERN TIME

Chicago Survey Reveals Only One Dissenter.

BY LLOYD WENDT.

Chicago business men agree that the railroads should be permitted to change to eastern standard time when the city makes the change on March 1, according to a survey of representative firms completed yesterday.

In the survey the heads of various concerns were selected at random from the various fields they represent. With only one exception they approved the action of the city council in adopting the change to eastern time. The only one who voiced opposition said he wanted the city and the railroads on a single time standard, but he objected to eastern time as the standard.

The business men are agreed also that it will be unnecessary for them to appear before the interstate commerce commission here on Feb. 24 when the city will ask that the railroads entering Chicago be allowed to conform to eastern standard time. They feel that the city will be able to support its petition without aid. The only question before business, they said, is whether Chicago will have a single time standard or a confusing double standard, and added that the solution to the problem is obvious.

Trafic Men for Change.

Trafic managers of the various companies all urged that the railroads be put on eastern time with the city. This, they pointed out, would avoid confusion after March 1, would attune Chicago with the eastern industrial area of which it is a part, and would obviate the twice a year time changes necessary under the summer daylight time schedules.

Some of the officials of firms, who were willing to be quoted, commented as follows:

WILLIAM TRUESDALE, treasurer, the Inland Steel company: "We certainly should not have two time systems in Chicago. I favor eastern time, and believe that the railroads should be permitted to make the changes."

M. A. GRAETTINGER, executive vice president of the Illinois Bankers association: "I am convinced that the railroads should be allowed to go on eastern standard time. Since I have not had opportunity to discuss this with other officials, I am not qualified to speak for the entire organization, but I very much favor the change."

Sees No Disadvantages.

D. W. PRATT, western sales manager, International Paper company: "I think that the railroads should certainly be permitted to change time."

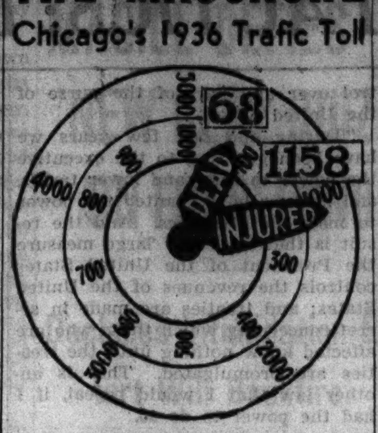
DAVID A. GUBBINS, manager, International Smelting and Refining company: "The railroads should be permitted to make the time change. That will mean that eastern time will offer many advantages and no disadvantages."

MISS E. A. WHITE, manager, Fruit Products company: "We have favored the city's change to eastern time and we want the railroads to make the change also. Eastern time lengthens our business day by an hour, since we have close relation with the east. At the same time we gain more chance for open air and sun."

MAURICE L. ROTHSCHILD, president of Maurice L. Rothschild company: "Since the city has adopted eastern time, effective March 1, the railroads should certainly be allowed to make the change. It will avoid confusion for the public."

THE MASSACRE

Chicago's 1936 Trafic Toll



Over 98 per cent of the city's automobile fatalities are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway.

4 HURT IN CRASH OF AUTOMOBILE WITH STREET CAR

Harry Huxhold, 42 years old, 631 Thomas avenue, Forest Park, commissioner of public works in the village, and three other men riding in an automobile with him, were seriously injured last night, in a collision with a street car at Van Buren and Clinton streets.

The others injured are Clarence Chubb, 34 years old, 234 Villa street, Elgin, driver of the car; Charles Buckley, 25 years old, and Carl Fern, 27 years old, both of Barrington. All four men were taken to the County hospital.

Chubb's car was traveling west in Van Buren street, and struck the center of the street car at the street intersection. There were no passengers on the street car.

Thaddeus Johnson, 50 years old, 7550 Coles avenue, a railroad switchman, was probably fatally injured last night when his automobile, which police said he was driving on the wrong side of the street, struck a street car in 79th street at Greenwood avenue. He was taken to the Jackson Park hospital.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 79 persons had been killed in automobile accidents in Cook county since Jan. 1, according to the coroner's office. During the same period 68 were killed and 1,158 injured in trafic accidents within the city limits of Chicago.

Dr. Townsend of Pension Fame Is Ill at His Home

Long Beach, Cal., Jan. 28.—(AP)—Dr. F. E. Townsend, 67 year old founder of the old age pension plan bearing his name, denied himself to visitors today because of a severe cold. Mrs. Townsend described her husband as "quite sick."

SUPERHIGHWAYS AIDED BY STATE STREET COUNCIL

98.5% of Deaths Could Be Avoided, Says Massen

BY HAL FOUST.

Walter L. Gregory, after being elected chairman of the directors of the State Street council, yesterday announced that his organization will give active support to the promotion of superhighway construction in Chicago. Mr. Gregory, vice president of the Palmer house, was succeeded as president of the council by Henry G. Hart, general manager of the Boston Store.

The election of officers followed a luncheon in the Palmer house at which the State street business men heard elevated highway proposals described by Hugh E. Young, chief engineer of the Chicago Plan commission, and by Ald. John A. Massen [48th], chairman of the council trafic committee.

Growth of City At Stake.

"Our procedure in furthering the superhighway promotion," said Mr. Gregory, "will be determined at a future meeting of the board of directors. Most of us have been convinced that the continued growth of Chicago depends upon whether the city is to have facilities for rapid and safe automobile transportation."

Ald. Massen told the group that an analysis of Chicago's 788 automobile deaths in 1935 shows that all except 12 were of a character physically impossible on an elevated highway.

Nearly All Could Be Saved.

"As in previous years, 98.5 per cent of our motor toll would have been prevented had this trafic moved over pavements free from pedestrians, cross trafic, parking, and such conflicts as do not occur on a properly designed elevated highway," said the alderman. "For $100,000,000, there could be built 160 miles of such superhighways, which would carry two-thirds of Chicago's trafic and eliminate two-thirds of its automobile fatalities."

BEG YOUR PARDON.

An item yesterday said Vincent Granatelli, held for questioning in the murder of his former wife, Caroline, told police he spent the night of the murder at the home of Nelson Corkins, 4338 North Sacramento avenue. Joseph J. Roeske, who lives at that address, said last night that no one by the name of Corkins has ever lived there.

BURGLARS LOOT BOWMAN DAIRY CHIEF'S HOME

Dr. David B. Peck, 1233 Crain street, Evanston, president of the Bowman Dairy company, reported to the police in the suburb yesterday that he routed burglars looting his home early in the day, but they took with them more than $300 worth of silver and linen.

Dr. Peck was awakened by footsteps on the second floor of his home, he said. When he appeared in the hall, the intruders scampered downstairs and out through a side door. A silver set and some pieces of Italian linen were missing. The telephone wires had been cut.

Shortly after Dr. Peck appeared at the station, Robert H. Gault, professor of psychology at Northwestern university, informed the police that his home at 2332 Bryant street, Evanston, had been looted of $325 worth of silver and linen. Police believe the same burglars were responsible.

Grant $35 a Week to Wife of Hat Manufacturer

Superior John Rudolph F. Desort yesterday granted $35 a week temporary alimony to Mrs. Ida Stern, 925 Glengyle place, in her pending divorce suit against Murray Stern, 622 Gary place, general manager of a hat manufacturing company.

Midwife Guilty of Murder on Dead Woman's Charge

A jury in the Criminal court of Judge Joseph Burke last night found Mrs. Katie Klotz, 57 years old, 5759 South Rockwell street, guilty of murder by abortion in the death of Mrs. Rose Casper, 24 years old, 6237 Blackstone avenue. Her punishment was fixed at 20 years in prison. Judge Burke will hear a motion for a new trial today. Mrs. Casper died Oct. 6 in Jackson Park hospital. Before her death she signed a statement accusing Mrs. Klotz, a midwife.

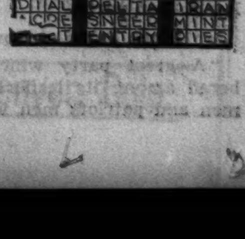
YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED



BORAH HITS 'BACK ROOM' CONVENTION TACTICS; DEMANDS HONEST PLATFORM

SENATOR BLAMES PARTY FOR ILLS THAT BESET IT

Favors Age Pensions and Assails Neutrality.

Protects His Hecklers.

"Is Borah the only man to be placed on the carpet?" he said in reply to one heckler. "Let them ask the other candidates for President. Let them take their platform to Cleveland. Let them take it to Philadelphia."

To cries of "Put him out!" Senator Borah objected.

"I believe in free speech," he shouted, holding up his right hand.

"I am willing to state my position on anything," Senator Borah replied to another heckler. "I may be wrong, but I am never in doubt," he added, bringing laughter.

When Senator Borah arrived, accompanied by Former State Republican Chairman W. Kingsland Macy, a phalanx of patrolmen blocked off the colored pickets and the senator entered the hall without reading the painted protests about 25 of them were carrying.

Lights Upset Him.

During his speech newsreel cameramen turned on strong lights in an effort to get parts of his remarks, but the senator asked that the lights be turned off, as he could not speak without seeing his audience. He had to repeat his requests at intervals, and finally explained that he would pose after the meeting. This he did.

Senator Borah declared definitly for an old age pension, but his plan differed materially from that proposed by the Townsend plan. Saying that the modern industrial work had little use for a man more than 60 years old, Senator Borah declared he favored an old age pension of $50 or $60 a month instead of the $200 a month proposed by Dr. Townsend, and that, further, the recipient should not be compelled to spend the pension, as called for by the Townsend plan.

Senator Borah declared he was opposed to monopolistic power of price fixing by the great corporations, 1 per cent of which, he said, controled 90 per cent of the business of the United States, and issued a warning to those leaders of the Republican party who would seek guidance wholly from the past.

Depression "Man Made."

The American people, Senator Borah asserted, regarded the depression as a manmade depression and demanded economic freedom as well as political liberty.

"Those leaders who think that the American people will return to old practices and are leading the party in that direction are leading it to defeat," he declared. "We must meet the problems in a practical way."

Senator Borah, to the accompaniment of applause, declared for a policy of strict neutrality for the United States, adding that no considerations should induce the United States to abandon neutrality or assume responsibility for old world problems.

The senator then turned to a discussion of amending the constitution. He said there was no reason to be uneasy when the people had a chance to amend the constitution but that they should watch out when congress took it upon itself to make the constitutional changes.

He brought laughter by a reference to former Gov. Alfred E. Smith's speech last Saturday night.

Likens Al to Antony.

"It was your brilliant and distinguished ex-governor speaking over the dead body of the Chicago platform," Senator Borah said. "Nothing like it since Mark Antony stood over the body of Julius Caesar. As the adroit orator drew back the shroud from the dead platform, you could hear the anti-Roosevelt Democrats and the Republicans cheering to the echo. How they do love an insurgent when he is in the other party!"

William Ziegler Jr., chairman of the Progressive Republican state committee, and president of the New York Borah for President club, opened the meeting. Ziegler introduced Howard W. Ameli, former United States attorney, as chairman.

"CAMPAIGN SONG" FOR BORAH BROUGHT FORTH AT MEETING

New York, Jan. 28.—(AP)—The supporters of Senator William E. Borah for the Republican Presidential nomination brought forth a "campaign song" at his appearance in Brooklyn tonight.

Set to the tune of "U. S., That Means Us," it went:

"Borah rah, rah, rah,
Ring out his name far and wide,
Borah rah, rah, rah,
Join the cheer that swells the
the countryside,
Let all the nation hear his call,
A 'fair deal' a 'square deal' for all.
Borah rah, rah, rah,
The choice of Americans all."

The audience sang it.

TEXT OF BORAH SPEECH

New York, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Following is the text of the address by Senator Borah:

"Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen: I am deeply indebted to my friends for this opportunity to meet with so many of the people of the city of Brooklyn and the state of New York, and to interchange views with them upon political questions and the political situation.

"I do not flatter myself that I can bring to you any new or startling message. It is not my purpose to undertake to do so. But I do feel that a frank and free discussion of those problems with which we come in daily contact and which enter into our daily thinking and living that a discussion of these questions prior to the meeting at Cleveland may contribute greatly to the success of the party after the convention shall have adjourned.

"We approach the great contest of 1936 under circumstances and conditions most extraordinary, as extraordinary, perhaps, as may be found in the political history of the United States, and certainly as extraordinary as may be found in the history of the Republican party.

Finds Party at Low Ebb.

"A great party which has numbered among its leaders and statesmen and patriots men who not only are greatly respected but profoundly revered by the entire nation; a party whose outstanding record for human freedom, human happiness, and human progress approaches the great contest of 1936 with less influence, less authority, and less power in national affairs that at any time in its history.

"There must be a reason for this and in my opinion the reason is within the party and not outside the party.

"It is for you and for me and all who are interested in the traditions and principles of the party—yes, all who are interested in the welfare of a nation—to ascertain, if we can, the reason for this extraordinary condition.

"It is important that we ascertain that reason before we meet in national convention and speak again to the American people. If we do not ascertain that reason before we go to Cleveland I am afraid we might not be exactly accurate as to the reason.

Seeks Reason Among Citizenry.

"If we do not ascertain the reason for this extraordinary condition of the party, out among the people, among the voters, among the men and women who have suffered greatly and reflected deeply upon our present question; if we do not ascertain the reason from them, I fear we shall not secure the accurate reason from the uninstructed delegates in the Cleveland convention.

"It is my view that this country normally is Republican.

"It is my conviction that there is just as much need and just as much demand for the Republican party of Abraham Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt as there was when these great leaders shaped the course and measured the destiny not only of the party but of the nation.

Welfare of Nation as a Whole.

"Issues may change and conditions may change, but the principles upon which a great party is built do not change. And the principles upon which they built their power as political leaders rested upon the fact that every political policy and every political principle was tested by the effect which it would have upon the average man and woman in the United States.

"They did not array class against class; they did not assail groups. But these great leaders did insist that the great policies of the party should be tested by their effect upon the nation as a whole. And that becomes our task in the beginning of 1936—to ascertain, if we can, the policies and principles which involve and take care of the interests and the welfare of the American people as a whole.

"The most important single event in the practical politics of America is the selection of a candidate for the presidency. That is the source of all political power in the United States. And if the people do not have a part in selecting the candidate for the presidency, they are divorced from the source of political power in the United States.

World's Most Powerful Figure.

"The President of the United States is the most powerful political figure in the world today. The presidency is the most powerful political position in the world today.

"The President of the United States speaks for his nation to all the nations and peoples of the world. He, more than any one else, molds and directs and shapes our relations with all the peoples of the world. He is commander in chief of the army and the navy. He has 90 per cent of the war making power, although technically it is somewhere else.

"He appoints countless thousands of federal appointees, from the highest to the lowest, and they are becoming so numerous that they accompany you in all your affairs of daily life. And by reason of this power of appointment and by reason of his position under the constitution, he is the directing force in the molding of domestic legislation.

"So I say that the President of the United States is the most powerful political figure in the world today, and unless the people have a word, a say, a voice in selecting the President of the United States, they lose their grip upon the political forces which control the United States.

Seeks Rule for Fitness.

"You doubtless read in your great papers recently the long and learned story of my great unfitness for the presidency. Now, I am not going to, tonight or at any other time, indulge in what must be pleasant pastime, that of regaling one's personal qualifications for that high office, but having raised the question of fitness relevantly and early, that brings up the most important pre-convention question that we can consider, and that question is, who is going to determine the fitness and how is it going to be determined?

FITNESS IS VITAL

"I want to discuss that briefly. I think it a matter of very great moment; in fact, I do not know of anything more important to the public than who is going to determine the fitness of the candidate and how it is going to be determined. It does not make so much difference that any particular individual be nominated at Cleveland as it does that the person who is nominated shall have the confidence and the support of the rank and file of the Republican party.

"What I desire to know, therefore, and what I desire to be informed concerning, is who is going to determine this fitness, and how.

"Is it going to be determined in the open, after full discussion as to qualifications and views, after the delegates have declared their position, with the voters taking part, in so far as practicably possible to do so, or is it going to be determined in secret conclave, behind closed doors, long after midnight, under conditions which I need not describe, with the voters excluded, and selfish and sordid interests pulling the strings?

People Have Right to Know.

"It is all right to raise this question of fitness. It is the proper thing to do, and it having been raised, I invite them into the open. Let them declare their position, both as to candidates and as to issues.

"This is not a very good year. And the times are not propitious for exclusiveness in the matter of selecting a candidate for the presidency of the United States.

"Not much is going to be taken for granted in this campaign. Everything will have to be tested and proved from platform to candidate.

"The people want to know. Party ties rest rather lightly upon the shoulders of the people at this time, as we unfortunately know, and a system which permits a few self-appointed and self-anointed gentlemen to select a candidate for the presidency, without consultation or advice of the voters, will not satisfy the millions of voters in this campaign who are wrestling with the problem.

"The voters of the state of New York and of many other states have not had a voice in selecting their candidate for President in thirty years. So far as that vital event is concerned, they have been disfranchised.

"What I say tonight, not only to the people of New York but for the people throughout the United States in this great crisis of the party, when we are fighting for our lives, in this great national emergency when we are dealing with problems which involve no less than the perpetuity of our institutions, let us call on these disfranchised men and women and ask them for their advice and their counsel and their say as to the fitness of the candidates and as to the platform upon which they shall stand.

ORATION FOR THE DEAD

"Last Saturday night over the radio I listened to the most eloquent and the most pathetic funeral oration that I ever have heard.

"It was your brilliant and distinguished ex-governor, speaking over the dead body of the Chicago platform.

"Nothing like it since Mark Antony stood over the body of Julius Caesar. And as the adroit orator of the evening drew back the shroud from the dead platform and pointed to the numerous wounds inflicted by those whom he called traitors, you could hear the anti-Roosevelt Democrats and the regular Republicans cheering to the echo. How they do love an insurgent when he is in the other party! It was fine.

Warns of False Confidence.

"But, Republican friends, let us not make the fatal mistake—the fatal mistake of assuming that this election will turn upon the question of a dead platform. It must turn on the question of a living platform. And if the Republican party does not give the people a living platform, you may be assured that the election will not be gratifying in its result.

"And if you are going to give them a living platform, a platform which represents the aspirations and the ideals of the American people, and the men and women who have suffered in recent years, if you are going to give them that kind of a platform, then I say to you: get just as close to the voters as you can when you are selecting the delegates to select the candidate for the presidency of the United States.

"I am talking to you rather plainly tonight. I do not know that it means anything to my advantage. It may be altogether to my disadvantage. But I am firmly convinced that the Republican party, if it follows its old practice and precepts, and consults and advises with the masses of this country, will win a marvelous victory upon the ides of next November.

Touches on Foreign Policy.

"That is all I am going to say on that subject now. I will be back in this state later and say something about it.

"I said in my opening remarks that I was going to say something upon the matters which we are thinking about daily, and with which we are concerned in our daily thoughts and living.

"The condition of world affairs today has brought to the front again the question of our foreign policy. There have been times in this country when the great body of the people looked upon the question of our foreign policy as a matter for diplomats, presidents, and secretaries of state, some of whom are dead. But no longer can that be true. Our foreign policy today touches the life, the welfare of the citizens at almost every corner.

"It may involve the question of additional taxes; it may involve the question of life; it may involve the question of the unity of the family. It may involve the dearest things in our life. Therefore, I want to say just a word about it tonight, especially in view of some things which have been said.

URGES REAL NEUTRALITY

"We have been dealing with the question of neutrality in the senate. It seems that every one wants to be neutral, but does not know just exactly how to be neutral. We ought to be neutral, but we cannot be neutral if we also take a hand in trying to stop some war.

"You may have your view about the war that is now going on, and I might have mine, but as a nation, as a people, we have no concern with and have no part in carrying on that war and we have no part in trying to stop the war.

"We would be glad if it would stop. We would all like to see peace, but the moment we take part in shaping the course of action of either nation, that moment we cease to be neutral and are participating in the political affairs of Europe.

"Now, with me, the fundamental principle, the basic thought of our foreign policy, should be complete aloofness and complete divorcement from all the political controversies and embroilments of Europe. We can serve neither the cause of world peace nor the peace of our own people in the political controversies and political embroilments of other nations.

"Our experience in this respect has been very costly. It ought to be instructive, and the only way to remain out of Europe is to remain out of Europe, with firmness, with dignity, with courtesy, with finality, without exception or modification.

"We ought to turn from the embroilments and controversies of the old world and concentrate the energies and the efforts and the thoughts of our own people in solving our own questions here at home. Territorial boundaries, territorial adjustments, the balance of power, the press of population, the instinctive self-preservation, as they call it, ought not to be permitted to distract or to divide the American people when they are dealing with questions which go to the very life of the American republic.

Exact Hour Is Not Vital.

"We had prepared bitter debate in the senate the other day over the question of the secret treaties, and just when it was that we first ascertained in this country that they existed. Now, it does not make any particular difference as to the particular hour and time when it was discovered that these treaties did exist, but now we know that they did exist; that in the midst of the war they divided up peoples like cattle and divided up territory to their utmost satisfaction, and when Mr. Wilson went to Paris he exerted all his power to modify or to change the secret treaties which had been made.

"But he could not do so, and today those secret treaties are interwoven in the woof and web of European life and a part of the international law of Europe, and the league of nations is designed to maintain and perpetuate them. And yet there are people in this country who say that we should pledge the American youth for the purpose of maintaining the basis of these treaties, which was that of spoilsmen.

Finds Duty Is Here.

"In other words, my friends, it is their civilization. We cannot change it. This is our civilization. It has been instrusted to us, and the best example we can set for peace and leadership is to establish here upon the western continent a republic which can solve the great problems which confront the people from decade to decade and from age to age.

"Other questions which are being discussed now relate to the constitution under which we live and to the Supreme court and other courts of the United States. The question constantly is asked: 'Shall we amend the constitution?' The forefathers very wisely provided a system for amending the constitution of the United States and I do not think we need be uneasy about any amendment when the people themselves approve it. If they make a mistake they will correct it.

Danger in Usurpation.

"But the dangers which we encounter are not amendments which may be proposed and made by the people themselves, but amendments to the constitution through the usurpation of congress or the usurpation of the executive department of the United States.

"I want to read a paragraph of Washington's farewell address. I hope I will not be expected to offer my apology to the Carnegie Foundation for reading from Washington's farewell address. Says Washington:

"'If, in the opinion of the people, the distribution or modification of the constitutional powers be in any particular wrong, let it be corrected by amendment in the way the constitution designated, but let there be no change by usurpation, for though this in one instance may be the instrument of good, it is a customary weapon by which governments are destroyed.'

"In other words, the wisest of our great leaders was perfectly willing for the people, when they contemplated it was necessary, to make a change; but he warned in particular against usurpation, because it is in this way that free governments are destroyed.

WOULD OUTLAW EDICTS

"Let me give you an illustration of what I mean. The legislative power under the constitution is vested in the congress of the United States. Now, for the last thirty years we have been building up in this country a system which makes laws, a system wholly outside of the congress of the United States.

"In other words, we have given to congress, or congress has given to all these department, the power to make rules and regulations the violation of which constitutes a crime. I say that is just as un-American and just as un-Republican as the decrees of Mussolini himself.

"No power to make laws should be granted to any one. And it has been asked in recent weeks what laws we would repeal. I would repeal every statute which undertakes to delegate to some clerk in a department the power to make rules and regulations, the violation of which constitutes a crime.

"The business men of this country know what that means. Any day you may violate a law that you never heard of. Any day you may violate a law that never has gotten outside of the department itself.

"I say that it is enough to call upon the citizens to obey the many laws which congress makes, without calling on them to obey the laws which a department makes.

"You know, one of the things which the founders had in mind above all other things was that of keeping the purse and the sword in separate hands. They never intended that the President of the United States, who is commander in chief of the army and navy, should have control over any part of the purse of the United States.

"During the last few years we have been granting to the executive the power to raise and lower tariffs, and now we have granted the power to make tariff treaties. And the result is that in a very large measure the President of the United States controls the revenues of the United States; and treaties are made in secret concerning which those who are affected know nothing until the treaties are promulgated. That is another law that I would repeal, if I had the power to do so.

Liberty in Courts.

"Now the second proposition to which I call your attention, and which is being discussed, is that of the independence of the judiciary. The courts of the United States ought to be kept clean from the control of politics, from the justice of the peace to the Supreme court of the United States.

"It sometimes is said that the Supreme court is not considerate of the interests of the common man, that they are far removed from the people, but I want to ask the people in this audience tonight, and on the radio, this simple question: Did you ever know of a country in which the common man, the average man and woman, enjoyed personal liberty or civil rights except in a country where they had an absolute, independent judiciary?

"The question has been mooted over the radio within the last few days that the Supreme court has no power to hold statutes unconstitutional because they may contravene the constitution, and it has been said in print and advertised to the people that the question of giving the court power to hold a statute unconstitutional was specifically presented to the federal convention and rejected.

Fathers Give the Power.

"Now let me say to you—and I challenge contradiction—that the specific proposition of authorizing the court to hold a statute unconstitutional was never presented at any time to the federal convention which made the constitution.

"Those who made it believed and so said upon the floor of the convention that when they made this constitution of the United States the supreme law of the land and at the same time gave the court control of all judicial questions, that that of itself constituted the power and conferred the power upon the court to declare statutes unconstitutional.

"I pause long enough to read just one statement from James Madison. Madison has been quoted more than once as disbelieving in the power of the courts to declare a statute unconstitutional. And let me read a statement from Madison when he was submitting the ten amendments to the constitution of the United States.

Terms Courts "Guardians."

"He said 'in submitting the amendments to the constitution, if they, the amendments, were incorporated into the constitution, independent tribunals of justice will consider themselves in a peculiar manner the guardian of those rights. They will be an impenetrable bulwark against every assumption of power upon the part of either the legislature or the executive.'

"The fathers understood perfectly that they were conferring the power upon the court to declare the statute, in contravention of the constitution, unconstitutional; and, my friends, upon that question there ought not to be any compromise in this campaign.

THE LYNCHING PROBLEM

"Now, in this connection a question has been submitted to me by Mr. Ashcroft of the 17th assembly district. He is a Progressive Republican. He is a colored gentleman. He is deeply interested in what is known as the Wagner-Costigan anti-lynching law. I respect his sincerity. I respect the sincerity of those who were placarding me on the streets tonight. I have no intention of challenging their sincerity. Of course they are sincere.

"This question is presented to me:

"'News articles appearing in the daily press state that your opposition to the Wagner-Costigan anti-lynching bill emanates from fixed opinion that the provisions of this bill are unconstitutional and will be so declared by the Supreme court of the United States.

"'Bearing in mind that local governments in the southern states are powerless to stop or punish savage lynching, and, therefore, bearing in mind that there are thirteen of these southern states, and they can effectively prevent an amendement to the federal constitution giving the United States government power to cope with this evil, will you please state your program as applied to this blight on American institutions?

Has Nothing to Conceal.

"There are two questions there, as I see it. The first relates to the anti-lynching bill.

"Now, my friends, I have nothing that I wish to withhold in the discussion of this question. In 1922, what was known as the Dyer anti-lynching bill was introduced in the congress of the United States. It was first considered in the house of representatives. During the debate in the house of representatives I became interested in the question; I read all the debates and I read all the decisions which were referred. I had more time then than I have now, and more energy, I suppose.

"When the bill came over to the senate, old Senator Nelson of Minnesota, chairman of the committee on the judiciary, said to me, 'Senator, I want you to take the subchairmanship of the subcommittee that is to pass upon this anti-lynching bill.' I said, 'Senator, I do not think I am the party to do it. I already have made up my mind. My mind is closed on this question. You should select some one who has an open mind on the question.'

Committee Is Unanimous.

"He said, 'You are the very man I want. You are interested in the question, and I want you to study it, restudy it if you will, and give us your report.'

"I did so. I reported it to the entire committee, and the entire committee passed upon it. And there was not a single member of that committee, not one, who didn't agree with me that the bill clearly was unconstitutional.

"The only senator who wanted it to go to the Superior court was Senator Stirling of South Dakota, who nevertheless agreed with the legal proposition which I had presented but thought it best to present it to the court again. Outside of that the committee was unanimous in believing that the law was unconstitutional. And upon that committee at that time sat such men as the late Thomas Walsh, a truly great lawyer and a truly great public servant.

Reported Out as Expedient.

"After it was announced that the committee had decided it was unconstitutional, then certain senators, who were not on the committee, insisted nevertheless that the bill should be reported out, that it should go to the floor of the senate, that a Republican committee should not refuse to report the bill out. Senator Nelson came to me about it. 'Well,' I said, 'senator, you can do as you please, but I do not change my view on constitutional questions through political expediency.'

"A majority of the members of the committee voted 'reported out,' with the understanding that if it came to a vote in the senate, they were going to vote against it, and so it was reported out.

"Now, every one knows that it was called up for a day or two, debated and then sent to the foot of the calendar. Thirteen years afterwards, what is known as the Costigan-Wagner anti-lynching bill, was presented. It was changed in its terms very considerably, but the constitutional question in my judgment was identical. Now, when the bill was up for consideration on the floor of the senate, Senator Costigan asked me my view as to the constitutionality of the measure.

MIND MADE UP

"I had not taken any part in the debate. I had made up my mind about it and would be content to pass my vote, but when he asked me the question, I answered it in accordance with my conviction.

"Now, my friends, I haven't a particle of doubt, not the slightest doubt, but what that bill contravenes the fundamental principles of the constitution of the United States, and therefore I have no discretion in the matter. I would be very glad, I am always willing and anxious to support any program for the control of lynching which the national government has power to enact.

"I do not care to offend any citizen. I certainly do not care to offend a race. It is nothing to me to incur the displeasure of a man. It is contrary to all my feelings and all my sentiment to incur the displeasure certainly of an entire race.

Unafraid of Consequences.

"But, my friends, when I am presented with a measure about the constitutionality of which I have no doubt, I must be permitted to say to you that I shall not change my position upon that question regardless of what the political consequences are to me.

"Now, the second part of the question is: 'What is your plan for removing this lynching bloc from our law?'

"The second part of this says: 'Will you please state your program for any blight on American institutions?' As I said a moment ago, my friends, if any one has a program which is constitutional, which the congress has power to pass, I will gladly support any such program.

"But you ask me when you present an unconstitutional measure, what my program is. I do not know of any power which the national government has to reach into a state and take hold of a violation of law within the state. I know of no such power. It has never been pointed out to me. When it is pointed out, and if it does exist, you can depend on me to support any measure which will deal with it."

"I know, as I said before, how seriously these people feel about the matter, but if there is anybody in the United States who ought to be interested in maintaining the integrity of the constitution of the United States it is the colored man, because that is his charter of liberty.

"My friend asked about the thirteenth, fourteenth, and fifteenth amendments. My friends, that has nothing in the world to do in my opinion with the anti-lynching bill. I do not think they will reach it at all.

"And let me ask you another thing. Is W. E. Borah the only man who is going to be called on the carpet? If the friends of the colored man think that I am the only culprit on this anti-lynching bill, let them ask the other candidates how they stand on this bill.

"Let them take their platform to Cleveland, introduce it, and get it passed. Let them take it to Philadelphia. Let them ask those men whose names have been associated with the presidency if they are for the anti-lynching bill. We will find out that I am not the only guilty person in this nation.

STAND ON PENSIONS

"There is another question which has just been presented which reads as follows: 'Many people have been discussing the so-called Townsend plan. In the light of political, social and economic results, what are your thoughts and what is your position in regard to the plan?'

"This is from a Progressive Republican. These Progressive Republicans are very numerous. I am delighted to see them. Now, my friends, I can answer that question best by telling you what my position is with reference to old age pensions, and then you can determine whether I am for the Townsend plan.

"I have been an advocate of old age pensions for years. I believe in it as a matter of social justice and a matter of economic sanity.

"When the so-called security bill which we passed at the last session was before the senate it provided for $15 a month for certain aged people. That seemed to me like a slow death. I offered an amendment to the bill to double it, and if the states had paid their same proportion it would have made $60 a month, but the amendment only got eighteen votes.

PERSONAL LIBERTIES

"Now, I have just a word to say upon another matter which I had intended to discuss more at length, but I have been detained with some other matters.

"We are very much interested in these days in the question of personal liberty, of preserving our civil rights under the constitution.

"But I want to say tonight that in my opinion, if we are going to preserve our political liberty, we must also be prepared to preserve our economic freedom.

"If there is a power in the United States which can prevent a business man from engaging in any kind of business which he sees fit to engage in and may do so, his political liberty is not worth very much to him after that has been accomplished. In other words, we ought to devote ourselves as a party to keeping the channels of interstate trade open to all business men who desire to engage in any kind of business.

"We will go into this campaign against regimentation. We are opposed to controling production. We are opposed to controling business. We are against regimentation. That in all probability will be the position of the party.

"But when we say to the people of these United States that we are opposed to regimentation they will ask us, 'What is your position with reference to the regimentation of monopoly? Do you propose that monopoly shall control the business affairs of the United States? And if we take the position that we are going back to the conditions of 1929, in my opinion, the American people will prefer government regimentation rather than monopoly regimentation.

"It generally is supposed that when those of us who are opposed to monopoly begin to speak in opposition to monopoly that we are attacking business. By no means. We are defending business; we are defending legitimate business, independent business, the honest business man, the man who lives under the laws of his country and in accordance with his conscience.

"I read the other day that in 1929—and now it is a little worse—one per cent of the corporations of the United States controled over sixty per cent of the corporate income of the United States, and that that one per cent controled prices upon practically everything that goes into the home, into the stomachs, or upon the backs of the people.

"I say to you, my friends, that for myself personally I am opposed to that monopolistic power which can fix prices for the people of the United States. I desire to say one thing in the way of a final suggestion to those who are to control the Republican party and direct the affairs of the party in the coming campaign in the coming year, and that suggestion is this.

FACE A CHANGED PEOPLE

"The American people are a different people in many respects since these devastating depression years. Their remorseless exaction, financial, material, and spiritual, during these unrelenting years have cut deep into their hearts and minds.

"They believe that this depression was a man-made depression, and as a result of it millions of them have suffered the tortures of the unspeakable hell of permanent unemployment. They have seen hunger and nakedness, and millions of children undernourished in a land of plenty where foodstuffs are being destroyed.

"They have been made to know what it is to approach dependent old age. They have lost their homes, millions of them, and seen their savings swept away. They, therefore, these people to whom we are to appeal in the coming campaign, see new problems, and they believe in a broader and higher humanity.

"They have seen the inequities and the injustices, the disparities and the inhumanities of our economic system. I do not believe that they have any hate in their hearts. I do not believe that they are disloyal to our institutions. I do not think there is any lack of appreciation of our great fundamental charter.

Freedom with Liberty.

"But it is my belief that the American people are convinced that if we are going to enjoy political liberty, we must also enjoy and possess economic freedom.

"They believe that our government under the constitution is strong enough and efficient enough to insure economic and social justice, as well as political liberty, to the people of the United States, and when you ask them, therefore 'Where do we go from here?' They will tell you in the coming campaign, 'We go forward, not backward.' Those leaders who think that the American people are going to return to many of the old practices of past years and are leading the Republican party in that direction are leading it to defeat.

"Perhaps no man, perhaps no group of men, perhaps no party can chart a course or map the detail of how they are to deal with all these new problems. But in the name of humanity let the Republican party recognize the problems and go forward and meet them in a practical way as these new and unparalleled conditions have presented them to the American people.

Would Follow Lincoln.

"Abraham Lincoln did not know the details when he started in his opposition to the extension of slavery. He did not know that some day he would end that institution, but he recognized the problem and he led his party forward, and as he marched on the way magnificent things were done and magnificent things happened.

"I do not know—perhaps no man knows—all the detail of how we are to deal with the problems that we have been confronted with, but we must recognize the problems; we must demonstrate to the American people that we propose to deal with them in the light of these new conditions which have been presented.

"We can not go back. We can not compromise. We must move forward, and the political party which does not move forward, which does not advance, which does not accept responsibility, will drop out and some other party will take its place."

BROWN DERBY HAS GONE HIGH HAT, SAYS ROBINSON

Senator Raps Back at Smith's Speech.

old cry had been raised against Theodore Roosevelt, Charles Evans Hughes, Woodrow Wilson, and every other public servant who ever attempted to perform a public duty on behalf of the whole people. Let me quote just two paragraphs from the Boston speech of yours on Oct. 24, 1928. You said:

"'The cry of socialism has been patented by the powerful interests that desire to put a damper on pregressive legislation.

"'Failing to meet the arguments fairly and squarely, special interest falls back on the old stock argument of socialism. The people of New York state are tired of the stock argument, have discovered that it means nothing, that it is simply subterfuge and camouflage, and I am satisfied that the people of the nation in their wisdom will so appraise it.'"

Robinson read excerpts from a New York newspaper which quoted Smith as urging at a dinner in the Astor hotel on Feb. 8, 1933, that the constitution be "shelved" during the depression and the President be clothed with dictatorial powers.

Costlier than the War.

"The former governor asserted that the economic crisis had caused more domestic damage than participation by the United States in the world war and he declared it must be fought as a democracy traditionally fights, 'by arrogating to itself the powers of a tyrant, a despot, or a monarch,'" Robinson quoted.

He continued the quotation as follows:

"'Let us look back a few years to 1917 and 1918,' Mr. Smith proposed.

"'What did we do then? Why, we took the constitution, wrapped it up and put it on the shelf and forgot it until the war was over.'"

Quotes "Dictator" Plea.

Replying to the charge that congress had abdicated its powers, Robinson quoted from Smith's Jackson day speech in Washington, Jan. 8, 1932, as follows: "'I would, therefore, suggest that congress empower the President of the United States to appoint a federal administrator of public works and put the President in such a position as he can clothe him with plenary power to cut, slash, dig into and run through all the red tape and through all the statutory restrictions that are placed upon the government in the progress of public works.

"'In other words, invoke the tactics of war, instead of dotting all the i's and crossing all the t's and going through all the cumbersome labor of peacetime performance when it comes to public works construction.'"

In reply to the charge that the New Deal is inciting class hatred, Robinson quoted from Smith's speech before the Harvard Alumni association on June 22, 1933.

Cites Workmen's Law.

"'Remember when we first spoke about the workmen's compensation act, the Court of Appeals of our own state set aside the first enactment as being contrary to the constitution. I remember when we enacted the child welfare act it was referred to as paternalism and socialism,'" he repeated.

"'Our whole democracy at that time seemed to be devoted to the part that constitutional law and statute law was intended only for the protection of property and of money, and the human element did not seem to enter into it.

"'The same has to do with the factory code; the same has to do with the provision for modern, up to date housing for our small income group; the same has to do with the development of state owned water power and the ownership by the state of the power at the site. Twenty years ago those were regarded as socialistic. I was referred to many times by my political opponents as a Socialist. But in the light of our present day legislation, Mr. President, I claim I am one of the ultraconservatives.

"No Fear for Dictatorship."

"'We have nothing to fear in this country from a dictatorship. There can be nothing of that kind in this country. It cannot live here. We are not organzed to carry it on. We have no desire for it. Great as may be the grant of temporary power in an emergency that congress may by congressional enactment put into the hands of a President the thing we have to fear in this country, to my way of thinking, is the influence of the organized minorities, because somehow or other the great majority does not seem to organize.'"

"Yes, those were Mr. Smith's own words. Somehow I think there must be two Al Smiths. One is the happy, carefree fellow behind whom we marched and shouted in 1928, proud of his principles and eager to place him in the White House. Now we have this other Al Smith, this grim visaged fellow in the high hat and tails who warns us that we are going straight to Moscow. If I recall correctly he came before the senate finance committee in 1933 and urged us to recognize soviet Russia and give it a five year moratorium on debt payments.

"Throughout his 1928 campaign Gov. Smith hammered at the power trust, denounced greed and special privilege, and faithfully promised the people that if he were elected he would establish a new order of things and bring about what he called a 'more equal distribution of prosperity.' Now he talks about stirring up class hatred, but what he said then sounded a good deal more like 'share the wealth' than it does like the comparatively mild statements of President Roosevelt.

"History will show and the record now will show that President Roosevelt has never advocated the adoption of a single measure designed to curb in any way the just liberties of any man.

Only "Condemns Himself."

"We anticipate unprincipled men, engaged only in promoting their own interests, to join the hypocritical and pharisaical chorus, to join the hue and cry of those who falsely accuse the President of the United States of trying to undermine the organic law of this country. But we don't expect it from high minded individuals who know better, from men who themselves have advocated far more drastic policies and programs than Mr. Roosevelt has pursued. If you condemn the President, Gov. Smith, you condemn yourself one hundred fold.

"The list of directors and officers of the American Liberty league reads like a roll call of the men who have despoiled the oil, coal and water power resources of this country. With notable exceptions, they were lined up against you in 1928, supplying the money with which Herbert Hoover went about the country denouncing you as a communist and a Socialist.

"Perhaps in the heat of battle sometimes our commanding officer, President Roosevelt, has employed the wrong tactics. Perhaps there has been confusion and loss of energy. Those things always happen when human beings attempt mass operations in hurried formation under the pressure of adverse fate. But those things never yet have justified a change of allegiance in the face of the enemy.

Hints at Coat Turning.

"It rests with no soldier who approaches the battle field under the flag of his leader to retire while the war continues. Above all things he must never go over to the enemy.

"Gov. Smith, I've read you the record. You approved NRA, you approved farm relief, you urged federal spending and public works, you urged congress to cut red tape and confer power on the executive, you urged autocratic power for the President, and you exposed with merciless logic the false cry of communism and socialism. The New Deal was the platform of the 'Happy Warrior.'

"The policies of the Liberty league have become the platform of the Unhappy Warrior."

MAGILL DEFIES NEW DEAL QUIZ ON FOES' FUNDS

Declares Intimidation Effort Will Backfire.

The New Deal questionnaire demanding details under oath about donations to anti-New Deal patriotic and investors' organizations will be a boomerang to the Roosevelt administration, Dr. Hugh S. Magill, president of the American Federation of Investors, one of the proscribed organizations, said last night.

Dr. Magill referred to the questionnaire, which demands that sworn statements of all details of contributions to the investors' federation, the American Liberty league, the Crusaders and similar organizations be submitted to the lobby investigating committee headed by Senator Hugo L. Black [Dem., Ala.], as "this latest evidence of New Deal inquisition."

"The questionnaire," he said, "is an obvious effort to intimidate business men from opposing the Brain Trust. The New Dealers failed to take into consideration that Americans are not easily intimidated. This effort to curb constitutional liberties will merely arouse Americans to fight.

Rights of Citizens Violated.

"It is another indication of the trend under the present administration toward complete disregard of the rights of the individual citizen," said Dr. Magill, "and the the assumption of autocratic powers by would-be dictators.

"This questionnaire, which is regarded as a personal insult by every good citizen who received it, is in keeping with the resolutions put through the senate when this committee of inquisition was set up. The resolutions provide, among other, things, for a full and complete investigation 'of all efforts to influence, encourage, promote, or retard legislation directly or indirectly.' The committee was empowered to investigate 'efforts to influence public sentiment.'

"Every American citizen who has any regard for his personal rights and liberties should consider seriously what such an investigation means and how closely it approaches methods used in Russia and Germany today.

Make Crimes of Opinoins.

"Notwithstanding the fact that ours is a government of the people, deriving its powers from the people, this little oligarchy, which at best can claim nothing more than being servants of the people, undertakes to intimidate and harass citizens, against whom there is not the slightest suspicion of wrongdoing, on the ground that such citizens may directly or indirectly have some interest in legislation, or may have been guilty of the heinous sin of 'influencing public sentiment.'

"Our confidence in the intelligence and courage of the American people, and in their devotion to liberty and justice is such that we feel sure they will not tolerate such attempts to intimidate and frighten them in the exercise of their constitutional rights and privileges. We believe the remedy for such petty tyranny is publicity. When the people come to understand clearly the real situation, instead of being frightened or intimidated, they will assert their rights, and drive out all such would-be dictators and autocrats."

DR. MAGILL TO CALL UPON CITIZENS TO COMBAT NEW DEAL

Dr. Hugh S. Magill, president of the American Federation of Investors, who last fall defied New Deal snoopers prying into his personal correspondence files, will be the main speaker before a meeting of the American Vigilant Intelligence federation tomorrow night. His subject is the duty of citizens to protect ideals of Americanism from encroachments by the brain trust.

DR. HUGH S. MAGILL.

Mr. Magill opposed legislation sponsored by the White House for further government competition with private industry in the production of power. In response to a senate subpena he turned over his business records to Washington investigators, then discovered them ransacking his personal files.

Tickets for the meeting may be obtained by calling Superior 4618. The session will be held in hall C-2, 12th floor, Chicago Real Estate Board building, 32 West Randolph street.

Ducks Frozen in Pond; Saws Ice and They Live

Newark, O., Jan. 28.—(AP)—George Neil of Newark, visiting his farm, found two muscovy ducks frozen in a pond. He tried to chop them loose, but failed. He sawed out a section of ice that held them, took them home and melted the ice. Today Neil reported the ducks as "doing as well as can be expected."

Court Upholds City Law for Disposal of Dogs

Circuit Judge John Prystalski yesterday upheld the right of the city to dispose of dogs to universities and experimental institutions under an ordinance passed in 1931. He sustained the city's demurrer to an injunction suit by the Illinois Anti-Vivisection society to restrain the use of dogs for experimental purposes. The judge ruled that the anti-vivisection society had failed to show any special damage which would permit it to bring the suit as a taxpayer. The society announced it would appeal.

Woman Ends Life in Home and Is Found by Mother

Miss Gertrude Smith, 29 years old, 2502 Smalley court, ended her life by hanging in her home yesterday. The body was found by her mother, Mrs. Margaret Smith.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farm

Test All Seed Corn.

January 28, 1936.

EVERY ear of corn used for seed on the Tribune Experimental farms this spring will be tested for germination and for disease before planting time. The farm managers think it would be a great risk for any corn belt farmer to plant untested corn, especially if the seed comes from the 1935 bumper crop. Much corn inferior for seed was produced last year because in many instances it was planted late in the spring and was caught by early killing frosts last fall. Seed corn has been still further damaged by the recent subzero weather.

The practice of testing seed corn has been followed for many years on both Tribune farms but the managers are going to use extra precaution this year in selecting corn from their own crops or in buying seed corn from other farmers. Good seed corn, especially the new hybrid strains and varieties, is expected to sell at a fairly high price this spring.

Results of tests being made at midwest agricultural colleges should serve as a warning to corn belt farmers, emphasizing the necessity for testing all corn before it is planted. For example, out in Iowa, one of the big corn growing states, seed corn has been showing a germination test ranging from 10 to 96 per cent, according to reports of individuals, the seed laboratories of the Iowa State college at Ames and test stations which have been set up in some counties.

Iowa seed corn experts suggest that farmers search for fodder corn which may be suitable for seed corn. Good quality seed corn may be found in cribs of 1933, 1934, and 1935 corn. Regardless of the corn used for seed it should be tested to make sure of its quality.

They further advise farmers that if cribs of corn were tested in early December, before cold weather set in, it should be tested again. Germination may have ben cut because in some instances there was a high percentage of moisture in the corn at the time it was tested.

Down in Indiana, farmers, working in coöperation with Purdue university at Lafayette, have found that testing seed corn is of great importance this year. More than 250 farmers in 74 Indiana counties sent samples of corn to Purdue to be tested by the rag doll method. The experts found that 92.4 per cent of the corn germinated, 44.3 per cent was moldy, 17.5 per cent was weak seed, and 3.3 per cent of the ears were affected with diplodia, or corn root rot. The tests did not show any great difference in the corn from different sections of the state.

Dr. C. T. Gregory, who made the tests, says that the most interesting information gathered from these data is the relatively high percentage of weak seed corn found in the samples sent in by the growers. In every case the farmers were asked to send samples of seed they expected to use this coming spring, and no special effort was made to pick out the best seed.

"It is evident," Dr. Gregory pointed out, "that the lateness of planting last spring and the early freezes in the fall injured about one ear in five. Zero weather in December, when the corn still contained considerable moisture, caused further damage.

"In one of the samples tested, which was from a field selected and rack dried seed, almost all of the kernels were dead. Our tests show that all seed corn should be carefully culled and tested before planting."

"The Newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and lead public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."—Chicago Tribune.

JOIN THIS HONOR ROLL.

The Black Inquisition is turned against citizens who have joined organizations opposed to the New Deal. It is directed by Senator Black, chairman of the senate lobby committee; George S. Brown, attorney for the committee, and H. A. Blomquist, investigator. "The special senate committee appointed under senate resolutions numbered 165 and 184 propounds the following inquiries to you."

The citizen is required to give the names of all corporations, partnerships, or organizations of any kind with which he is in any way connected and in particular to give an itemized statement of all sums contributed to such organizations as the Liberty League, the Crusaders, the Sentinels of the Republic, the American Taxpayers league, the American Federation of Investors, etc. These are the militant organizations created to defend American constitutional government, to protect the liberties of the people, and to resist the advance of the Roosevelt revolution.

The threat in the inquiries is apparent. The right of the citizens to organize an opposition is to be indirectly suspended by fear of government action. The implication is that criticism of the revolution is seditious. The Roosevelt lobbyists have been caught in flagrant acts. They have been discovered in the committee rooms and the chambers of congress, writing laws, dictating terms, and coercing submission under threat of governmental displeasure involving loss of subsidies.

The organizations opposed to the Roosevelt revolution have been before the public openly addressing the people and arousing them to see the perils of a communistic dictatorship. The critics of the New Deal can quote the Supreme court. The revolutionists reply by using the inquisition. The government under Roosevelt is trying to use a Stalinized secret police.

This attack upon the freedom of political action has made the membership of the societies against Roosevelt a roll of honor. Every patriotic citizen will want to have his name on it.

When a citizen is punished for a contribution to an organization fighting for free American government there will be many millions of Americans who will want to know the reason why.

Have the courage to defy this G. P. U. in America.

THE NAVAL CONFERENCE.

Japan having departed from the council table because Great Britain and the United States refused to concede the Japanese demand for equality, the remaining members are now proceeding to canvass the possibilities of agreement among themselves. There are important relations among the powers remaining in the conference, and adjustments which may be made without much reference to the Japanese factors. We are reminded of this by the latest report from London that there is little prospect of agreement upon the substantial quantitative reduction which the American delegation has proposed, and which is in fact the ostensible main object of the conference. But there are possibilities of qualitative agreement. That means limitation upon the size and armament of certain types of ships, and even upon the number of units in each of the categories permissible to each navy of the remaining conference powers. In other words, battleships may be restricted in tonnage and armament. So may cruisers and other types of naval craft. Japan has favored reduction in the size and gunpower of capital ships, that is, battleships and cruisers, for both financial and strategic reasons, so her agreement may probably be assumed. Many differences among Italy, France, and Great Britain upon this phase of limitation seem susceptible of compromise. It is the United States that has reason to move in this field of negotiation with caution.

Since the conferences began British naval policy has sought reduction of the size and armament of battleships and cruisers. This is entirely compatible with the maintenance of her naval primacy. Our naval authorities find that our strategic conditions are such that this qualitative reduction would reduce our relative strength, and especially in the cruiser type would materially reduce its efficiency for the protection of our long range communications. Lacking bases we need ships that can cover long distances. We need cruisers with armament which in some measure may offset advantages of numbers and strategic position. The persistent effort of British diplomacy to establish limitations of this character has a significance too clear to ignore, and it is not encouraging to note that, with the exception of the Geneva conference which resulted, fortunately for us, in an impasse, our representatives have been outplayed.

We have reason, therefore, to await the present negotiations for qualitative limitations with some concern. It is true that Mr. Roosevelt has declared for an increase of our naval strength, and that our naval representative in the present conference, Admiral Standley, is accounted a man of clear judgment and firmness of will. But our diplomatic representatives are Mr. Davis, a perambulating emissary of world peace whose disposition to make concessions of American right or interest in that millennial cause may be suspected if not assumed, and our ambassador at the court of St. James's, Mr. Bingham, an outstanding example of the apologetic American. Whether our naval interests are to be providently cared for in these circumstances is a matter at this stage of conjecture. Previous experience is not reassuring.

FREE PRESS IN PENNSYLVANIA.

Attorney General Margiotti, a Democratic boss of Pennsylvania, doesn't like the Philadelphia Inquirer, a critic of his régime, and when last fall that newspaper published a four column article alleging a scheme permitting attorneys to collect delinquent taxes on a percentage, with appropriate comment, the attorney general brought action for criminal libel. He did not sue in Philadelphia, where the alleged libel was published, but in his home county of Jefferson, where he controled the legal and criminal machinery. The Inquirer moved for a change of venue on the ground that it could not have a fair trial under the shadow of Mr. Margiotti's political influence. Freedom of the press committees representing several groups of publishers and editors protested the action of the attorney general, and the state Supreme court appointed Judge McLean of Luzerne county to inquire into the situation to determine whether the Inquirer could be assured of a fair trial in Jefferson county.

As a result the Supreme court has now ordered the cause removed from Jefferson county to Washington county, which, though it is farther away from Philadelphia than Jefferson, the court evidently thinks a safer place for justice in this instance. It also has assigned Judge McLean to try the case.

Thus another effort to bulldoze newspaper critics of the New Deal and its agents has been successfully resisted, and another victory for the right of the press to expose and criticize conditions in politics and government has been won. The event should not be dismissed as a concern of the press merely. It is primarily the concern, a major concern, of the public. The preservation of their freedom is, of course, essential to the vigor and self-respect of reputable newspapers, but most of them could exist and in some instances even prosper as compliant agents and beneficiaries of powerful politicians and office holders, as such parasitic organs do in Europe. But to the public a free press is essential to its own freedom, to the knowledge of what is going on in its government and therefore to its protection from misgovernment. The first amendment of the constitution and similar provisions in the constitutions of the states, guaranteeing a free press, are a guaranty to the people.

Editorial of the Day

WILL IT BE WPA PROJECTS FOR LOYAL DEMOCRATIC COMMUNITIES?

[Johnston City (Ill.) Progress.]

In a front page editorial last week the Progress pointed out that Johnston City had turned down an offer for a federal postoffice building during the last Republican administration and again during the first year of the present Democratic administration, all because the present building was considered adequate for local needs. The editorial went on to state that because its coal mines, the city's only economic reason for existence, were being threatened to the point of destruction by an underground flood, that Johnston City was now in a position to accept a gift from the federal government. Application had been made for $75,000 to help curb the flood and it was the hope of the people of Johnston City that the grant would be made. It was also pointed out that it would be a great saving to the government in the long run because several hundred families would be added to the relief rolls in this community if the mines were destroyed.

We were somewhat surprised Monday when the Marion Evening Post [Democrat] published an editorial in which the editor all but laughed up his sleeve because a Republican newspaper, one that had criticized the New Deal, had appealed to the federal government for assistance in the face of the catastrophe that threatened the very existence of this city. The editorial pointed out what a fine thing the New Deal was "when it comes close to home. . . . O, yes, the New Deal was extravagant, unconstitutional, un-American, contrary to the principles of the Republican party. But when 1,000 men were about to be thrown out of work—presto, chango, send us $75,000 to save the community. . . . So far as the financial angle of the case is concerned, our government has no more right to provide funds to keep Old Ben No. 18 running than they would have to turn $75,000 or a lesser amount over to any other concern that was down and wanted to resume. . . ."

In all fairness it should be understood that the flood is not the fault of the company. This flood is from abandoned mines of other companies, and getting down to the strict sense of the law we are not so sure but what the land now belongs to the government because of the nonpayment of taxes.

The application was not made as an aid to private enterprise. Old Ben and Franco Coal operators will take care of their own property if something can be done to stop the ten square miles of water that is trespassing upon them.

The situation here is unparalleled. A city of 6,000 people and millions of dollars' worth of property are at stake. If WPA with its billions cannot help solve the problem it appears cause for congress to pass a special bill appropriating the necessary funds to save a fine city. Similar acts have been passed before.

As a last resort the city would even be glad to get a loan from the federal government.

There are times when one forgets politics. We did that when we made an appeal for a grant. We were appealing to the federal government of the United States of America and not the New Deal. We were not thinking of WPA projects "for loyal and deserving Democrats." Neither were we thinking that this community would suffer any lack of consideration because this newspaper is not in sympathy with the present administration. We felt we were still taxpaying citizens, that we still held a franchise to vote, and that America has always practiced acts of humanitarianism and especially in the case of emergency.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

Reg. U.S. Pat. Office

ALL THEIR ENEMIES are ripping the very hide off the New Deal these days and the New Dealers have suffered terribly because they believe it their duty to listen in. But Dr. Hartman's new dental pain killer ought to be a great boon to them. If the dental pain killer will make a patient think his tooth is just being manicured even though the dentist is working on it with a jigsaw and a steam drill then it ought to soothe a New Dealer even when Al Smith is hacking at the New Deal with a meat ax.

A SCHOOL TEACHER in Oklahoma who told his pupils that George Washington ran around with women has been fired and another teacher in the same school who instructed his classes in the love life of toads has been told where he gets off at. It's all right to stop that scandal about G. Washington, but since some department down in Washington sends out booklets on the love life of the bullfrog it is hard to see why the second teacher comes in for criticism. A bullfrog is probably just as sensitive about his private life as one of those doggoned toads.

YET DOWN IN WASHINGTON they open up on the bullfrog and tell all about his love life. And when a teacher tries to expose the love life of a toad he gets bawled out for it. But a toad, when you've said the best for him you possibly can, isn't any better than he ought to be. And he probably leads a very scandalous life because he is so cunning he keeps quiet and stays in the background. The bullfrog steps right out and tells the cockeyed world that he fears no man. The bullfrog ought to be given just as square a deal as the toad, but he doesn't get it. Something should be done about this. Write to your congressman today.

Until you came along—
Now it isn't hard to hum
Some old love song.

The sky was the bluest
Until I saw your eyes—
Unfathomed pools of something
Bluer than all skies.

I heeded less all laughter
Until I heard you laugh,
And then the music of it
Was rarest wine to quaff.

My universe was faltering
Before I heard you cry—
Babies bring new heart throbs
To those about to die.

Today the longest journey,
Accompanied by your smile,
Is shortened for a weary man
Who dreaded every mile. . . .

Maybe when the high hill
Has been climbed by him,
Baby love will lead the way
On to the seraphim.

All without asking one single red penny for his discovery. And he could have sold his discovery for $250,000 spot cash. But he'd better keep away from high financial circles and the big butter and egg men and the captains of industry. They'll have him sent to the psychopathic hospital for examination. And I used to hate dentists and say mean things about the old magazines they kept on their reception room tables. They can keep magazines on their tables now that were published during the Revolutionary war and I'll never murmur. They're pretty fine fellows; we just didn't understand them.

KIDNEY AND BLADDER STONES.

FOR many years physicians believed that some error of diet was responsible for the formation of stones in the bladder and in the kidney. Those practicing in Siam, where the diet is composed largely of rice, have described huge bladder stones occurring frequently in very young children; and in England a century or more ago nearly one-half the cases of bladder stones were found in youngsters under fourteen years of age. It is now contended that the eating of rice is not the sole cause, but rather the absence of other important food elements.

What has happened to eliminate stones from the bladders of children throughout the civilized world? Apparently we may ascribe the situation to the present day balanced diets. But now and then stones will form.

What are these stones? Chemical examination shows that they are composed largely of calcium and magnesium phosphate and the assumption is that the ingredients exist in the urine in such concentration that precipitation [formation of crystals] takes place. The point is made that animals fed on a diet which lacks vitamin A may develop stones. Whenever vitamin A is added to the diet of a "stony" animal, the calculi have disappeared, in some cases.

Of course, we must not forget infection as a possible cause. Changes in the cells of the kidney may result in the secretions becoming abnormal. Certain it is that when there are cell changes from any cause whatsoever the balance of the minerals in the urine may be upset and deposits occur.

We are all familiar with the layer of lime on the bottom and along the sides of a teakettle. This varies greatly, depending upon the amount of hardness [minerals] in the water. As water evaporates the salts remain behind. The pipes of hot water boilers may become clogged due to the precipitation of mineral matter. So it is with the kidneys and the bladder. If there is faulty drainage or an increase in the proportion of lime, stones may form.

Practically every disease has a small beginning, and when a stone forms the amount of mineral matter that separates from a solution must at first be very tiny. In order to form a sizable mass the first particles must be held in contact with the tissues, otherwise they would be washed away. Such a retention may be brought about by an infection. When firmly fixed by a heap of destroyed or diseased cells [perhaps a minute ulcer] the stone can gradually increase in size through the addition of layer after layer of calcium and other salts.

By means of the X-ray we can detect the presence of minerals in the body if in sizable amounts and now and then a stone in the kidney or bladder will be discovered, although no symptoms have appeared.

Occasionally patients in perfectly normal health are suddenly seized with an attack of what is called kidney colic. This severe pain is caused by a stone attempting to pass down the tube leading from the kidney to the bladder. Some of these stones are small enough to enter the bladder and are expelled through the external urinary canal. Others will require surgical removal. The situation may be attended with bleeding either from the bed of the stone itself or from injured cells along its pathway.

We may conclude that stones are not like Topsy, that is, they do not just happen. Some fault exists in the kidney tissue or there is a decided upset in metabolism saturating the urine with more mineral matter than it can hold. Crystals may adhere to an injured surface and increase in size like icicles hanging from the eaves of a house or stalactites in Mammoth cave.

No one of us wants to have stones anywhere—in the kidney, the urinary bladder, or the gall bladder. The hygiene of the kidneys demands that we avoid infection and hence irritation. Furthermore, it is important that the average diet shall contain a sufficient amount of vitamin A, the sources of which are so readily available in green vegetables, carrots, and milk.

From Across the Sea

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS.—That the French general staf is deeply disappointed with the Italian army's showing in the Ethiopian campaign, and is seriously beginning to doubt Italy's military value as an ally in a possible European war, is indicated by a series of significant utterances by French military writers in Paris newspapers that have been noted for their leanings toward Fascism and devotion to the Italian cause.

The question whether the Italian army in Ethiopia is headed for a disaster similar to that which overtook Napoleon's grand army in the Russian campaign of 1812 is openly discussed by prominent French military critics in articles evidently inspired by the general staf.

Most striking among these pronouncements is an article published in the royalist organ, Action Française, which has hitherto been violent in its unqualified support of Italy and hostility to Great Britain and maintains close contact with influential military circles. This paper's military specialist, Hubert de Lagarde, makes no secret of his apprehension that Mussolini's African war may end like Napoleon's invasion of Russia.

"Emperor Haile Selassie," he writes, "would seem to have studied Napoleon's campaign of 1812. Everything in Ethiopia is happening as though he were intimately acquainted with it. Like Napoleon's grand army, the Italian forces are compelled to advance to a great distance from bases that are already very far removed from their own country in order to invade the enemy's territory. They are in danger of being cut off from these bases by the rainy season, as Napoleon was by the Russian winter, and, again like Napoleon, they are vainly seeking to get into decisive fighting contact with their ever elusive foe."

All French military experts are exhorting Mussolini to renounce his idea of achieving victory in Ethiopia by employing great masses of men equipped with heavy modern motorized material. They are all agreed that the Italian army is far too big and unmanageable for a colonial war, and they are filled with consternation at the news that further large reënforcements are being sent from Italy to East Africa.

According to estimates current in French military circles, the Italians began their campaign with 200,000 men. Since then there has been a constant flow of reënforcements and the present strength of Marshal Badoglio's army is believed to be between 300,000 and 400,000 men.

"This is the most formidable force that has ever been used in a colonial war," says an article in Journal des Debats, which has strongly supported Mussolini in his African enterprise. "Events have proved that it was a grave error to think that a decisive victory could be rapidly won by means of large masses of troops, tanks, and airplanes. The larger the army, the greater the difficulties as soon as one advances far from one's bases and lines of communication."

It is revealed by Journal des Debats that Mussolini overrode the advice of some of his best generals when he launched the offensive against Ethiopia. They told him, the paper affirms, that it would take many years to conquer Ethiopia and that it could only be done through extremely mobile flying columns, such as the French used in Morocco against the Arab tribesmen. The Duce, however, refused to listen to their counsel, and as a result, the French military writers point out, the Italians have achieved an advance of only 150 to 200 kilometers in three months.

"At this rate," they say, "it will take the Italians five or six years to get to Addis Ababa."

ICE SKATING IN PARKS.

Chicago, Jan. 14.—[Friend of the People.]—I wish to call your attention to the condition of the lagoon in Ogden park located at 65th and Racine avenue. This lagoon is frozen over and is covered with a thick coat of snow and there is a large plow which is manned by a team of horses and two men which is not in much use. I don't see why they don't clean the snow off this lagoon. Most of the other parks in the city are enjoying the skating season. W. R. S.

I wish to advise you that I have had an investigation made of this situation and find that there has been skating on the small lagoon in Ogden park from Dec. 20 up to the present time. In this park there is also a large lagoon which became covered with snow before the ice had had an opportunity to freeze to a depth sufficient to support the load of equipment necessary to remove the snow. However, a few days ago practically all of the snow was removed and the ice at that time was found still not to be of sufficient strength to permit general skating. Due to the depth of the water in the large lagoon it was deemed unwise to permit skating until cold weather brought about stronger and deeper ice. The Chicago park district has furnished the most comprehensive skating program in the history of Chicago within the last month. Skating facilities have been offered at 64 locations throughout the city.

General Superintendent, Chicago Park District.

IN NEED OF REPAIRS.

Chicago, Jan. 17.—[Friend of the People.]—Next door south to my property is a vacant brick building which is in a very bad condition and dangerous to myself and the general public. I have advised owner of said property four times but with no results. Please advise me what to do next. J. A. Z.

I have caused an investigation of this complaint and find building is in need of repairs. The owners have been notified to remove all loose brick and slate and to board up building. If this work is not done at the expiration of time allotted in our notice we will proceed as the law directs.

RICHARD E. SCHMIDT,
Commissioner of Buildings.

NEW WILL DESIRABLE.

Chicago, Jan. 25.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Twelve years ago I had a will drawn up by a lawyer and witnessed by his secretary. Said lawyer is gone and I cannot find trace of him. Also, my will has been lost or stolen. I was at that time a widow, but have since married. The will was made in favor of my daughter. 1. How can I find out if said will was recorded? I paid said lawyer $25 for his services. 2. What can I do? N. J. A.

It is not customary to record a will until the death of the testator. We advise you to make a new will.

RADIO ACCENTS.

Evanston, Ill., Jan. 24.—Can't something be done about this epidemic of eastern brogue, or southern drawl, or perhaps it is baby talk which is sweeping this section of the country via certain radio speakers and announcers?

We are being addressed as good "neighbas" and asked to write "lettas," etc.

Why not let the letter "r" once more be rolled with true midwestern vigor and not be slurred as though we were ashamed of it and our section of the country, which its clear enunciation typifies?

PENSIONS.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 24.—As commander in chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States I am in a position to announce that recently published reports predicting a demand for a "general world war veteran pension," from veteran organizations, are absolutely ridiculous, absurd, and without foundation in fact, truth, or precedent.

There is no valid reason to suspect that veteran organizations in the future will ever abandon the principle that has always impelled them to seek pension legislation only for those who are disabled and not for those who are able bodied.

With the exception of the issue involved in cash payment of world war veterans' adjusted service certificates, every piece of veteran welfare legislation ever supported by the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States has been confined strictly and solely to the problems of our disabled comrades and their dependents.

Permit me to point out that the so-called bonus issue has been only one phase of our general program. For the last several years we have recommended a uniform pension system for America's disabled veterans and the widows and orphans of those who are deceased—a pension system that will give due consideration to the length and type of services rendered by the individual veteran.

We demand the elimination of discrimination that exists under present legislation and favor equal consideration for the disabled veterans of all wars.

Certain anti-veteran groups are making a deliberate effort to confuse the public mind on this question. They persist in referring to a "general world war pension threat" designed to convey the impression that pensions will be asked for able bodied as well as disabled world war veterans.

I deny and denounce this insinuation as a malicious effort to discredit veteran organizations and veterans who are sincerely devoting their time and efforts to the cause of America's disabled.

REFLECTION ON NEWS VALUES.

Chicago, Jan. 10.—I wonder if the reason the papers are not printing all the good things going on about us every day is that they are so commonplace and usual as not to be considered news? If murder, kidnaping, and suicide were common, and kindness, good turns, love, and happiness were unusual, wouldn't the newspapers be passing up the murders and divorces and showing in their headlines instead: "Mr. and Mrs. Jones, married five years, are happy," and "With no bars on his office window for ten years, Mr. Brown has not yet jumped out," and "Policeman helps old lady across street," and "The Johnsons love their neighbors—no triangle involved"?

I wonder if a man couldn't become the world's greatest columnist by concentrating his entire efforts on publishing "The Good Things in Life"? How many people, for example, know of the number of men in the United States working without pay in the Boy Scout organization alone with but one idea—to help the boys become better men? NORRIS.

DID KIPLING SET THE TYPE?

Warrenville, Ill., Jan. 20.—In the Kipling obituary Saturday is the statement that he set type on the first edition of "Departmental Ditties." This is of great interest if it be true, but it seems questionable. Mr. Kipling's own statement, which I find quoted in "Rudyard Kipling," LeGallienne [John Lane, 1900], as coming from "my first book" [originally printed in The Idler] is . . . "but I knew that Ruku-Din and the office plant were at my disposal at a price, if I did not use the office time." There is a lot more, but this is the only part which bears on the matter of composition. While it is not negative it is scarcely affirmative.

It seems likely copies of the book would sell at double the already outrageous price if it were positively known that the author set part or all of the type. If you are not up on this sort of thing some one on the literary page might be.

THE TESTIMONY OF TERTULLIAN.

Chicago, Jan. 14.—In today's TRIBUNE I note the statement by the Rev. Mr. Newey that the crucifixion of Christ was not confirmed by Roman documents. He has overlooked the statements by Tacitus and Tertullian, both of whom lived in the first and second century A. D.

Tertullian's testimony, especially, is authoritative and complete, and his high standing in ancient Roman legal circles is authenticated. In his address to the highest Roman authorities he describes the crucifixion of Christ just as told us by the apostles, and adds:

"All this was reported to the Emperor Tiberius by Pontius Pilatus, and you have the report in your secret files."

If there are any ancient Syriac documents revealing the substitution of Barabbas for Christ they certainly were unknown to Ephraem of Assyria [third century]. All his extant writings are a living testimony to the crucified Christ.

INTERESTING IF TRUE DEPARTMENT.

Chicago, Jan. 22.—You may scoff all you please about the boondogglers, etc., but at least the present administration has one remarkable achievement to its credit. We notice in the drawings for the new federal reserve board building in Washington that the architect has incorporated a cuspidor room. At last the tobacco eaters are to have their place in the sun, a place where they can plash and squirt to their hearts' content and none to say them nay. They may not have the old Round Oak stove, but at least there will be one place in this creation where they can amuse themselves and feel as secure as any king in his castle.

LANDON TONIGHT VOICES HIS BID FOR PRESIDENCY

Party Eyes Kansas Day Doings Closely.

BY JOSEPH ATOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Topeka, Kas., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Kansas day, the granddaddy of all Grass Roots conventions—the Young Republicans of 1892 started it in celebration of the state's birthday—this year is Gov. Alf M. Landon's coming out party as a candidate for President.

Gov. Landon will not make a formal announcement, but the effect will be the same. Already the party organizations meeting here at the state capital have started passing resolutions commending his business man administration which has given Kansas a balanced budget during the same period in which Franklin D. Roosevelt has been piling the national debt to an all time high.

Will Urge Him to Run.

Tomorrow the Republican state committee and the Kansas day committee will pass similar resolutions of commendation, adding a plea that Gov. Landon seek the presidency. For days he has been working on the speech which will be a reply to those petitions. He will deliver it tomorrow evening over a country-wide radio network, in the presence of 2,000 guests at the Kansas day banquet.

That speech, say friends who have read it, is not routine denunciation of New Deal follies. It is a studied and calm statement, they say, of the position of their man on the problems which the nation faces. Its impending delivery has raised Kansas day from a meeting of state importance only to one of national interest.

Republican committeewomen from a half dozen trans-Mississippi states attended the women's sessions today and heard Mrs. Robert Lincoln Hoyal, director of the women's division of the national committee, rip into the Roosevelt policies.

Many Come to Appraise.

As many or more Republican state committeemen are expected for the banquet tomorrow night. Some of them will be here as Landon supporters. Others come more in the rôle of appraisers.

They want to see how Gov. Landon, known until the present simply as a competent, levelheaded state executive, stacks up as presidential timber. They want particularly to see whether the quiet Landon personality and earnest Landon behavior before the microphone offer a vote winning alternative to the Roosevelt radio magic and the much advertised Roosevelt smile.

Kansas day long ago outgrew a single day celebration.

Women Have Their Day.

The Republican clans of the state started gathering yesterday. The women had their big day today. Tonight the lobbies of Topeka hotels, which have had all their rooms reserved for a month, are jammed with men and women.

They all seem to be Landon folks, and they are all eager to tell a stranger about Alf Landon. His budget balancing fight has been described before. Property taxes, they tell you, have been cut 32 per cent, the per capita cost of both state and local government in Kansas 26 per cent.

And those reductions, they insist, have not been at the expense of governmental efficiency, and more particularly they have not been, as Relief Administrator Hopkins sought to charge, at the expense of the unemployed. Kansas, they tell you, stands 15th among the 48 states in the percentage of local and state funds advanced to match federal relief expenditures.

He's a Prohibitionist.

"But what about prohibition?" they are asked. "They say Landon is a prohibitionist."

"Of course he is," they reply. "In Alabama you're a Democrat. In Kansas you're a prohibitionist. A Kansas politician would as soon advocate a segregated vice district as advocate saloons. But don't forget that when the repeal wave was sweeping the nation Alf Landon told the people of Kansas he thought they ought to register their sentiment again on the question. Through his influence Kansas had the first prohibition referendum in many years, and the people voted dry. People from the eastern cities don't seem to realize that prohibition enforcement isn't a major problem in Kansas, simply because most of the people want prohibition."

Tell Legislative Power.

That settled, Alf Landon's boosters are likely to turn to another phase of his character, a phase which is likely in their estimation to prove much more important than his prohibition views in case he is elected President and has to deal with a closely divided or politically hostile congress.

Gov. Landon has had a nominally Republican legislature, in both houses, during both his two year terms of office. But in his first term when he started his economy program and put rigid controls on the purse strings of local government, his party had only a one or two vote majority in each house. How did he put his program over?

"He gets along with people," explain his friends. They elaborate. His homely friendliness, which some of his prospective opponents are beginning to sniff at as synthetic, is a real part of the man, his friends tell you.

Master of Persuasion.

He is a master of conciliation and quiet persuasion, they say. And, working with the door of his office open to all comers, he is still a demon for work. Also, they continue, he expects his appointees to work at their jobs. His appointments have been principally of party men, but once in office they have been expected to devote their energies to state business, and there the Landonites tell you, is the explanation of the Landon efficiency record.

Gov. Landon's behavior yesterday seemed to bear out their stories. He received a constant stream of visitors at his desk, and between handshakes busied himself at signing a stack of state highway bonds—one at a time. It was suggested to him that machines are available which will sign twenty bonds at a time.

Don't Need That Many.

"We don't put out that many bonds in Kansas," he retorted with a grin.

Speaking for a few minutes at the annual luncheon of the state Republican Women's club today, Gov. Landon gave a possible forecast of what he will tell the nation over the air tomorrow night. He told a simple anecdote of his children.

"We are facing a campaign and a national election," he continued then in somber tones, "which means more than any election in our generation. This election will determine the kind of society they'll have to live under—these children of ours."

"There never was a time when there has been so serious a challenge to the thought, interest and attention of the people, irrespective of party, as in this coming election."

Quotes Roosevelt Talk.

Mrs. Hoyal, the principal speaker at the luncheon, took as the text of her address some of the recent statements of President Roosevelt.

"Not so very long ago," she said, "Mr. Roosevelt made the statement, 'we're on our way'—but he didn't say where. And after his elaborate and expensive western fishing expedition he made a statement to the effect 'we are on the way back—because we planned it that way.' 'Back to what? To the tyrannies of the old world, to a communistic system of dictatorships, whose administrators are drunk with spending and power? It has become apparent that the government in less than three years has established a vicious and destructive precedent of supervision and interference.

Seek to Regiment All.

These would-be superior minds are not content with their efforts to improve on nature because of their 'philosophy of scarcity,' but must lead us into their conception of the 'more abundant life,' through the regulation and regimentation of every phase of our daily existence.

Whether Mr. Roosevelt actually planned the overthrow of our constitutional government and annihilation of all true American ideals and principles can never be known, but the price of power is responsibility, and his choice of administrators of the vast powers and authority recklessly placed in his hands by the lash driven congress is his responsibility, and his alone.

FIGHT UPON NEW DEAL IS LIKE WORLD WAR TO WAYLAND BROOKS

In replying to representatives of the United Republican War Veterans' league who had presented him with a resolution indorsing his candidacy for the Republican governorship nomination, Wayland Brooks yesterday compared the present contest against the New Deal to the world war.

"We were fighting then," he said, "to make the world safe for democracy. Now we enlist together to preserve our American form of government in Illinois and our own nation and to combat the communistic propaganda sent from abroad and followed by our own officials who swore to uphold and defend our constitution.

"We reënlist to break down the unholy march for centralized control of the lives of our citizens. Since the war most of the countries of the old world have fallen into the hands of dictators of one sort or another, and with the admission of foreign made goods and foreign propaganda in our hour of national distress, this menace of centralized power has come into our country like a thief in the night to lower our standard of living, to prevent individual initiative and finally to destroy American liberty."

The delegation of ex-service men who presented the resolution to Brooks included Hamlet C. Ridgway, John L. Guminski, Charles A. Marshall, Robert L. Floyd, William George Knox, E. V. Dickson, George A. Gillmeister, Emmett Grady, and James Brody. They are officers and executive committeemen of the United Republican War Veterans' league.

WARRING G.O.P. CAMPS PLANNING RIVAL TICKETS

Brooks Foes Vow Unity in Secret Meeting.

BY PARKE BROWN.

While aspirants for nomination for the governorship and for the United States senatorship were continuing to address committeemen who gather daily at Henrici's restaurant, it was disclosed yesterday that each of the camps into which the Cook county Republican organization has split is going ahead with plans to put a complete ticket into the field if the present war continues.

At a meeting in the Bismarck hotel attended by all of the committeemen who have indorsed Wayland Brooks as a candidate for governor, the names of candidates for other state offices and for county offices were submitted for consideration. There was no formal decision to run a "Brooks ticket," but preparations to do so were made so that it might be arranged without loss of time if peace is not restored.

Brooks Foes Meet Secretly.

It also was learned that the forces opposed to Brooks held a secret conference in which there was an agreement that the present allies would stick together to the point of unity behind some governorship candidate to be agreed upon later and that a full ticket would be indorsed for the primary of April 14.

The candidates who appeared at the luncheon of the anti-Brooks allies at Henrici's were Oscar E. Carlstrom, State Senator Earl B. Searcy and State Senator Thomas P. Gunning, all of whom are seeking the governorship, and Orville J. Taylor who announced himself for the senatorship on Monday.

In addition a letter was read from Otis F. Glenn, candidate for senator, who, because of business in New York City, was unable to be present. This was regarded as important because Glenn's announcement of his candidacy some time ago, did not include his platform.

Glenn Presents His Stand.

His letter presented his attitude on subjects in two groups, those upon which he said he stood on his record made while he was in the senate, and fourteen points describing his position on additional issues. The latter part of the letter follows:

"I shall stand for:

First—Sound money and a stable fiscal policy.

"Second—Tariff protection for industry, labor and agriculture, but against excessive schedules favoring monopolies and permitting extortionate prices to consumers.

"Third—severe reduction in federal taxes.

"Fourth—Unemployment insurance and old age pensions.

"Fifth—Agricultural relief through embargoes against the importation of foreign farm products.

"Sixth—Against irrigation, drainage, and other reclamation projects which will add to the already too great farm acreage.

"Seventh—For lower taxes upon farm lands.

"Eighth—Lower interest rates on farm indebtedness; better marketing facilities, with the farmer getting a larger proportion of the amount the consumer pays for the product.

"Ninth—Freedom of the press and against the intimidation of the citizens by any political administration.

Change of Relief Control.

"Tenth—Placing the administration of relief activities in charge of the local communities where the needy reside.

"Eleventh—For completely adequate military forces on land and sea and in the air for the defense of our territory.

"Twelfth—For just and liberal treatment of the soldiers of our wars.

"Thirteenth—For the deportation of the alien communistic agitators.

"Fourteenth—For the continuance without impairment of the power and the authority of the Supreme Court of the United States."

Former Attorney General Carlstrom and Senator Searcy showed themselves aggressive candidates for the governorship. The former devoted much of his time to figures showing his record as a vote getter in 1924, 1928 and 1932.

"My personal strength in Illinois today," he said, "is greater than at any other time."

Searcy Assails Conditions.

Senator Searcy made the most direct attack upon the present condition of state affairs that has been heard from any candidate.

"Like the federal administration," he said, "Illinois has fallen prey to the malignant growth of bureaucracy until today more than 335 separate departments, divisions, bureaus, and commissions are eating up the funds of Illinois taxpayers. At least one-half of these branches can be cut out."

Senator Gunning, who hails from Princeton, presented the argument that the Republicans should nominate a downstater for governor.

Attorney Taylor, the only candidate for United States senator present, asserted his freedom from all factional labels as an argument in favor of his selection for that nomination.

The speakers listed for today's luncheon are Chauncey McCormick, Ald. John A. Massen, and George W. Dowell of Duquoin.

Meanwhile three new candidacies developed yesterday. Petitions were circulated for Big. Gen. John V. Clinnan for lieutenant governor; Deneen Watson, Chicago attorney, was indorsed for state treasurer, and Mayor John W. Knapp of Springfield announced for secretary of state.

MINER WILL DIRECT CITY'S OBSERVANCE OF LINCOLN'S BIRTHDAY

In accepting the post of general director for the proposed Chicago observance of Lincoln's birthday two weeks from today, Julius H. Miner, who directed the Constitution day celebrations of 1934 and 1935, said yesterday that, though plans have not yet become definite, the Civic Opera house has been reserved for the occasion.

"Naturally I feel highly flattered," said Director Miner, "but I also feel assured that there will be a most enthusiastic response from all patriotic and civic organizations invited to join in the effort to honor the Great Emancipator in a suitable manner.

"The committee which proposed that the celebration be made city-wide consisted of representative service men, and civic leaders I have consulted have assured me of their support."

WALLACE CALLS COURT'S AAA TAX RULING A 'STEAL'

Says Money Not Paid by Processors.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—[Special]—Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace today skirted contempt of the United States Supreme court by declaring that return of 200 million dollars of AAA processing taxes by the court's order was "probably the greatest legalized steal in American history."

Wallace made his charge in a radio address. He spoke boldly, it was said, because he was fully aware that the court in its traditional dignity takes no judicial cognizance of the utterances of those disgruntled by its decisions. The court has not recognized one of the sputterings of burocrats hit by its decisions.

Continues Earier Attacks.

In his address Wallace followed through earlier attacks on the court's decision ordering return of the disputed taxes. He again charged that the court "ignored" an act of congress decreeing that processors, to collect taxes, must show that they did not pass on the levy to consumers.

Wallace asserted that by its decision the court had returned to the processors money which belonged to the entire country. In the search for a substitute AAA Wallace has been hampered by the decision which took away the 200 million dollars of procesing taxes from easy spending New Dealers.

"Doesn't Make Sense."

"To the mind trained in legalisms, this may be perfectly all right," Wallace said, "but to the layman, it doesn't make sense. In the Hoosac Mills case [the AAA case] the court disapproved the idea that the government could take money from one group for the benefit of the other.

"Yet in turning over to the processors this 200 million dollars which came from all the people, we are seeing the most flagrant example of exploitation for the benefit of one small group. This is probably the greatest legalized steal in all history."

NEW AAA PUSHED DESPITE DOUBTS AS TO LEGALITY

Committee Will Report Stop-Gap Bill Today.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—With a majority of its members still convinced that the administration's stop-gap AAA substitute is just as unconstitutional, in the light of the Supreme court's decision, as the AAA itself, the senate agriculture committee nevertheless will report the bill favorably tomorrow. This was the opinion not only of Chairman Ellison D. [Cotton Ed] Smith of South Carolina, but of Senate Minority Leader Charles L. McNary after today's session.

A majority of the members, it was made clear today, draw a line of demarcation between constitutional as such and constitutional according to the Supreme court's decision that congress cannot regulate agricultural production.

Led by Norris and Wallace.

The leaders of this new school of thought, whereby the legislative and executive branches would take over the functions of the judiciary, are the Radical George W. Norris of Nebraska and Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace, one of today's witnesses.

Wallace emerged from the executive session with this declaration:

"I am firmly convinced that the bill is constitutional, and I think the committee is firmly convinced that it is constitutional, but constitutional is one thing and passing the Supreme court is another."

Reed Rules for Bill.

Solicitor General Stanley Reed also appeared before the committee and gave his ex-cathedra opinion that the bill was constitutional. Chairman Smith later called attention to the fact that it was Mr. Reed who collapsed while endeavoring to convince the Supreme court that the AAA was constitutional. In addition to Reed and Wallace, the senators were assured by M. G. White, solicitor for the agriculture department, that they need have no fears on constitutional grounds.

"Personally," said Chairman Smith, "I do not think that the statements of these gentlemen made any material change in the attitude of the committee members. Several members do not believe the present draft escapes the decision of the Supreme court."

Revive Debenture Plan.

But it was conceded to be a foregone conclusion that they will report the bill out, anyway, and this would have been done today, on a motion of Senator Norris, but for the offering of a substitute plan by Senator McNary.

McNary's substitute is the export debenture bill introduced early in the session by Senator Tom Connally [Dem., Tex.], under which exporters of farm commodities would receive treasury certificates equal to one-half the corresponding duty on the imports of such commodities. Fixed rates would be provided for some commodities, including 7½ cents per bushel for corn, ½ cent per pound for rice, 21 cents a bushel for wheat, 4 cents a pound for cotton, and 2 cents a pound for tobacco.

The farmers could sell these treasury debentures to importers, who could use them as setoffs against tarif duties. McNary says the purpose of the plan is to give the farmer the full benefit of the tarif and at the same time to encourage exports and protect our foreign markets instead of curtailing production and losing them.

WINTER SPORTS RESORTS DRAW TRAVEL CROWDS

Others Seek to Escape Northern Cold.

BY FREDERICK BABCOCK.

Chicagoland's subzero spell of the last week has sent hundreds of vacationists scurrying for the southern resorts, but others who prefer to welcome winter rather than shun it are turning toward the snow and ice places.

The season is at its height in such resorts as Lake Placid, Eagle River, and Quebec. Harbor Springs, Mich., will hold its winter sports carnival next Saturday and Sunday. From Feb. 7 to 16 Petoskey is to be the scene of Michigan's ninth annual carnival, and this year the program will include the national speed skating races. Alpine sports are getting a heavy play at Mount Rainier and Mount Baker, in Washington, and Mount Hood, in Oregon. For the first time in the history of Rainier National park, Paradise inn is being kept open throughout the winter.

On the other side of the Atlantic the crowds already are gathering at Garmisch-Partenkirchen, in the Bavarian Alps, where the fourth winter Olympic games will be held Feb. 6 to 16.

Chicagoans to Attend.

Among the Chicagoans planning to witness the sports program in Switzerland are the Misses Ruth Andrews and Ruth Robbins, who, with their music instructor, Miss Alexine Whisnant, will sail today on the City of Norfolk. They will devote several months to the study of music in Paris and make side trips on the continent and the British Isles. Their fellow passengers on the way over will include Prof. and Mrs. Frederick B. Stiven and their daughters, Katherine and Louise, and Prof. and Mrs. D. H. Carnahan and their daughter, Sally, all of Champaign, Ill.

Mrs. E. R. Gracen plans to leave today on the Berengaria to visit relatives in England and see the Chinese art exhibit in London. Prof. R. A. Cordell of Purdue university will sail with Mrs. Cordell on the Berengaria. John Blagg and C. G. Howard of Chicago also will be aboard.

On the Manhattan when it steams out of New York today for Europe will be these Chicagoans: William M. Hartman, on his way to Germany and Czecho-Slovakia; Louis Zentner, bound for Germany; Mrs. Monica Kramer, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Pearson, and Frederick Gottlieb. Mrs. Prescott Carter of Milwaukee is another passenger.

Sail for Study Abroad.

Embarking on the Ile de France this week are Mr. and Mrs. John D. Craig, who will spend two weeks in London; the Misses Helen Peters, Jean Henderson, and Jane Mifflin, who will study music in Paris, and Prof. and Mrs. Jacob R. Kantor and their daughter, Helene, of Bloomington, Ill.

Intending to remain in Rome until after Easter, Mrs. Catherine MacLeod and her daughters, Rosemary and Lucille, are en route to Europe on the Conte di Savoia. Mrs. M. J. Bennett will sail on the Vulcania Feb. 15 to join them in Italy. Others on board the Conte are Frank Addante and Lioce Lorenzo of Chicago and Harry G. Hagen of Fort Wayne, Ind.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Kirkpatrick, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Taylor, and Lawrence Callaghan are traveling on the American Trader to London, where they will make an indefinite stay.

Following a visit in Chicago, Miss Bettina Bedwell, Paris fashions expert for THE TRIBUNE, is en route home on the Champlain. Mr. and Mrs. William M. Schuyler of Chicago are on the same ship.

Two officials of the advertising department of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE are among the vacationists. Mr. and Mrs. Harry King will sail from New Orleans tomorrow on the Morazan for Vera Cruz, from where they will take a land excursion to Mexico City, and Mr. and Mrs. C. E. McKittrick will leave Los Angeles next Monday on the Virginia for a cruise to New York by way of the Panama canal.

TRAVELERS' QUERIES ANSWERED—WHAT TO LOOK UP IN OLD CAIRO

What's your travel problem? Address queries regarding where to go, how to get there, costs, and accommodations to the Travelers' Guide, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, inclosing stamped, self-addressed envelope.

What is there to see and do in Cairo? R. L. E.

Cairo is known as one of the world's curious cities. Its minarets are the most beautiful in the Levant. It has 500 mosques. In the building of one of them $3,000 was spent daily for three years and, when it was completed, the sultan caused the architect's hands to be cut off so that he could not construct another like it. The Citadel, built about 1166, contains a mosque of oriental alabaster. The mosque of Tulin, erected in the ninth century, stands on the hill where, tradition says, the ark rested after the flood. Another legend is to the effect that upon this spot Abraham was about to offer Isaac as a sacrifice when a ram was opportunely found for a substitute. Out in the river lies Rhoda Island, where, tradition has it, Pharaoh's daughter found the infant Moses in the bullrushes. The enterprising native guides will take you there if you wish.

Are there any cruises taking in Florida, the West Indies, and the Panama Canal Zone? E. P.

Yes. Eighteen day cruises to those places are scheduled to leave New York Feb. 1, Feb. 21, and March 15 aboard the Evangeline of the Eastern Steamship lines.

When is the next Swiss Industries fair to be held at Basle? J. J.

STATE FARMERS TO GET REPORTS ON CO-OP SALES

Marketing Total Set at 77 Million.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Decatur, Ill., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—A reply to charges that farmers have been backward in improving their economic condition will be given here tomorrow at the opening session of the Illinois Agricultural association's annual meeting. Earl C. Smith, president of the association, today described the cooperative marketing, buying and service companies, affiliated with the state farm bureau, as the best refutation of the charges.

77 Million Dollar Sales.

Advanced information taken from the annual reports of the subsidiaries indicate that Illinois farmers marketed cooperatively an estimated total of more than 77 millions worth of farm commodities during the calendar year 1935. The major commodities marketed through cooperative channels include milk, live stock, grain, butter fat, and fruits and vegetables.

Milk heads the list. Cooperative bargaining agencies organized in Illinois with the aid of the association and county farm bureaus during the last 15 years marketed more than 2¼ billion pounds of milk, according to the annual report to be made tomorrow by Wilfred Smith, director of the I. A. A. milk marketing department. This milk came from 48,000 dairy farms.

Live Stock Sales.

In his annual report Ray E. Miller, director of live stock marketing of the I. A. A., will show that more than 23 per cent of Illinois live stock was sold through cooperative channels last year—a total of 22,872 carloads.

The Illinois Grain corporation and the Farmers' National Grain corporation handled cooperatively more than 10 million bushels of Illinois grain last year. The grain was valued at approximately 5 million dollars. The figures do not include grain sold through coöperative country elevators to processors and privately operated commission firms.

COUNCIL GROUP FIGHTS CRADLE PHONE CHARGE

The utilities committee of the city council, headed by Ald. B. A. Cronson [4th], voted yesterday to ask the Illinois commerce commission to order that cradle telephones be supplied to all telephone users who desire them without additional charge.

The committee also voted to oppose the present petition of the Illinois Bell Telephone company, pending before the commerce commission, asking the right to impose the three per cent sales tax to telephone users.

HUFF URGES FARMERS TO RALLY TO SUPPORT OF COMMODITY BILL

Pana, Ill., Jan. 28.—(AP)—Farmers of the nation were called upon today to rally to the support of the commodity exchange bill now on the calendar of the United States senate.

In an address during the afternoon session of the 25th annual convention of the Farmers' Equity union, C. E. Huff, president of the Farmers National Grain corporation at Chicago, urged the farmers to support the legislation "to the last ditch" as their protection "against raiding and squeezing in the commodity markets."

Huff said that the Chicago Board of Trade and other large grain exchanges throughout the country have launched a stubborn battle to defeat the measure.

CALL FOR ACTION ON METHODIST RADICALS TODAY

When the board of education of the Methodist Episcopal church opens its annual meeting today at 740 Rush street it will be confronted with a letter from the Conference of Methodist laymen, which asks that the board take action on the radicalism of "certain of its secretaries."

The letter from the laymen, made public last night by Wilbur Helm, 120 South La Salle street, secretary of the laymen conference, refers to action taken by the Methodist Federation for Social Service at Evanston earlier this month which would link the Methodist church with the communistic "Red Front" against war and Fascism.

Several of the board of education secretaries, according to Mr. Helm, are leaders in the social service group which is accused by the laymen of being communistic. The board of education is in complete charge of the educational program and literature of the church and is international in scope.

The letter is addressed to the Rev. Dr. Frederick C. Eiselen, corresponding secretary of the board.

JAP ALLY OPENS FIFTY CITY OPIUM DENS IN TIENTSIN

Hookup Is Seen with Manchukuo Monopoly.

BY JOHN POWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TIENTSIN, China, Jan. 29.—[Wednesday.]—Hsiao Chen-ying, mayor of the Chinese city of Tientsin, whose close relations with the Japanese military makes him a powerful official, today announced the opening of fifty official opium sales agencies catering to the public.

Smokers over 60 years old will not be restricted but for those between 30 and 60 "the doses will be restricted gradually in the hope that the effect will completely cure them of the habit in six years, while those under 30 are prohibited from smoking the drug."

The city has created its own opium monopoly with the object of "effecting prohibition through taxation."

Controled by Japs.

Chinese sources alleged that the Peiping-Tientsin district has become an appendant of the Manchukuo opium monopoly with supplies completely controled by Japan. The Japanese also are controling the transport of opium here from Turkestan.

Mayor Hsiao announced there would soon be a wide open administration. He said he sees no reason why foreign concessions, particularly Italian and Japanese, should be allowed a monopoly of gambling and prostitution.

Report Raid by Outer Mongolians.

HSINKING, Manchukuo, Jan. 28.—(AP)—More than 100 Outer Mongolian troops have invaded Manchukuan territory near Olahodka, southwest of Lake Bor, said Manchukuan reports to the Domei [Japanese] News agency tonight.

SEIZE EX-EDITOR OF MAGAZINE ON CHARGE OF LIBEL

Edwin Baird, 1130 Lake Shore drive, former editor of Real America, a monthly magazine, was arrested in his home last night and taken to the Lake county jail in Waukegan, charged with criminal libel.

Mayor William M. Edwards of Zion is the complainant against Baird in a warant issued by Justice of the Peace Harry Hoyt of Waukegan. The criminal action follows a suit for $50,000 damages filed by Mayor Edwards last July against Baird, Real America, Inc., and Lucille Hecht, a staf writer for the magazine.

The suit, set for hearing in the March term of the Lake county Circuit court, is based on an article in the July, 1935, issue of the magazine under Lucille Hecht's name. The article quoted Wilbur Glenn Voliva, general overseer of the Christian Catholic church of Zion, Edwards' political enemy.

NEW DEAL FOES IN DIXIE RALLY FOR FIGHT TODAY

Democrats of South to Seek Roosevelt's Defeat.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Macon, Ga., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Dixie's anti-New Deal Democrats meet here tomorrow to formulate an effort to elect anti-Roosevelt delegates to the Democratic national convention in Philadelphia. Adherence to the constitution and the American form of government is the basis of the appeal to be made to the Jeffersonian Democrats of the south.

The conference was called by Gov. Eugene Talmadge of Georgia, leading prophet of the anti-New Deal movement in the "solid south," and John Henry Kirby, millionaire lumberman of Houston, Tex. Mr. Kirby is chairman of the Southern Committee to Uphold the Constitution. Seventeen southern and border states have been invited to participate, and Mr. Kirby says fifteen states will be represented in the sessions tomorrow in Macon's Civic auditorium.

Sees Menace to Nation.

"We are preparing for a battle," Kirby said, "for the selection of the anti-Roosevelt national delegates in the south. The Democratic party and the nation itself are menaced by the departure of the present federal government from Jeffersonian principles. We are against this contempt of the constitution and the adoption of socialism and against the Russianizing of America."

Keynoters tomorrow are to be Gov. Talmadge and Mr. Kirby. The latter today declared that in all likelihood the meeting tomorrow will not indorse any individual as an opponent against President Roosevelt for the nomination at Philadelphia.

Whether a presidential preferential primary will be held in Georgia is a question not definitly settled. However, Gov. Talmadge intimated at Atlanta, so Mr. Kirby says, that no such primary would be called. It is in the hands of the state committee, which the governor controls.

Parley Draws Wide Interest.

Gov. Talmadge said last month that he probably would enter his name as a presidential candidate—if the Georgia state committee provides for a preferential primary. Without a preferential vote, the drive would center on selection of the national delegates from Georgia.

On his arrival here tonight Talmadge spiked a report that he would announce himself tomorrow as a Presidential candidate. "This convention," he said, "will deal only with principles, not with any anti-Roosevelt candidacies."

Wide interest is being shown in the conference, to which the term "Dixie Democratic Grass Rooters" has been applied. A battery of newspaper correspondents from the east is here, and the camera and sound men for the news reels have trundled in much apparatus. Participants are slow in arriving.

The central figure is Gov. Talmadge, whose state of Georgia is both President Roosevelt's southern home and storm center of the anti-New Dealist movement in the south. In his last campaign, in September, 1934, Gov. Talmadge in a rip-snorting platform battle, the like of which Georgia seldom had seen, ripped into the New Deal and assailed its alphabetical works.

Governor Wins in Walk.

He snapped his red galluses all over the state as he tore into the PWA, AAA, the Bankhead cotton control, the dole, and "frenzied finance" by burocrats in the marble palaces at Washington. Talmadge won in a walk, rolling up a vote of 178,400 to 87,049 for his opponent, and capturing 394 vote units as against 16 for his opponent.

The constitution, state's rights, and a government of laws are chief items in the declaration of principles of the Southern Committee to Uphold the Constitution. They read:

"We stand for that wise arrangement in the constitution by which the powers of government are divided into three branches—each independent of the other—the legislative, the executive, and the judicial.

"We are for holding the congress to its constitutional responsibilities of making the laws.

"We are opposed to usurpation of power by public officials not specifically granted them under the constitution.

Group Hits Burocracy.

"We are for the levy and collection of such taxes only as are necessary to the purposes of government, economically administered.

"We stand for a government of laws, under a written constitution as against a government of boards, bureaus, commissions and administrations, under which it is difficult to safeguard the public welfare.

"We oppose the use of public funds for the establishment of industrial enterprises to compete with private business.

"We stand for the representative form of government established in the constitution.

"We oppose the exercise of any power by either of the three coordinate branches of government not expressly granted in the constitution itself or reasonably to be inferred therefrom.

"We are opposed to the substitution of any form of government for the form provided for in the constitution unless such change is made through amendments to the constitution in the manner provided for in that instrument."

Talmadge Strong Contender.

In case the conference should decide to back an individual candidate to cohere the efforts of the Jeffersonians to send anti-Roosevelt delegates to the Philadelphia convention, Mr. Kirby holds that Talmadge would prove a strong contender. Old line Democrats who are opposing Talmadge's attacks upon President Roosevelt say he has made the best governor Georgia has had in more than twenty-five years.

Not only has Talmadge balanced the budget, but he has cleaned off $7,500,000 of debt, cut automobile licenses, trimmed excess baggage off the pay rolls, and chopped appropriations 20 per cent. He kicked out a highway commission and a utility commission, and reduced utility rates, a measure since applauded by some of the utility men.

He has had the support of dyed-in-the-wool Democrats, and the local politicians say if a preferential primary should be held and the governor runs against the President, he will lose the support of large numbers of these, but the battle will be worth coming to see. For instance, the powerful Atlanta constitution, supported Talmadge as governor, but opposes his onslaughts on President Roosevelt.

Hugh Howell, Democratic state chairman, a Talmadge adherent, is to preside at tomorrow's sessions. In greeting the "grass rooters" the Macon News tonight says editorially that in a preferential primary Talmadge would lose.

"If a hand picked Talmadge delegation is sent to Philadelphia," it remarks, "the committee on credentials will turn it down. Whether you like the New Deal or not, steps already are being taken to send a Roosevelt delegation to the convention, and even the tyros in political affairs know that it will be seated, as against a hand picked delegation."

Scouts Third Party Talk.

As to talk of a third party, Talmadge, scouting this, was quoted as saying: "The battle against Roosevelt is one that ought to be fought out in the Democratic party. I'm going to the Philadelphia convention, and a convention is the place where folks decide who is a candidate for President." Talmadge is planning a platform schedule that will take him into Illinois and other northern states, and, if possible, a speech at Madison Square Garden in New York.

There is some speculation tonight over the status of the Rev. Gerald L. K. Smith, organizer of the late Huey Long's share the wealth movement. A few days ago he called on Talmadge and said the Long forces had joined the Talmadge fight. Today Judge Richard Leche, nominated to be governor of Louisiana, said nobody speaks for his administration except himself.

Principal creditors listed include the First National Bank of Detroit, due $50,000 on loans; the Detroit Federation of Musicians, $15,000 for services; U. Grant Race and Associates, Detroit, $30,000, and Miles H. Knowles, Detroit, $35,000.

GOV. O. K. ALLEN, HEIR TO LONG'S MACHINE, DIES

Has Cerebral Hemorrhage in Bedroom.

Baton Rouge, La., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Gov. Oscar K. Allen, close political associate and successor to the late Senator Huey P. Long as "dictator" of Louisiana, died unexpectedly today of a cerebral hemorrhage suffered at the executive mansion.

GOV. O. K. ALLEN.

The 55 year old, white haired official was stricken in his bedroom just after he had taken his morning cup of coffee and was preparing to have breakfast before leaving for his executive offices.

A corps of medical men was hastily summoned, but the governor failed to rally and died at 10:40 a. m., an hour and 50 minutes after he was stricken. Among the attending physicians was Dr. C. A. Lorio, who attended the late "Kingfish" after he was shot last September in the corridors of the skyscraper state capitol.

Wife, 2 Children at Bedside.

The executive's wife and two of their children, O. K. Allen Jr., 21, and Asa Benton Allen, 11, were with him at the mansion at his death. A daughter, Mrs. Frederick Stare, is in Cambridge, England, where her doctor-husband is taking a postgraduate course. She was notified by cable of the death.

Soon after the governor's secretary, A. P. White, announced his death, officials and friends hurried to the executive mansion and formed a great crowd about the building.

The news quickly spread to Macon, Ga., where the Long forces were aiding in the "Grass Roots" conference of southern Democrats and anti-New Dealers called to meet tomorrow in Macon.

Gov. Eugene Talmadge of Georgia said he received a telegram yesterday from Gov. Allen saying he was not feeling well and would not be able to attend the Macon convention, but was sending some one to represent him.

At Height of Career.

The Rev. Gerald L. K. Smith, leader of Long's "share our wealth" clubs, commented: "It takes more than death to wipe out the words 'Long and Allen.'"

Allen's death came at the height of his political career. He had become head of the powerful political machine left leaderless by the violent death of Senator Long and recently was nominated to succeed Long in the United States senate.

The immediate cloak of authority will fall on the shoulders of James A. Noe, the lieutenant governor. Noe had an open break with Allen and some of the other leaders when they refused to permit him to run for governor and instead put up Judge Richard W. Leche, who was nominated in a landslide vote.

However, as lieutenant governor and presiding officer of the state senate, Noe always has been a stanch supporter of the administration of the late Long and the late Allen.

Expect Caucus Call.

It was expected a caucus of Long's old political associates would be called soon to decide who will assume actual control of their forces and to decide on some one as nominee for Long's senate vacancy.

Following the death of Long, Allen frequently said he wanted to retire to private life. He had amassed a sizable fortune in his career as school teacher, cotton planter, small town business man, and oil operator, and asserted he had no other wish than to settle down to a quiet life.

It was said this desire for abandoning public life prompted him to seek election for only the unexpired term of the late senator, which ends next Jan. 1.

MASSACHUSETTS HOUSE VOTES TO VOID ROGER WILLIAMS' EXPULSION

Boston, Mass., Jan. 28.—[Special]—Justice, lame and halting under the burden of three hundred years, limped a step nearer her goal today with the passage by the house of a resolution to revoke the exile of Roger Williams from the Massachusetts Bay colony. The feeble old girl has one more hurdle, however, for the senate still has to mull the matter over.

The resolution, perhaps one of the strangest documents ever to see the light of day in that breeding place of queer documents, a state legislature, reads:

"Resolved, that the sentence of expulsion passed against Roger Williams by the general court of Massachusetts Bay colony in the year sixteen hundred thirty-five be and hereby is revoked."

Williams, whose barbed tongue and dissenting views led to his establishment of the colony of Rhode Island as "a shelter for persons distressed for conscience," was the recognized pioneer of religious freedom in America. Born in London about 1604, he emigrated to America because of religious differences, then was expelled by Massachusetts for holding that a state has no jurisdiction over men's consciences and for demanding that the Indians be paid for their land.

Somewhere in the shades of Providence, R. I., there probably was heard a ghostly chuckle up the wispy sleeve of the good dominie today when the Massachusetts house passed that bill.

Principal Winslow's Trial Put Off Over His Protest

Because Judge John C. Lewe of the Criminal court is hearing another case, the trial of Charles S. Winslow, 63 years old, suspended principal of the Lake View Night High school, who is charged with embezzlement of $9,954 in board of education funds, was postponed yesterday. The delay was opposed by Winslow's attorney, Daniel A. Covelli, who pleaded that his client is entitled to trial on the criminal charge in advance of his hearing today before the school civil

IT'S CERTAINLY NO FUN BEING A "DENTAL CRIPPLE"

Today's soft foods rob gums of needed exercise—That's how gum troubles start

Switch TO IPANA AND MASSAGE today!

TAKE your dentist's advice. He knows the threat of today's menus to the health of your teeth and gums.

Modern soft foods do not give gums enough work. And that's why, so often, gums grow "touchy" and tender. That's why that tinge of "pink" appears on your tooth brush and why serious gum troubles are apt to follow neglect of this first evidence of "trouble ahead."

Dentists know how serious the warning of "pink tooth brush" really is. They know it's a signal that your gums need help ... need it quickly ... need the stimulation and exercise that come with Ipana and massage.

For Ipana is especially designed to benefit the gums as well as the teeth. Prove it for yourself—rub a little extra Ipana into your gums every time you brush your teeth. You'll feel the difference. There'll be a glow of new life, a healthier feeling in your gums. For new circulation rouses lazy gums, makes them more resistant, makes them firmer.

Don't let weakened gums offer an easy welcome to pyorrhea or Vincent's disease. Guard your gums and your teeth this sane, sensible way—this modern way. Switch today to Ipana Tooth Paste and massage.

Remember—A good Tooth Paste, like a good Dentist, is never a Luxury

O'NEILL, FORMER CHIEF OF POLICE, MUSICIAN, DIES

Leading Authority on Folk Tunes of Ireland.

Francis O'Neill, who was chief of the Chicago police force from 1901 to 1905, and was known as one of the greatest modern authorities on Irish folk tunes, died yesterday in his home at 5448 Drexel boulevard. He was 87 years old.

Mr. O'Neill had been in ill health since the death of his wife, Anna, 18 months ago, and had been confined to bed since Christmas. Death was attributed to a heart ailment.

FRANCIS O'NEILL.

Born near Bantry in Cork county, Ireland, Mr. O'Neill had an adventurous youth. He was cabin boy and sailor on vessels engaged in Mediterranean and Black sea trade for several years, and sailed around the Horn to New York, circumnavigating the globe from 1866 to 1869. He joined the Chicago police force in 1873, and remained in the department 32 years until his retirement in 1905.

Wounded by Burglar.

A month after Mr. O'Neill joined the force he was shot in the back by a burglar, whom he captured. He carried the bullet in his body the rest of his life. He became a sergeant in 1887, a lieutenant in 1890, and a captain in 1894.

He was named chief of police [the title then was general superintendent] by Mayor Carter Harrison in 1901, and was reappointed twice, serving until July 25, 1905, when he went into retirement. From then on he devoted himself to the study of Irish music and wrote seven books on the subject, collecting the lyrics and detailing the picturesque traditions surrounding them.

Library Given to Notre Dame.

Among the books are "O'Neill's Music of Ireland," "O'Neill's Irish Music," "O'Neill's Dance Music of Ireland," "Waifs and Strays," and "Minstrels and Music of Ireland." Some years ago Mr. O'Neill presented his famous library of Hiberniana to the University of Notre Dame.

Mr. O'Neill is survived by four daughters, Mrs. James L. Mooney, the wife of Capt. Mooney of the Wabash avenue station; Mrs. Daniel F. Crowe, Miss Mary O'Neill, and Miss Anna O'Neill.

Funeral services will be held at 9:30 tomorrow morning at St. Thomas Apostle church, 55th street and Kimbark avenue. Burial will be at Mount Olivet cemetery.

COURT TO CHARGE 3 WITH MAYHEM IN HEWITT CASE

Decides Girl Was Duped Into Operation.

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 28.—(AP)—A legal technicality today prevented the issuance of warrants charging mayhem against three persons accused of wrongfully sterilizing Ann Cooper Hewitt, 21 year old heiress.

Objections voiced by an attorney representing Dr. Tilton E. Tillman, one of two physicians accused by the girl, caused Municipal Judge Sylvain J. Lazarus to delay issuance of the warants pending a study of the little known statute invoked for the unusual case.

The attorney, I. M. Golden, hinted the unprecedented proceedings indicated Miss Hewitt had refused on the advice of her lawyer to accept responsibility for criminal complaints in line with her sensational story of having been made barren through a plot of her mother, Mrs. Maryon Hewitt McCarter.

Calls Her Feeble-Minded.

Judge Lazarus also received an affidavit from Dr. Tillman stating he examined Miss Hewitt before the sterilization operation and found her "feeble-minded, continuously unreliable, easily influenced, untruthful and dangerously oversexed."

Miss Hewitt and her attorney, Russell P. Tyler, were in court but took no part in the proceedings and did not comment.

Last week the heiress told her story to Judge Lazarus under oath and he complimented her on her clarity in testifying.

Miss Hewitt early this month brought a civil action asking $500,000 damages against her mother, Dr. Tillman, Dr. Samuel G. Boyd, and Mrs. Mary B. Scally, city psychiatrist.

Charges Sterilization Plot.

She charged they had her secretly sterilized so as to prevent birth of an heir who would have inherited principal of a trust fund left by her distinguished father, the late Peter Cooper Hewitt, New York electrical inventor.

But the 21 year old heiress, termed by her mother as "feeble-minded," refused to sign a criminal complaint in the case.

The district attorney then instituted proceedings before Judge Lazarus.

The proceedings were inaugurated under a section of the penal code interpreted by prosecuting officials as authorizing a magistrate to initiate criminal cases in instances where the person qualified to be the complaining witness failed to do so.

Mrs. William H. Rood Sues to Break Pacts on Estate

Mrs. Mary J. Rood, 59 years old, sued yesterday in the Lake County court at Waukegan to set aside two agreements she made with her husband, William H. Rood, of Antioch, former Chicago shoe merchant. On June 5, 1929, when she married Rood, according to Mrs. Rood's bill, she signed a document waiving all rights to his estate, valued at $70,000. News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Eddie Dowling, President Roosevelt's actor friend, and Ray Dooley, his wife and vaudeville partner, plan to try their luck in radio in Chicago. That Elgin watchmaker, who recently had the Mills Brothers and Art Kassel on the air, is planning a new show, starting probably some time in March over NBC if the chain can find a suitable hour. The show will feature Dowling as master of ceremonies, the stooging of Miss Dooley and the music of Benny Goodman, the nation's No. 1 exponent of the current fad in dance rhythm, "swing music." Helen Ward, who sings with Goodman's band at the Congress hotel, is also to have a featured spot. Richard Marvin is to produce the show.

Dowling headed the stage and screen division of the National Democratic committee in 1932 and has been identified with New Deal activities since then.

Fred Astaire and Irving Berlin have been engaged to introduce the hit tunes of the practically completed Astaire-Rogers picture "Follow the Fleet" on the "Magic Key" broadcast, Sunday, Feb. 9. On the following Thursday Horace Heidt will have the distinction of presenting for the first time on the air the complete score, written by Berlin. A dozen radio stars sought this privilege but the Berlin musical interests decided to let Heidt do the job. Astaire is reported getting $5,000 for his appearance on the "Magic Key," whose broadcast for that day will be sent around the world by short wave.

Astaire may be brought here Monday, Feb. 1, as the first guest on George Olsen's and Ethel Shutta's new NBC series. Other guests already lined up for subsequent programs are Kate Smith, Harry Richman, Frank Fay, Lou Holtz, and Bert Lahr. First half dozen programs will be aired from Chicago. When the band leaves the College Inn in the spring the show will be aired from either New York or Hollywood, dependent on Olsen's other work.

Buddy Rogers may be brought back to the College Inn in the spring. What with the repeated conjunction of Rogers' name with Mary Pickford's we are reminded that Marion Parsonette, who formerly produced Eddie Cantor's show, is on the way west to do the new series from Pickfair.

A letter from Orville Knapp from Dallas, Tex., states that he will open at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York City on Feb. 27. Oddly enough Wayne King, whom Orville Knapp followed at the Aragon ballroom last fall, is to go to this same New York hotel several months later than Knapp. Though Knapp failed to capture the fancy of the ballroom dancers he has been making a hit in Texas hotel spots.

The addition of Irene Beasley to the Rendezvous program [WLS at 7 tonight] has definitly improved the show. Phil Duey's voice is attractive and Clyde Lucas' music lends a distinctive note. Too bad the show is aired at such an early hour.

Don Pedro and his orchestra are to join the Musical Revue program over WMAQ-NBC at 3:45 p. m., beginning today. Alvino Rey, guitarist, is leaving the show. . . . Dorothy Lamour, NBC songstress who is Mrs. Herbie Kay, is en route to California and pictures. She was proclaimed one of radio's outstanding beauties, along with Harriet Hilliard and Helen Marshall, a week ago. Kay, now playing at the Edgewater Beach, will conclude his engagement there Feb. 21 and may join her on the west coast for an engagement in the film colony.

Harty Conducts Premiere of Sibelius 7th

Finnish Master Holds to His Convictions.

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Sir Hamilton Harty, making his third and last appearance of the season as guest conductor of the Symphony orchestra, gave the Sibelius Seventh its first Chicago performance yesterday afternoon. He abandoned chronology entirely in planning the program. The Sibelius work preceded even the Haydn.

In this latest of his symphonies [the eighth is probably finished by this time, but has not yet been produced] the Finnish master is as determined as ever to have no commerce with what he regards as false gods. Atonality and polytonality are still distasteful to him. So is rhythmic caprice as opposed to rhythmic variety.

For all its freedom of form, the huge single movement in which the symphony is cast is a logical enough development of Sibelius' original ideas on the treatment of large scale works for orchestra. The man who conceived the passionate [and for him, almost lyric] First Symphony back in the closing years of the last century is in all essentials the mature and expert architect whose artistic and esthetic philosophy [as of 1925] informs the structure of the Seventh.

Sir Hamilton was in his gayest mood yesterday. The audience did not realize it during the weighty Sibelius symphony, but when the smiling music of Papa Haydn filled the hall the conductor became as jocose as the creator and let the orchestra romp through the four sunny movements of the work. There is sweet, Alice in Wonderland humor in much of Haydn's music. The conductor entered into its spirit with great gusto.

Perhaps the high spirits of this likable baronet were partly due to the thought that he did not have to conduct the Walton symphony after the intermission. He considers it fine and sincere music, but since his audience of Thursday and Friday obviously did not, Sir Hamilton graciously changed the program and substituted the Dvorak "New World." A conductor can take no pleasure in presenting a new work when his hearers are hostile to it.

I do not think the Walton symphony got a fair trial. It has undoubted merit, and its apparent lack of consistent melodic inspiration might easily change into something else on even three or four hearings. The Thursday night house was sparse because of the bitter weather, and people living long distances away were worried about trains and the lateness of the hour. Walton was whipped by a combination of circumstances before his music started.

The next Tuesday concert, on Feb. 11, brings Rudolf Serkin here for his first Chicago appearance. His vehicle will be Beethoven's Fifth Concerto for piano, nicknamed the "Emperor."

The Woman's Symphony orchestra of Chicago announces that it has reached the half way mark in its campaign to secure seventy-five salary sponsors for the remaining concerts of this season. The campaign was the result of the wish of the Chicago Federation of Musicians to put the orchestra on a fully professional footing, with guaranteed fees for each member.

The Woman's Symphony orchestra plays its next program a week from Sunday at the Studebaker theater.

Mrs. Marjorie Ward Baker Named Trustee of Northwestern U.

Three new members of the board of trustees of Northwestern university were elected Monday night at a meeting in the Blacksone hotel to honor Mark W. Cresap, who became the new board president, following his recent election.

The new members are Mrs. Marjorie Ward Baker, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Mongomery Ward; Raymond C. Wieboldt, president of R. C. Wieboldt company, contractors, and Attorney John M. Elliott of Peoria.

Two other members of Mrs. Baker's family have been members of the board. Mrs. Ward, who donated $8,000,000 to the university, was a member from 1924 until her death in 1926. Her nephew, Charles R. Thorne, succeeded her and was recently made a life member.

Silk Blouses Offer Smart Color Contrast

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Interesting blouse information for the many shoppers who are sliding their shoulders into suits these days. According to carefully collected statistics we in this section of the suit buying public do not wear severely tailored blouses. Contrary to most buys we prefer the frilled or more feminine models to contrast the masculine tailored wools and suitings used for the popular simple suit.

So, putting aside our personal choice, we scoured the shops to learn what they are offering the knowing blouse buyer and discovered striped soft silk in stunning color contrasts, made with a chest pocket, with a turnover collar and short sleeves. The stripes are about an inch wide and are used vertically. The colors are knockout with plain dark suits.

Another big success will be the two faced printed silk taffeta blouse. The under side is navy blue, the upper scarlet, and the small design is in reverse on both sides of the silk. The peplum is worn over the skirt with a ruffle at the back, the sleeves are short, and the neckline is finished with the contrasting side of the taffeta to be tied in a large bow under the chin. A slick top for a navy blue suit.

Printed Paisley silk blouses are exceptionally effective with monotone suits. The soft, mellow designs in cheering bright colors are exquisite and most of the blouses are made with long fitted sleeves. Hand blocked silks in bright colors against chalk white backgrounds are tremendously high fashion. And so are the long sleeved plaid silk taffetas. You'll find some strictly tailored white blouses, the kind that have fine details, such as tucked bosoms, tabs for monogramming, short or long sleeves, and convertible collars, all of heavy, lustrous silks, with modest price tags.

Fashion photograph . . . a trick rolled brimline marks this new hat of tobacco brown soft felt. The high sliced-off crown is trimmed with a gay green ribbon. It's a good top for tweeds, knitted dresses, and wool suits when worn with a dashing top coat in a contrasting color, say green checks or plaids to accentuate the green trim on the crown. The hat is available in a Chicago shop.

Equivocal.

THE thermometer registered 20 below zero. An Evanston resident, Rena Selfridge, was running down the street when she saw a trailer parked in a lot. She admits she boldly looked in the window. A young woman was sitting on a couch, darning sox. What made our observer stare more was that the woman was wearing a sleeveless dress, and the window was open. A small stove obviously was throwing off heat, and it appeared to be about 80 above inside the trailer. Miss Selfridge ran on home and found it so cold in the house she was forced to wear her fur coat for the next hour.

* *

OUR favorite cold weather story of the week is Helen Hermanson's about the colored south side resident she observed as she was waiting for a street car at 55th street and Lake Park avenue. She saw him take a thermometer from his pocket, consult it, put it back, muttering to himself and shaking his head.

* *

THEN there is the waggish street car conductor on the Cottage Grove avenue line who calls to his passengers, "76th street. Change for the bathing beach."

* *

AROUND-the-town notes: The platform man on the Canal street elevated station shouting, "Around the loop!" and an immediate "Yo-ho-ho-ho-ho . . ." from platform waiters. . . . The Douglas Park "L" guard who was whistling as the wind swept the platform. "Throw another log on the fire." . . . The newsie at Crawford avenue and 26th street singing, "Moon Over Miami" as he crouched over a fire he had built.

Detroit Home, Valued at Million, Will Be Made Art Museum

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 28.—(AP)—Mrs. Russell A. Alger today offered her luxurious residence, fronting Lake St. Clair, to the city as a branch museum to be operated by the Detroit Institute of Arts.

The city council voted to accept the offer, which was announced through Edsel Ford, a member of the city's art commission.

The building, surrounded by about 10 acres of park land, is considered an excellent example of the Italian renaissance style of architecture.

"This gift is worth not less than $1,000,000," Ford said.

Yachting Gets Attention in Resort Waters

Florida Has Good Season for Fishermen.

BY JUDITH CASS.

IT SEEMS out of season here in the frozen north to write of yachting and cruising when the only sailing going on around here is out at Lake Zurich where a bruised rib rather than a "dunking" is the result of capsizing. But sailing is a topic of interest to its enthusiasts at any time of the year, whether one is off the shores of Florida or California; or whether one is a "Frostbiter" at Larchmont, Manhasset, Greenwich, Bristol, or the Great South Bay in New York.

Dinghy racing is the vogue in these eastern places every Sunday no matter how freezing the weather.

Because 1935 was one of the greatest fishing years ever known at Florida, hundreds of fishermen are making plans to try their luck in these waters again. George F. Getz, Ernest Hemingway, and Philip D. Holden are among those who made record catches, and marlin, tuna fish, horse mackerel and one 786 pound Mako shark were among the game.

Report Good Fishing Season at Florida.

The 1936 season already is off to a good start with a catch of three large sailfish within one hour made by Franklin M. Miller and his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Strong, who, with Mrs. Miller, are vacationing at Palm Beach. Mr. and Mrs. Frederic McLaughlin, II., hope to have good luck during the two weeks they will spend fishing in the Bahamas. They have left for the south, going by air to Miami and then to Nassau, where they will board the boat they have chartered to take them on their fishing expedition.

The Channel Islands off the coast of Southern California are popular sailing grounds the year 'round for the wind and the sun there are the same in January as they are in June.

Chicago Yachts in Florida Waters.

Several luxurious yachts owned by Chicagoans are in Florida waters for the winter; the Chieftain, owned by Mrs. Albert Blake Dick, which successfully rode through the hurricane, and the Micawber, owned by William A. Colvin, which also came through the severe windstorms without much damage.

Other craft include John L. Patten's Ajax; Thomas H. Howell's Thalia; and Lucius B. Manning's Alamo. Charles H. Morse Jr., and his Xanadu left last Friday from New Orleans for Useppa Island, the same day that his father left from Lake Forest to join the ship. From Useppa the Xanadu will go on to Jamaica.

A seacycle built for two is the latest novelty to enjoy a succes fou at Cannes and along the Cote d'Azur in France. American manufacturers have not been able to think of a name for the awkward contraption, but it is safe to say that by whatever name it is known, it will be featured at Chicago beaches next summer for already Florida resorts have placed orders for the machine.

Booster for Triple Benefit

Mrs. Leonard B. Ettelson is one of the young women interested in the benefit to be given on Friday, Feb. 7, for three charities, Emerson House, Madonna Center, and the Sunset Camp Service league. It will be an evening party, at the new Saks store, with a fashion show, refreshments, a bar, and dancing as entertainment. Mrs. Ettelson will not be here to enjoy the party, however, for she left the other day on a trip to Nassau.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

If, when the icy blasts are blowing, your eyes have the unhappy faculty of becoming pools literally instead of merely figuratively, you'll want to make sure that your mascara is of the waterproof variety. Unexpected cold weather tears can wreak plenty of havoc with m'lady's dignity and grooming unless she has taken this precaution.

One mascara that won our hearts completely last summer because of its ability to withstand a whole afternoon of swimming [if you can bear the thought!] is a good one for winter weepers to remember. Not only is it waterproof but it is vastly becoming as well. The beauty of it is that you can have lashes black as a raven's wing or a deep and dreamy blue without looking at all theatrical. This mascara is subtly flattering and, when properly applied, the lashes look soft and lustrous and much longer and sweepier than before.

Another very decided factor in its favor is the fact that it is so simple and so convenient to apply. It comes in an efficient little tube tucked into a satiny black case, and no water is needed for its application. Just a touch on the tiny brush does the trick. In case you inadvertently apply too much, if you keep brushing upward until every vestige of a bead has been brushed away and each lash is returned to its rightful place, there won't be the slightest hint of the spiky look that is so universally harsh and unbecoming. Moreover, this mascara won't smart or sting if, by mischance, you get some in the eye.

We're great boosters for eye makeup that is skilfully applied, as you probably have guessed by now, but at the same time we're willing to admit that a bad job is considerably worse than none at all. Since smeary mascara is one of the worst offenders, this one, impervious to tears, is a boon these windy days.

Good Morning!

Tuna fish leap; Spencer Tracy is tough; Jean Harlow's platinum locks have turned to brown in this waterfront opus appropriately titled "Riff-Raff."

It's not a bad picture as program offerings go, but both Miss Harlow and Mr. Tracy have had far better stories from their own and the audience's point of view. Also I think Miss Harlow should go back to being Hollywood's white-haired child. She's far more striking as was than as is.

As for the yarn:

Dutch is the best tuna fisherman on the coast—with the biggest head. Hattie works in a fish cannery where she has won the eye and attentions of the boss—a slick one. Hattie's been "that way" about Dutch since the two were kids—but she's meant just exactly nothing in his young life until one memorable night when she "spits lucky" for him. [I'll let the film explain that statement for you.] This incident leads to their marriage which is followed by just one thing after another including strikes, separation, jail for Hattie and the open road for Dutch—and a baby for the two of them.

Tardily Dutch discovers that he's really only a good tuna fisherman and, not, as he had fondly believed, a misplaced president or something. He also awakens to the debt he owes Hattie.

Action is rough neck. Same description fits the dialog which here and there sprouts some bright lines. Joseph Calleia as Nick, and George Givot as Nick's attorney, Mr. Markis, are good for several laughs, and Una Merkel, as usual, knows how to win a smile from the customers. Miss Harlow and Mr. Tracy work hard—and competently—but I think you will feel that they feel they have known better days. The cast boasts a lot of excellent supporting players.

I don't know much about waterfronts or the tuna fish industry, but so far as "atmosphere" goes "Riff-Raff" appeared to me to have a lot of the real article.

See you soon.

I'll Never Tell

By Roy Vickers

SYNOPSIS.

Torrance Esdale, young Englishwoman, asks her American employer, Hartlandt Massiter, to give Gerald Saranack, her childhood sweetheart, an engineering job in Mexico. Then Torrance learns that Gerald has married an English girl in Spain. She secretly gains entrance to Hillfoot, the home of Gerald's Uncle Julius, to retrieve a letter. She hears voices, hides, and watches as a girl secretes some jewels behind a brick in the fireplace. When the girl and her companion leave Torrance calls the police, then leaves, not wishing to explain her presence. When Gerald brings his bride to see her next day she recognizes Annabelle, his wife, as the same girl she had seen in Uncle Julius' house and at the hour it was later discovered Uncle Julius was murdered, though Annabelle and Gerald were supposed to have been in Paris. Gerald confesses to Torrance he still loves her, but he thinks Annabelle needs his protection. Torrance confides in Massiter, who unearths a motive for the crime. In his youth Julius Saranack befriended John Ellister. Later Ellister grew enormously wealthy through Mexican mines and made a will leaving everything to Uncle Julius. Massiter and Torrance fly to Paris, where Ellister resides. There Torrance is followed by a rat-faced man with a falsetto voice and huge hands. They discover Ellister has also been murdered. Torrance rushes back to warn Gerald, who is next in line to inherit the fortune. She accepts an invitation to stay at Hillfoot. Annabelle had been employed as governess by the Vanderlems. Torrance calls on them and recognizes Vanderlem as the man who had followed her in Paris.

INSTALMENT XXI.

TERRIFIED.

"Then d'you mean we're helpless?" Torrance asked.

"Yes," said Massiter, "just that—as far as getting an arrest in connection with either Julius Saranack or Ardus Ellister goes. Unless he's made some elementary blunder—and that kind isn't elementary. Do you think he recognized you?"

"He didn't give any signs of it."

"No," said Massiter thoughtfully and repeated, "That kind isn't elementary."

To his disappointment she said she must hurry away to be back before Annabelle.

"Mr. Massiter, you've been spending a lot of money on this."

"Well, 'a lot of money' is a relative term. I'm not risking as much as you are. And, anyway, we're going to see this through together. If you're squeamish about the money, you shall pay me back when you've married your man."

She shook her head.

"I shall never do that."

"Do you mean it?" he demanded eagerly.

"He's married already."

"O, that!" said Mr. Massiter with profound disappointment.

Considered as a house party, the trio was not a success. Not all Annabelle's skilful prattle could pierce Gerald's self-consciousness. Torrance was wondering how she could endure the strain endlessly, for there was little enough to do in the way of helping Annabelle beyond the housekeeping and interviewing the police who called two or three times a day for information about some trivial detail.

It was a welcome incident in a long dinner when Annabelle was called to the telephone.

Her voice came to them through the open door.

"Yes, yes, how charming of you! How's Minnie? And Alec and John? . . . Yes, I should simply love to, but I think I shall have to come without my husband. . . . O, about me? How amusing! I hope you gave me good character."

From the hall Annabelle's delighted laughter rippled round the dining room. She was still laughing when she came in.

"It was Tom—Mr. Vanderlem!" she exclaimed and added to Torrance: "My late employers, dear, such nice people! They want us to go and see them, Gerald, but I told them you couldn't."

"I heard you. What was that about your character?"

"O, isn't it rich! An inquiry agent came to see him and asked him questions about me."

"An inquiry agent? Why on earth did he want to make inquiries about you?"

"I don't know. And it wasn't a 'he'—it was a 'she.' A very superior person, Tom says, and she stayed to tea. From what Tom says, I should think the inquiry was probably started by Mr. Massiter. He wants to know whether I'm fit for the wilds, Gerry, and won't take your word for it."

"That damned cheek! I resent that and I shall tell him so."

"O, silly boy, don't make a fuss about nothing! It hasn't done the slightest harm."

Strangely Torrance found herself convinced. If Vanderlem and Annabelle had been guilty conspirators and had caught her spying upon them, it would be utterly unnecessary for Annabelle to reveal the fact. And yet if Annabelle were not in conspiracy with the rat-faced man, then it must have been pure coincidence that Vanderlem's governess happened to marry——

"Let's have coffee in the drawing room," said Annabelle. "You can't work again tonight, Gerry. You'll be ill."

It was Annabelle who discovered that in the old days Torrance and Gerald used to play bezique—and it was Annabelle who made them play now. During their second game she slipped off to bed.

For a few minutes they played on listlessly, then Gerald spoke.

"Annabelle has buzzed off because she wanted to show she isn't jealous. That means that she's already suspicious that there's something to be jealous about."

"I hope you gave me a good character."

Torrance slowly played a card.

"I was the inquiry agent. I went to Vanderlem's—to see if she was really employed with them."

"Why? . . . All right, you needn't tell me! But you found that she had been employed by the Vanderlems. Wasn't that enough, Torrance? You might be reasonably generous."

"Do you think I hate Annabelle?"

"I don't know. In a way, I hope you do. I think I would in your place."

"No, you wouldn't! If you were in my place, you wouldn't hate her—you'd be terrified of her!"

"That's absurd! Without a shadow of proof?"

Torrance spoke with slow deliberation.

"When I came here yesterday I'd just arrived from Paris where I'd been with Mr. Massiter. To see what we could find out about Prof. Ellister."

"You didn't tell me that."

"It wasn't necessary. You didn't think that I was lying when I told you that Ellister was dead. That's how I found out. We had to move about a bit while we were finding out. While I was moving about I was shadowed by a man. He nearly lost me when I went to telephone the American consulate. He drew close. He tried to hear what—I was saying, and for all I know he did hear. Do you believe me?"

"Don't be a fool! I might believe you're mistaken but I'd never believe that you're deliberately lying."

"I saw this man's face most distinctly. It isn't a face you could forget. The man who followed my in Paris was Mr. Vanderlem."

"There's no proof in that," he whispered.

"Of course not! If there had been we would have gone to the police."

"Did Vanderlem recognize you?"

"I can't be sure, of course, but I don't think so. In Paris he probably didn't know who I was—probably thought I was just Massiter's secretary—in which case it was natural enough that I should make inquiries on behalf of Massiter about Annabelle. But he warned her tonight that some one had been making inquiries and if he described me she'll be able to pick it up."

"Then you're absolutely convinced that Annabelle is a crook?"

"Aren't you?"

"Not absolutely convinced. Nor would you be on the evidence you've given me?"

"But Vanderlem——"

"You didn't know about Vanderlem until this afternoon. And before this afternoon you were convinced that Annabelle is a crook. Why?"

As she did not answer he went on:

"You've got some other facts that you're keeping back." She winced and he pressed her hard. "Come on, Torrance. Out with it."

"Not facts. I thought they were facts, but—but they can't be."

"Out with it," he whispered and his excitement communicated itself to her.

"All right!" she gasped. "I will in a minute. Go on playing. It will make it easier. And she might come in. I told you, I'm terrified of her."

A Quiet Period Should Precede Child's Bedtime

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

We were talking yesterday about the active, high strung child and the fact that he needs rest [relaxation] more than his small neighbor, who may be quieter physically and more matter-of-fact or calmer in temperament.

The rest and sleep of the high strung child have to be watched over—not with open solicitude, but with careful management. Sleep may need to be induced, but not in any way that the child can recognize, like coaxing or a show of anxiety.

With the child who "goes it" all day long, who responds with his emotions to many things, who is sensitive and imaginative, the approach of naptime or bedtime is often accompanied by tenseness. If a child is put to bed, his light turned out, and his door closed when he is in a keyed-up state, he frequently does not relax. Sleep comes slowly, he is restless, or even fearful.

One can often induce relaxation or sleep in such a child by seeing that he is quieted down for a while before being actually put to bed. There are various ways of doing this, depending upon your child, and also upon your own household duties.

Or, different devices may be used at different times. A quiet story, quiet play, quiet music or a little conversation together about pleasant, but unexciting things will do the trick. I have even [contrary to many advices on this subject] seen a tense child relax after a frolic—not a wild nor prolonged one but a jolly one nevertheless.

A message from another capable fashion show manager, Mrs. John W. Hooker, brings the news that the Winnetka board of Northwestern University settlement has set Oct. 3 as the tentative date for its annual show.

At the annual meeting of the board at Mrs. Warren Lamson's, Mrs. William W. Darrow was elected president; Mrs. Robert Butz, first vice president; Mrs. Donald Defrees, second vice president; Mrs. Richard Aishton, treasurer, and Mrs. William Truesdale, secretary. Mrs. Defrees and Mrs. Hooker, the outgoing president, are co-chairmen of the fashion show committee.

The Juniors of the Alliance Française will spend an interesting afternoon today in the Lake View avenue home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Brewster where John Storrs will conduct them on a tour of the house, talking about the 19th century drawings and paintings hung there. The Brewsters' home was built by Abram Poole.

Mr. and Mrs. Gaylord Donnelley have postponed the party they were to give tonight at the Saddle and Cycle club for Miss Jean Stevens and her fiancé, James O. Heyworth Jr., because Miss Stevens still is recuperating from an illness. However, according to the doctors, Miss Stevens, by resting quietly for the next two days, will be in perfect health for the wedding which will take place quietly on Saturday.

English-Speaking Union to Hear Journalist.

The English-Speaking union, which is having more evening than daytime meetings since Donald Welles became president, will have another of its interesting dinner parties tonight in the crystal ballroom of the Blackstone. Sir Arthur Willert, best known as a journalist although he served for two of the war years as secretary of the British war mission to the United States and as Washington representative of the British ministry of information, and later was in the foreign office, will talk on "England and the World Crisis." Mr. Welles will preside.

Members of the League of Women voters throughout the country are entertaining at dinner tonight and then hosts and guests will listen from 9:30 until 10 o'clock to a Personnel day program which will be given over a national network by the league.

The program will mark the high point in a two year campaign designed to make voters realize the appalling loss to them by the spoils system of politics.

Gov. Frank D. Fitzgerald of Michigan, one of the speakers on the program, will be entertained at a dinner at the Union League club here.

Supreme Court Goes to White House for Traditional Dinner

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—In an atmosphere of strained politeness, the chief justice and five associate justices of the United States Supreme court tonight calmly munched on the best food the new electric White House kitchen has to offer, oblivious to the whisperings of other guests on the strangeness of the scene.

At the head of the table sat President Roosevelt, host by rigorous White House social precedent to six of the nine men who are finding his alphabetical recovery unconstitutional. White House rules decree an annual state dinner for the Supreme court as well as an annual reception.

Seated near the justices was Attorney General Homer S. Cummings, who lifted his voice before the court in the only case the New Deal has won before its bar—the gold clause suits. Farther removed was Solicitor General Stanley Reed, who lost the recent AAA and processing tax cases. More removed was Donald Richberg, once mighty as NRA administrator and chairman of the national emergency council.

In their appearance the justices preserved the 2 to 1 ratio with which they outlawed the AAA. Those present who voted against the administration were Chief Justice Hughes and Justices Sutherland, Butler and Roberts. Those present who voted for the AAA were Justice Stone, author of the dissenting opinion and Justice Cardozo. Justices Vandeventer and McReynolds, who voted against the AAA and Justice Brandeis, who voted for it, were not in attendance.

Fascists Fight Paris Influence on Italy's Styles

Start Campaign to Create National Fashions.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Jan. 28.—Though the importation of foreign dress materials has been banned since sanctions against Italy began, Paris fashions are still the inspiration for most Italian dressmakers. Fascist authorities now are determined to create a national style.

The Fascist Federation of Dress Material Merchants therefore has announced a competition for posters and slogans to advertise the merits of Italian fashions.

Both artists and slogan writers are told to "show that in qualities of beauty and durability articles of clothing produced in Italy are the equal if not the superior of those formerly imported from abroad."

Meanwhile, the secretary of the Fascist party has just put an end to a little fashion war affecting men's wear. He has laid down a regulation that the winter uniform of the party must be made of genuine Sardinian homespun.

Since every member of the party must provide himself with one of these uniforms, many big clothing manufacturers have been trying to obtain a share of this profitable business by making imitation homespun. Sardinian weavers protested.

PARIS OPENINGS

PARIS, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Hemlines on spring dresses dropped several notches as a 1936 style starter when Paris dressmakers opened their first week of fashion shows today.

Germaine Bailly showed street costumes with hemlines between eight and 10 inches from the ground contrasting with the winter's shorter line. Silhouettes are generally slender.

Polka dot silk parasols are carried with summer suits of light colored artificial silk worn with polka dot blouses. Other summer play clothes combined colored piqué printed with tiny white figures and white piqué mess jackets. Colors are Delft blue, pink, and navy.

Spring town outfits featured full hem length capes lined with contrasting colors such as navy lined with red. They are worn over a bright wool or printed crêpe frock.

Also shown were ensembles combining loose three-quarter length wool coat and skirt with white blouse. Colors are generally spring-like in green, navy, gray and cocoa. Many crinkled fabrics are used.

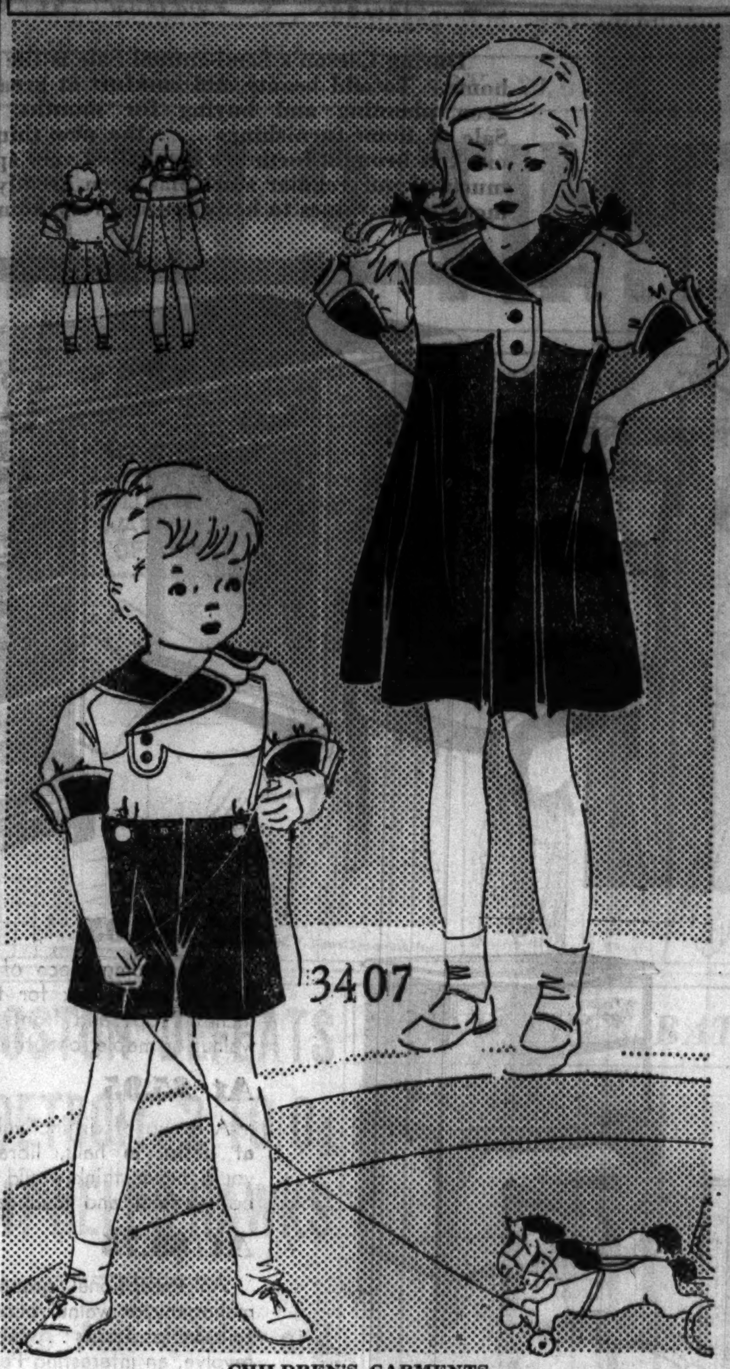
A FRIEND IN NEED

Couple Requires Clothing.

"Dear Miss Brown: We have been unable to obtain any clothing from the relief for more than a year. We are desperately in need of it, because my husband and I both are ill and under a physician's care. We must attend the clinic once or twice a week and some times oftener. My husband needs a size 40 suit and overcoat, shoes size 8. I wear size 48 and need a hat, large head size. We have a hard time keeping our house warm. It has high cellings and there are large openings and drafty windows. We have no drapes or curtains.

"MRS. S. J."

For Brother and Sister



CHILDREN'S GARMENTS.

If your boy and girl are of approximately the same age they will look attractive if dressed after the same pattern. The twin designs presented today are especially created for this purpose. Your little Jack and Jill both will appear smartly attired in these outfits featuring the cross-over yoke effect with a deep scallop. The cuffs and collars may be finished with frills or bias binding. Any color scheme you may choose will be effective.

Style No. 3407 is designed for sizes 2, 4, and 6 years. Size 4 requires 1⅝ yards of 35 inch dark material, with ¾ yard of 35 inch light material, and 3 yards of lace edging for the dress. The boy's suit requires 1 yard of 39 inch dark fabric, with 1 yard of 39 inch light material and 3 yards of edging.

Both patterns are available for the price of one if ordered in the same size. If you wish two sizes, each pattern will cost 10 cents.

Scrupulous Care of Person Is First Need of Business Girl

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

When an individual concentrates on a certain subject and questions every feature and angle of it, that person's words are worth hearing, as in the case of Elizabeth Gregg MacGibbon, who for years has devoted study to the woman in business. Department heads and executives the country over have been interviewed by this business expert. Endless research on causes and effects in the business girl's success or failure have been given intensive study. So, when Mrs. MacGibbon states a point on dress and personal grooming, her words deserve a wide audience.

In her book, "Manners in Business" [Macmillan company], is a chapter on appearance. Mrs. MacGibbon stresses the daily tubbing and deodorant use as vital a feature of one's success as ability in the particular line of work the girl has chosen. The author cites instances of lost jobs due to no other cause than carelessness or ignorance of the offense resulting from careless hygiene. Whether in doubt or not, the adviser argues for the use of a deodorant daily.

She calls attention to the unpleasantness of oily hair and hair shampooed infrequently, which will create as strong a prejudice against the girl employé as the offense mentioned above. Whether hair seems dirty enough or not for a shampoo, be on the safe side and get one at least once in two weeks, the girl is urged. If it is oily hair, more frequent washing is desirable. "Even if it isn't good for the hair," Mrs. MacGibbon remarks, "it is good for the job!" To which we may append the promise that frequent washing of the hair will do no harm if it is dried thoroughly each time.

Learning to set one's own wave, if professional help often enough to keep the hair trim and neat can't be afforded, is heartily recommended.

White accessories are good if kept white. The business girl may have to become part time laundress, our adviser says. Into the budget also must be reckoned the cost of dry cleaning, for spotted and stained dresses are anathema. Such other items as slipping shoulder straps showing soil, slips hanging below dresses, side fastenings gaping or minus hooks are all X's that mark the spot of the early fatality. Cleanliness, tidiness, smartness are the three principles to pursue religiously although they may involve time and effort evenings, Saturdays, and Sundays.

Saucepans of Glass Join the 'Ovenproofs'

Versatile Utensils Ideal for Hot or Cold.

BY MARY MEADE.

A more versatile, younger member of an already famous cookingware family has just been found under whatever cabbage leaf clever scientists use for such discoveries. You probably have used its older sisters for years—the dependable glass ovenware utensils. Now you can cook on top of the stove in glass as well!

These new glass saucepans come in two sizes—a one quart and a one and one-half quart. They're equipped with removable metal handles which clamp securely on the "lip" of the pan. With the handles they're set for any kind of top-stove cooking [except deep fat frying], while at serving time the handle comes off and the dish goes directly to the table! And if any bit of food is left in them there's no scraping the left-overs into a refrigerator dish. The same all round glass pan is made for heat or cold alike.

Glass covers to fit these grand saucepans are the same as those which fit the casseroles of corresponding size. So if you have a one quart casserole, with cover, all you need is the one quart saucepan to make an interchangeable set.

Since glass holds heat remarkably well, these top-stove dishes probably will prove good fuel savers. A low heat will mean more than lower fuel bills, however—it lessens the danger of sticking and burning just as surely as the new visibility.

An all-in-one main dish is one of the best proofs of the new utensil's fine qualities.

One-Dish Luncheon.

2 cups diced lean pork
¼ cup sliced onions
4 tablespoons butter
1 cup diced raw potatoes
½ cup sliced carrots
2 stalks celery, diced
½ cup seedless raisins
Salt, pepper
1 cup cooked rice
1⅝ cups hot water

Brown the pork and onions in the melted butter. Cover with the potatoes, carrots, celery, and raisins. Add the seasonings and top with cooked rice. Add boiling water until it can just be seen through the top of the food. Cover and simmer over a low heat for 45 minutes, adding more water if necessary. Serve right in the cooking dish if a glass top-stove saucepan is used.

The Stage

"Porgy and Bess," the Negro folk opera with score by George Gershwin, founded upon the Heywards' novel and play, "Porgy," will come to the Erlanger theater Feb. 17 for a two weeks' engagement. This is a New York Theater Guild production which will be offered here as the fourth item of the American Theater society's subscription series.

Glenn Hunter, the actor who appeared at the Blackstone theater recently as the star of "Squaring the Circle," will give a recital in Orchestra hall on Monday night, Feb. 17, under the title "Cues and Exits." His program will contain short scenes from four plays with which he has been identified—"Behold This Dreamer," "Merton of the Movies," "Peter Ibbetson," and "Young Woodley"—and a recital to piano accompaniment of Kipling's poem, "Recessional."

Morris Gest's first theatrical production in five years had its New York première Monday night. The play, called "Lady Precious Stream," is an adaptation of an ancient Chinese work which has had a notable success in London. . . . Tomorrow night the latest edition of the "Ziegfeld Follies," under Shubert management, will begin a Broadway run with Fannie Brice, Bob Hope, Gertrude Niesen, Josephine Baker, and Harriet Hoctor among its principals. Colors of Quilt Approximate Hue of Gold Nuggets

Spirit of 1849.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices: One South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

BY NANCY CABOT.

The approximate age of this quilt is determined by the title of the design, "Spirit of 1849." The original quilt was made in colors most closely approximating the gold nugget, which were brown, red, and tan. Today the quilt is pieced in gold, yellow, and orange, which is a vast improvement, thanks to dye manufacturers. The pattern is used as an allover design, and only 30 pieced blocks are required for an entire coverlet. When set together, these pieced blocks form an arrangement of interlacing circles without losing the nugget theme of the single block.

Bad Temper Is a Trait to Be Faced Squarely

BY DORIS BLAKE.

The girl admits that she is stubborn as a mule and that the man to whom she is engaged has an amiable disposition. She has a temper and flies off the handle for no good reason. She wonders if this can be the right man for her disposition. Maybe, she thinks, if she had a man who'd give her as good as she hands out, her future would hold brighter prospects.

That's a funny one, "Bad Tempered!" Going out of your way to avoid an issue you must confront squarely some time! Being knocked down and dragged around by a worse tempered mortal is not going to smooth out your future for you. With your temper and a mate built after the same pattern you two probably would land in the hoosegow.

No, you need the amiable man, but more you need calming down those easily ruffled feathers of yours.

There's a type of person who likes to go around talking about nerves getting the better of him and saying and doing things he wouldn't dream of doing except for nerves. On the other hand, there are people with just as harried nerves who realize that it's indecent to go taking them out on the nearest individual. There's nothing to brag about in tempers and stubbornness. But about taming them, there you have something to strut about! Just to show you're growing up!

Nerves are not strange devils that take possession of one against one's will. Tempers are simply explosions of badly trained nerves. Every time you go on the loose with an ill tempered blast you're contributing to further nerve delinquency. We associate nerves and temper because that's exactly where tempers brew, in an untrained nervous system. You don't see the real people of the world going off on a tangent every time their will is crossed.

According to CULBERTSON

LEAD-DIRECTING DOUBLE.

Every bridge player past the novice stage knows the nature and function of penalty and takeout doubles. There is, however, a third type, not nearly as well understood but equally valuable. It is technically a double for penalties, but it carries a special implication: it directs the opening lead! True, its command sometimes is subtle, requiring careful thought of the partner of the doubler, but close analysis of the bidding almost always will help him to interpret correctly. Today's hand is typical.

♣ A 8 7 4

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	2 hearts	Pass
2 no trump	Pass	3 no tr'mp	Double*

*Final bid.

It hardly need be mentioned that East's double was highly speculative, but North's bidding had been of the [illegible] [illegible], in any event, East wanted that heart suit led through! Hence his double.

Undoubtedly, West would have opened one of his five card suits without the double. And, had he done so, three no trump would have been "on ice" regardless of the later defense. Declarer would merely clear the spade suit and if West shifted to a heart, put up dummy's ace. Now the fourth spade would be cashed, as well as the second high diamond and, after the ace and king of clubs were played, East would be neatly thrown on lead with a club. He would cash two good clubs and the heart king, but would have to concede his low heart to dummy's queen for the ninth trick.

With the jack of hearts opening, however, it was a different story. West could not be prevented from capturing the lead later with his queen of spades and a second heart lead insured the defenders their fifth and setting trick.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: Was it correct or incorrect to bid two clubs on the following hand:

♠ Q x x, ♥ A x, ♦ A, ♣ A K Q J x x x?

Answer: The hand contains 4½ honor tricks and slightly less than four losers. Therefore, an opening two club bid is justified.

Skinny? ADD 5 POUNDS OF ALLURING CURVES ...this quick new way or no cost!

It's Glands Starving for Iodine That Keep You Skinny, Nervous, Rundown!

Natural Iodine in Kelpamalt, New Mineral Concentrate from the Sea, Helps Build Rich, Red Blood, Pounds of Good, Solid, "Stay-There" Flesh, Steady Nerves and Day-Long Energy!

"Have been underweight for years due to digestive disorders," says Miss Betty Noever, "and since taking Kelpamalt for a few weeks I gained 10 lbs. and now feel like a new person" . . . "Had stomach trouble for years. When I take Kelpamalt I have a hearty appetite for everything and suffer no distress. Kelpamalt has banished constipation, which I have had all my life."—W.D.C. . . . "Gained 8 pounds with one package of Kelpamalt and feel 100% better."—Mrs. W.J.S.

As a result of tests covering thousands of weakened, rundown, nervous, skinny folks, science now claims that it is GLANDS STARVING FOR IODINE that keep you pale, tired-out, underweight and ailing. When these glands don't work properly, all the food in the world can't help you. It just isn't turned into "stay-there" flesh, new strength and energy.

Regulates Metabolism

The most important gland—the one which actually controls body weight—needs a definite ration of iodine all the time—NATURAL ASSIMILABLE IODINE—not to be confused with chemical iodides which often prove toxic, but the same iodine present in tiny quantities in spinach and lettuce. Only when the system gets an adequate supply of iodine can you regulate metabolism—the body's process of converting digested food into rich, red blood and cell tissue.

Comparison of Minerals in KELPAMALT vs. VEGETABLES
3 Kelpamalt Tablets Contain:
1. More Iron and Copper than 1 lb. of spinach, 7½ lbs. fresh tomatoes, 3 lbs. of asparagus.
2. More Calcium than 1 lb. of cabbage.
3. More Phosphorus than 1½ lbs. of carrots.
4. More Sulphur than 2 lbs. of tomatoes.
5. More Sodium than 3 lbs. of turnips.
6. More Potassium than 6 lbs. of beans.
7. More Magnesium than 1 lb. of celery.

To get this vital mineral in convenient, concentrated and assimilable form, take Kelpamalt—now recognized as the world's richest source of this precious substance. It contains 1,300 times more iodine than oysters, once considered the best source. 6 tablets alone contain more NATURAL IODINE than 486 lbs. of spinach or 1,387 lbs. of lettuce.

Add 5 Lbs. 1st Week or Trial is Free!

Try Kelpamalt for a single week and notice the difference. See flattering extra pounds appear in place of scrawny hollows. At once you get a splendid appetite, night-long sleep. You will feel better, and have new strength and energy. If you don't gain at least 5 lbs. in one week the trial is free. 100 jumbo tablets are 4 to 5 times the size of ordinary tablets and cost but a few cents a day to use. Try it today.

MAKE WAY FOR TINY; HE'S AFTER A GOLDEN GLOVE

313 Lb. CCC Boxer Seeks Title.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Make room—and make a lot of it—in those Golden Gloves heavyweight ranks.

Here comes Tiny Howard from Grand Rapids. A mere shadow of a man is he, standing six feet four in his stockings and tipping the scales at a trivial 313 pounds. He wears No. 13 shoes and size 48 trunks.

Lieut. Ralph Hauenstein dug him up in a CCC camp in Michigan and put him into competition in the huge tournament conducted by the Grand Rapids Press.

Tiny is among 1,000 amateur boxers from all parts of Michigan who are already engaged in a furious flurry of fisticuffs to determine just which eight boys will represent the Grand Rapids Press and incidentally almost the entire state of Michigan in THE TRIBUNE's Tournament of Champions here which opens on Feb. 24.

Seven State Districts.

This Grand Rapids tournament, one of the largest Golden Gloves enterprises anywhere, is made up of seven district tournaments in addition to the Grand Rapids Press finals to be held on Feb. 13 and 14.

The Pontiac Press completed its tournament last week before the largest crowd that has ever attended any kind of a boxing match in that city. Eight novice and eight open division champions were crowned on that night and these 16 boys will take part in the Grand Rapids finals.

There is fighting this week in the Flint Daily Journal's tournament, in the Kalamazoo Gazette's meet, in the Bay City Times' and Ann Arbor News' carnival, and also in Muskegon and Battle Creek. Grand Rapids will stage its preliminaries Feb. 3, 5 and 7, and will qualify two boys in each weight division for the finals.

So it seems that Tiny will need every one of those 313 pounds if he is to catch on with this team.

Ann Arbor Team Strong.

Before the eight Grand Rapids champions are selected more than 900 actual contests will have been staged.

The team which will represent the Ann Arbor Daily News is the early favorite to win the state championship. There are more than 100 boys entered there. Included in the Ann Arbor field are such stars as Patsy Urso, Jimmy Urso, George Barnett, Bill Mitchell and Tommy Morris.

The Urso brothers, already familiar to Tournament of Champions fans together with Stanley Cieslik, another Ann Arbor entry, are strong favorites to win places on the Grand Rapids Tournament of Champions team.

Ann Arbor is located so near Detroit that numerous amateurs find it more convenient to fight for Golden Gloves honors there than to enter the much larger Detroit Free Press competition.

DAVENPORT OPENS

Davenport, Ia., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—The Davenport Daily Times' seventh annual Golden Gloves tournament will start tomorrow night at the Moline fieldhouse. Two hundred fighters from eastern Iowa and western Illinois have entered. The opening card will consist of 30 or more bouts, all three rounders. Thursday night a new list of boys will box.

Teams from 15 gymnasiums and clubs in Iowa and Illinois will compete for the team championship. The East Moline A. A., coached by Bert Visconi, will defend the title won last year.

The quarter finals in both novice and open divisions are scheduled for Feb. 5. The semi-finals are on Feb. 6, and the finals on Feb. 12. George [Jabber] Young, a coach of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE Golden Gloves team, and John O'Donnell, sports editor of the Davenport Democrat, have been selected as referees.

Talking It Over

[Copyright: 1936: By The Chicago Tribune.]

FRANK GAUL, shock troop quarter back and baseball captain and catcher at Notre Dame, has been telling the boys about the tough winters in his native Maine, but during the current cold snap he walked from his room in St. Edward hall to the car line, about two blocks, and froze both ears. . . . Jim Stewart, athletic director at Southern Methodist university, and George White, sports editor of the Dallas News, were in the loop yesterday in the interest of the sports program at the Centennial exposition to be held this summer in Texas. . . . Carl Hubbell, Giant southpaw, is enjoying considerable success dealing in oil leases and royalties in central Oklahoma. . . . Hubbell's home is at Meeker, Okla. . . . Coleman Clark, table tennis expert, is making a film for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer in Hollywood. . . . George T. Stafford of the Illinois physical education department taught the game of badminton to Jess Willard, present national champion, who isn't the former world boxing champion but an instructor in physical education in the east. . . . Ed Barrow, business manager of the Yankees, and Tom Yawkey, owner of the Red Sox, sat together recently watching the American league's "Take Me Out to the Ball Game" film. . . . It was the first time the Boston chief got that close to a magnate this winter without coming away with a few ball players. . . . Tom Walsh, Westgate Valley pro and secretary of the Illinois P. G. A., has been in the Presbyterian hospital for the last week, suffering from a nervous condition of the stomach, but is expected to leave for a rest in Florida within a few days. . . .

CARL HUBBELL.

TOM YAWKEY.

The comeback plans of Jim Londos, former heavyweight wrestling champion, include a tour of Europe. . . . Londos is training regularly at Madison Square loop gymnasium. . . . Gordon Byrdson, former captain of the Chicago Shamrocks and brother of Glenn Byrdson, newest member of the Chicago Blackhawks, is a golf professional at one of Canada's finest clubs just outside of Toronto. . . . Red Burman, Jack Dempsey's new heavyweight, used to box under his right name of Burns. . . . Changed to Burman when he went to New York where Jewish boxing fans predominate. . . . Hank Bath's father and brother were at the ringside last night when he met Bill Treest at Chicago Stadium. . . . They didn't come to Chicago for the fight but to sell a carload of sheep at the stockyards. . . .

Reports of the championship committee of the United States Golf association shows that the 1935 open tournament drew $12,492 against $7,979 for 1934, while the women's national, with a deficit of $322 in 1934, showed a profit of $1,622 for last summer's meet. . . . Joe Louis was scheduled for 15 rounds in each of his last four bouts but fought only 15 in all, six against Carnera, four with Baer, four with Uzcudun and one against Retzlaff. . . .

Ten Years Ago Today—Loren Murchison, I. A. C. sprinter, broke the world record in the 70 yard dash when he ran the distance in seven seconds. . . . Johnny Dundee lost a ten round decision to Joe Glick in New York. . . . Bucky Harris, manager of the Washington Senators, signed a three year contract at a reported salary of $100,000.

Cubs Sign Hartnett, English and Bryant; Only 14 to Go

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The names of Clay Bryant, Gabby Hartnett, and Woody English, speedball pitcher, catcher, and captain of the Cubs, respectively, yesterday were added to the list of players whose signed contracts have been received at Wrigley building headquarters. This lifted the total signers to 18, leaving only 14 to go to complete the roster.

It is expected that the big news of the remaining 14 signings will be doled out during the next week to the aggressive young journalists who so vigorously, avidly, and proudly ferret out the elusive items about how ball players break down and consent to accept sums varying from $3,000 to $15,000 per annum.

The Time Approaches.

There should be especial shoutings when the signed documents of Chuck Klein, Bill Lee, and Bill Herman come in. Then plans can go on apace for the exciting departures for Catalina on Feb. 18 and Feb. 24.

Manager Charley Grimm and Traveling Secretary Bob Lewis will ride herd on the first squad, which leaves the North Western station three weeks from 9:30 o'clock last night.

Owner P. K. Wrigley says he is undecided as to whether he will go out to Catalina ahead of the team or with one of the squads, but is arranging his affairs so he can spend the three weeks' training period on his magic isle and also accompany the team on its roll across the continent into Florida.

Owner J. Louis Comiskey of the White Sox made it known at a turkey luncheon at Comiskey park yesterday that he had received a new offer from the New York Yankees for Shortstop Luke Appling. Mr. Comiskey said that he had been offered four Yankees in exchange for his Georgia boy. He added that he would not transact any business with the Yankees under any circumstances.

The Sox Can't Forget.

It is said that when the Yanks were on top of the heap and were reputed to have 80 ball players under contract, half of them under cover, Col. Jake Ruppert, owner of the Yanks, turned a deaf ear to the urgings of the late Charles A. Comiskey and subsequently J. Lou, that the Yankees help out the then suffering Sox. According to stories at the time Ruppert told the Comiskeys that he "spent a fortune each year on scouting and other methods of acquiring players" and suggested the Comiskeys could scratch their heads until such time as he would deal with them.

It's Sweet Music.

While the tables haven't been reversed by any means, the Yankees recently have been doing a lot of sobbing about the way the other American league organizations have been snubbing them, sobbing which J. Lou describes as sweet music to his ears.

A Rolling Pin

Gathers no moss, to be sure, but it does make a handsome dent on papa's head when he comes home late. Mama thinks she has a real punch, but she should see the Golden Gloves boxers in action!

Mama's chance, as well as yours, will come on Feb. 24, 25 and 26 when the Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions is held at the Chicago Stadium. And then, of course, you will want to see the finals March 6 at the same arena.

The early bird gets the best tickets, just as the late papa gets the rolling pin. Prices for the Tournament of Champions are 40 cents, 66 cents, and $1.10. For the finals they are 55 cents, $1.10, $1.65, $2.20, and $3.30.

LAST NIGHT'S RESULTS.

Boston, 2; Detroit, 0.

Rangers, 3; Canadiens, 2 [overtime].

Boston, Mass., Jan. 28.—(AP)—The Boston Bruins turned back a furious attack during the scoreless first period and then countered in the other frames for a 2-0 shutout over the Detroit Red Wings tonight before a packed crowd of 14,000 at the Boston Garden. The defeat left the National Hocky league leading Wings only half a game ahead of the Chicago Blackhawks, whom they meet at Detroit Thursday.

Goalie Tiny Thompson was under terrific pressure during most of the first 20 minutes, and he was unable to relax until late in the second, when Bill Cowley scored on a combination play with Eddie Shore and Lorne Duguid while Detroit was short handed.

Big Night for Shore.

Shore, who came to Thompson's rescue many times during the early barrage, also figured in the second Boston goal, launched by Dit Clapper during the second minute of the third period. Clapper passed to Shore, who relayed the puck to Cooney Weiland. The latter drove hard at Goalie Normie Smith's pads and Red Beattie poked the rebound into the Detroit cage.

RANGERS, 3; CANADIENS, 2.

New York, Jan. 28.—(AP)—A goal in the last 20 seconds of overtime enabled the New York Rangers to defeat the Montreal Canadiens, 3 to 2, tonight.

The winning goal came after Manager Lester Patrick had benched his son Lynn and substituted the veteran Frank Boucher as center on the line with Howie Morenz, making his debut in a Ranger uniform, and Cecil Dillon. Boucher got the puck from Babe Pratt, another newcomer, and handed Dillon a perfect pass for the goal.

Morenz, secured Sunday from Chicago in a trade for Glen Brydson, figured importantly in New York's two first period goals. He assisted Dillon on the opening, less than two minutes after the start, and scored the second on a gang play.

Regents Hear Meanwell and Then Adjourn

Madison, Wis., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—The prolonged friction between Dr. Walter E. Meanwell, University of Wisconsin director of athletics, and Dr. C. W. Spears, football coach, developed into open warfare today as the regents' committee of five, appointed two weeks ago to investigate the matter, began their quiz.

Only one belligerent, however, was given an opportunity to state his case. After Meanwell had been on the witness stand for four hours, in an eight hour session, the regents tonight decided to adjourn until Feb. 6, when a special meeting will be called to consider the testimony of Coach Spears and other witnesses for both sides.

Dr. Meanwell, who was accused of instigating the circulation of a petition by Captain-elect John Golemgeske among the members of the football squad requesting Spears' removal shortly after the season closed, appeared at the hearing late today with a voluminous file of letters and other evidence supporting his denials.

Not So, Says the Doctor.

He denied flatly he had attempted to persuade basketball players not to go out for the football squad and offered letters to show he had requested many athletes to seek football as well as basketball recognition. Before becoming director of athletics Meanwell had been basketball coach for 20 years and was reported to have favored that sport to the detriment of all others.

Meanwell readily admitted giving drinks of whisky to Golemgeske and Jim Nellen as the Badgers were returning by train to Madison from a beating at the hands of Northwestern on Nov. 16. He said he apologized to the boys because his supply of liquor

In the WAKE of the NEWS

WAKE MAIL BOX.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla., Jan. 28.—Dear Wake: Early in January you printed the question of R. H. G.: "Were the last five coaches of the University of Wisconsin dubs or is there too much intelligence in the student body?"

As for my background, I spent five years at Wisconsin, M. A. in '33. During those years I was in the same classes with some of the athletes, friend of some, waited on table several times at a certain "athletic" fraternity, and taught English for six months to the son of one of the five "dub" coaches. . . .

Unfortunately, I cannot state certain pertinent facts told me in confidence by certain men in the faculty, but this much I state with assurance:

A majority of faculty and students at Wisconsin have the old-fashioned idea that a university is an educational institution, not a Madison Square Garden. Secondly, both faculty and students resent the lower scholastic requirements exacted of athletes. [Though goodness knows that after a tough scrimmage no man is fit to study.]

Thirdly, many persons do not relish the idea of special tutoring for athletes. They also have an idea who pays certain instructors for such tutoring. Fourthly, they think an athletic impresario is greatly overrated when he gets as much or more money than a man who has struggled long and hard to be a scholar.

Fifthly, some of the students suspect that Doc Meanwell and some of the other coaches don't love each other as much as they might. And Doc usually wins out. Sixthly, there is a rumor that a certain football coach received a little gift from the alumni besides his salary . . . and you know alumni want winning teams—or else.

Lastly, Wisconsin athletes no longer are sold on the idea of getting "kick drunk" just to hold the coach's job for him. They are skeptical about the "good old school spirit."

But why go on? Wisconsin is a house divided. And you know the moral of that. So you won't think I blindly regard Wisconsin a paragon of educational virtue playing St. George and the dragon with the coaches, hark to this:

When Lindbergh attended Wisconsin he was considered a mediocre student. But after he flew the Atlantic, darned if they didn't resurrect one of his old English themes, print it, and pass it out to us sheep as the brilliant brain-child of their own fair-haired boy. And take it from me, when Lindbergh took up flying he didn't give up a promising beginning as a writer.

So nobody will think I'm making faces behind people's backs, my name is Roger Fontaine, Chicago.

A Trafic Tale.

Mirage? Well, some might call it that but I
Can tell you that my spirit journeyed far
On Persian sands, where mountains gird the sky,
And cities ruined by the giants are.
A single castle stood with towers crowned
By pinnacles that pierced the welkin's gray,
And there was rumbling and mighty sound,
As giants bellowed from a vanished day.

Ah well, I mused, and why not enter in?
The governor was pounding on the gate.
His stallion waxed impatient at the din;
And then a voice, "But, Officer, we're late!"
A bloody bull's-eye turned to malachite—
So much for mounted "cop" and trafic light.

7,127 ACCLAIM LOSER IN BEST BOUT OF SEASON

Heavyweights Stand and Slug.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Bill Treest, a graduate of Golden Gloves in 1934, knocked down Hank Bath three times last night at the Stadium to win a ten round decision. But before Treest's mitted hand was lifted high in recognition of triumph, the 7,127 customers saw the greatest professional scrap of the winter season. These fans, who paid $8,095, witnessed a bargain battle which was worth many times the price paid for the recent short lived scrap between Joe Louis and Charley Retzlaff in the same arena.

Treest won. No one disputed the fact. The decision was unanimous. He knocked Bath down for a nine count in the second round, dropped him for no count in the fifth, and hammered him to the floor again with a right to the jaw for nine seconds in the eighth round. But in between these spectacular moments Bath slammed home razor-like left hands which nearly closed Treest's eye in the eighth round and blinded him in this eye entirely in the next round.

Crowd Cheers Bath.

Bath, the protégé of Jack Kearns, came into the ring amid a wave of booing. He left with hundreds cheering. No greater tribute has been paid a beaten fighter.

Chicago had a prejudice, perhaps, because of Bath's indifferent performance in this ring three weeks ago. Certainly Chicago favored Treest from nearby Batavia. And while Treest backed this confidence in royal fashion, Bath earned encomiums by his willingness to exchange punches and by his fighting heart.

Treest was too experienced. He also carried a right hand which dropped with detonating power when opportunity was presented. Billy began with a barrage of rights and counter body blows which gave him an advantage in the opening round. In the second round, Treest walloped Bath on the jaw and Hank dropped to his knees to take a nine count. Many might have excused the Colorado fighter had this been the end. But before the bell clanged Bath had swarmed to the attack and forced Treest to stand and exchange punches in a wild flurry.

Keep Right On Fighting.

The third round was a vicious punch for punch battle. Neither heard the bell and Kearns leaped into the ring to help Referee Joe McNamara separate them. The fourth round was slower, and no wonder, for the men had traveled at an exceptional pace.

In the fifth, after continued hammering, Treest again crashed a right to Bath's head and Hank was down and up before a count could be started. Treest broke loose again in the seventh round, after an even exchange in the sixth. In the first minute Bill countered a right which dropped Bath as if he had been shot. But he wouldn't stay down. At the toll of nine Bath came up and weathered a hurricane of punches by which Treest thought he could overcome his rival, but which only served to weaken him for later efforts.

Bath began sharp shooting in the eighth. He displayed a long left lead which rapped Treest's left eye three times without return and from which Bill's eye popped out like a balloon. Three minutes later and Treest could see only with his right eye. Even so, one of Bill's left hooks made Bath sink almost to the floor when it scored a bullseye.

Both Tire Badly.

Both were tired in the final two rounds. Treest, perforce, retreated, because of impaired vision, and Bath, who followed desperately, could not connect. The rounds were even, but because of Treest's early lead none could question the decision.

Heinrich Kohlhass, German heavyweight, who owns the 1932 International Golden Gloves title which he won at Soldiers' field, won a five round decision over Tom Baxter of Buffalo. Baxter was down for one second in the first round, but rallied to hold Kohlhass in the third and fifth while winning the fourth round.

Johnny Erjavec of Duluth, Minn., took a slow five round decision from Woody White of Evansville, Ind., after a brilliant start which faded because of exhaustion. Harry Thomas, Eagle Bend, Minn., stopped Big Bill Fogarty of Syracuse, N. Y., in two rounds. The other preliminaries, all between heavyweights, also ended in knockouts. Buddy Knox of Dayton, O., needed one round to whip Spin Nelson of St. Paul. Al Kublak, Pulaski, Wis., knocked out Lou Goode of Chicago in five rounds, and Eddie Slake of South Bend, Ind., knocked out Joe Daily of Fort Worth, Tex., in one round.

A committee will meet the visitors. The group will be headed by Robert A. Gardner, president of the Yale Club of Chicago, and Frederick L. McNally, president of the Yale Scholarship Trust, which will benefit from the sale of boxes for the game.

Col. Charles C. Haffner Jr., vice president of the Indoor Polo Association of America, who arranged the contest, received word that four players will make the trip.

Wilson Leads Polo Team.

The wearers of the blue will be Robert E. Lee Wilson, captain of the team; William B. Rand Jr., and the Dominick brothers, Bayard and Peter.

The Army lineup is set, with Maj. Dick Hunter scheduled for the lead-off No. 1 berth, Lieut. Col. H. D. Chamberlin for No. 2, and Capt. Larry G. Smith for defense. Maj. Hunter, a regular army officer, is stationed at the 124th Field Artillery, and captains the Remblers trio in the Metropolitan Polo league. Lieut. Col. Chamberlin and Capt. Smith are from Fort Sheridan. The team's alternates will be Capt. Larry Ladue and Capt. Edwin Greiner.

MIDGET AUTOS RACE TONIGHT AT RIDING CLUB

Thirty-two drivers will face the starter in ten midget auto races tonight on the new indoor speedway at the Chicago Riding club, 333 East Erie street.

The highlight of the card will be a match race between Ronnie Householder, a local favorite, and Frank Brisko of Milwaukee.

Curly Mills has expectations of being out in front at the finish of the forty lap feature race. Having won more than four hundred races out of eight hundred starts, Mills has had only two crackups. Emil Andres and Johnny Baldwin, both spectacular drivers, must be reckoned with.

In addition to the forty lap event, an Australian pursuit race and a novelty handicap duel will embellish the inaugural program.

Taking part in the races, Pat Warren, Jimmy Snyder, Wally Zale, Lou Schneider, Tony Willaman, Harry McQuinn, and Chuck Neisel are among the drivers who will see plenty of action on the new Riding club track.

WELLS, FORMER GOPHER, NAMED YALE LINE COACH

Time, 1:11 3-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Great Haste, $9.60 straight, $3.40 place, $2.80 show; Bellum, $3.10 place, $2.60 show; Pre-eminent, $3.60 show. Winner, b. f., 4, by Haste-Stephanie. Owner, Miss A. Doris. Trainer, H. L. Campbell. Start good. Won driving; place same.

GREAT HASTE, on the outside in early part and clear of interference, assumed lead in final sixteenth and just lasted to win. BELLUM was pounds the best, was the victim of repeated interference. He was taken to the outside in stretch, closed with a rush, and would have won in another stride. PRE-EMINENT was kept close to pace for five furlongs, then tired as if short. MISS RAINBOW ran good race. COLONEL ED ran well. MISS TROPHY faded in last furlong.

FIFTH RACE—One mile. Four year olds and up. Purse $1,200. Net value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50.

Time, 1:36 2-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Sablin, $5.00 straight, $3.20 place, $2.30 show; Corinto, $4.10 place, $2.80 show; Mountainy Man, $2.70 show. Winner, b. g., 4, by Display-Flavante. Owner, E. F. Seagram. Trainer, F. Gilpin. Start good. Won driving; place easily.

SABLIN was placed on the outside, broke alertly, was sent to the front with a rush, set fast pace, and stood long drive gamely. CORINTO rated along to top of the stretch, where he was taken to outside and, closing with a rush, just failed to get up. MOUNTAINY MAN was hustled along all the way and was next best. BRANNON got away fast, followed pace for six furlongs, then quit. BLACKBIRDER closed a big gap. PLAYVOTE ran a good race and is worth noting.

SIXTH RACE—Mile and one-sixteenth. Claiming. Three year olds. Purse $1,000. Net value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50.

REDNECK, showing marked improvement, moved up gradually, closed fast, and outgamed COUNT ME. The latter was sent to the front with a rush, set pace, but swerved out entering stretch and held on gamely. AURA made her bid entering stretch, but was blocked and knocked back. She never recovered. GALLOPING ran a good race. SILVERY WAY ran out of course and unseated his rider. STEP MISS suffered repeated interference.

RIDEOUT TWINS INELIGIBLE FOR ILLINOIS TRACK

Champaign, Ill., Jan. 28.—(AP)—The University of Illinois' hopes of finishing among the leaders in Big Ten track competition this season suffered a shock today when the Rideout twins, Wayne and Blaine, were declared scholastically ineligible.

The Rideouts, sophomores from Tuscola, Ill., were expected to score high in the middle distance and distance events. Last fall they finished hand-in-hand to tie for first place in every cross-country meet in which they competed.

Blaine runs the half mile and mile, while his brother doubles up in the mile and two mile.

JOE LOUIS PUTS OFF HOT SPRINGS TRIP; WIFE ILL

Illness suffered by Mrs. Joe Louis has caused the former Chicago Golden Gloves champion to postpone a contemplated trip to Hot Springs, Ark. His wife is suffering from a cold, Joe said yesterday. He denied reports from Milwaukee that a baby was expected in the Louis household.

"We're going to leave for Hot Springs as soon as Marva [Mrs. Louis] feels better," the Brown Bomber said. "She just has a cold."

Joe added that he has put on thirteen pounds since his one round knockout conquest of Charley Retzlaff at the Stadium recently. He now weighs 212.

Exmoor Club Children Work on Ice Ballet

Moderation in the weather yesterday was good news to a group of Glencoe and Highland Park children, twenty of whom will be selected at the Exmoor Country club for a children's ballet for the Chicago Stadium ice carnival Friday and Saturday nights. With the temperature below zero there had been no chance to hold the rehersals, even though the ballet is called "In the Cold Arctic" and the juvenile skaters dress as polar bears, snow men, and penguins.

Yesterday milder weather brought out all the candidates and those selected were Joan Allen, Nancy Newey, Gamille Pickett, Marjorie Murray, Jimmy Hart, Betty and Bunny Kerber, Alice and Jack Claghorn, Patsy Joan and Bobby Redfearn, Jean Perrigo, Virginia Vanderbie, Marcia and Dick Kebbon, Nancy and Georgene Nock and Jack Sihler.

Plan War Dance.

In the Indian ice ballet, "The Waters of Minnetonka," five local Boy Scout skaters, Dwane Filkins, Raoul Vanneir, Louis and Thomas Wilkins and Billie Jones were chosen for the war dance on skates.

Bruce Mapes arrived from New York yesterday and began rehersing his specialty dance skating act with Evelyn Chandler. Mapes, a New Yorker, the middle Atlantic figure skate champion and runner-up in the national championships, has never before appeared in Chicago.

Arrive from Northwest.

Minneapolis, St. Paul, Duluth, Winnipeg and far western Canadian stars also arrived, the four Nelson sisters, the Maxsons, Harry and Alyce Shipstad, the Simpson sisters, Eric Wait, Dorothy Lewis and twenty Twin City girl skaters for the ice ballet numbers.

Novelty Skeet Shoot Will Be Held Sunday

BY BOB BECKER.

Shooters who like to break clay pigeons, especially in the game of skeet, will have a chance to try something new next Sunday when the Northwest Gun club stages a novelty event which it calls the Duck Shoot.

Shotgun enthusiasts in Chicagoland are invited to attend this event either to burn powder and sling shot at the targets, or just stand by and watch how it is done. The Northwest club's grounds are on Milwaukee avenue, near Dempster street, on the northwest side.

C. O. Thompson who is in charge of the Duck Shoot that will involve the skeeting shooting layout, describes the game as follows:

Here's How It's Done.

"All of the eight regular stations will be decorated in some manner or other to make them resemble actual hunting conditions. For example, at station No. 1 it will be up to the shooter to take his shot from a willow blind. He'll sit down with his back to the high tower. At the second station there will be a corn shock blind. The contestant is going to rest on his knees and then rise to take his shot when the clay bird leaves the trap. The other six stations will have similar hazards which will make it interesting for the shooters when they take their shots at the birds."

Skeet shooters are looking forward to this Duck Shoot with a great deal of interest, because it is one of several angles of the skeet game that clubs have worked out in various parts of the country. Wildcat skeet, Skeet plus, and Quail skeet, are other variations of the game that have intrigued shooters, because all give the shotgun enthusiast a chance to approximate actual field shooting and thus obtain good practice.

Game Is Well Worth While.

Having burned quite a bit of powder at the skeet traps, we can testify to the value of the game if a fellow wants to practice his skill at angling targets.

But this Duck Shoot next Sunday will, according to skeet enthusiasts, add even more to the fun and practice value of the game.

Grover Alexander Ready to Open Radio Series

St. Paul, Neb., Jan. 28.—(AP)—Grover Cleveland Alexander, former big league baseball pitcher, left St. Paul for Ashland, Ky., today to begin a series of radio broadcasts. He has been spending the winter at his home here.

HAARLOW HOLDS 18 POINT LEAD IN BIG TEN SCORING

Townsend Is Second and Rudness Third.

Bill Haarlow, the slim south sider who is to the University of Chicago basketball team what his friend Jay Berwanger was to its football squad, now holds a larger margin over Western conference scorers than at any other time this season.

Despite the fact that the Maroons have lost all six of the Big Ten games they have played, Haarlow is at the head of the scoring table released yesterday with a total of 75 points. He leads the conference in both baskets and free throws, scoring 27 times from the field and 21 from the penalty line, for an average of 12½ points a game.

Leads by 18 Points.

Haarlow is now 18 points ahead of John Townsend, Michigan sophomore star, who has 57 points on 20 baskets and 17 free throws, while Townsend's teammate, George Rudness, has 53 points on 21 baskets and 11 free throws. Warren Whitlinger of Ohio State is in fourth place with 52 points, gained from 16 field goals and 20 free throws.

The Maroon captain will have an opportunity to add to his margin on Saturday night, when Chicago will invade Purdue's gym. When Purdue defeated the Maroons at Chicago earlier in the season, Haarlow was held to a basket and two free throws. The Boilermakers, who have been idle for some time, will have two candidates for individual honors back on the floor Saturday in Bob Kessler and Jewell Young, each of whom has played only three games. Each has scored 31 points for an average of better than ten points a game.

Purdue vs. Ohio State.

Purdue also meets Ohio State at Lafayette on Monday. In addition to this game, Whitlinger will have another chance to add to his total on Saturday, when the Buckeyes entertain Minnesota at Columbus.

International Awards
Leading expositions in the United States, Europe and Australia have honored Mount Vernon as one of the world's premier whiskies

Now plentiful...in the old Square Bottle

YES, it's now plentiful. Yes, it's now fairly priced. Yes, it's genuine Mount Vernon Maryland straight rye whiskey, in the familiar square bottle of pre-prohibition times. Bottled in bond under U. S. Government supervision...requirements of which, as to full 100 proof, storage in barrels, and freedom from addition of younger spirits, are more rigid than those of any other country in the world. Every drop is aged at least 4½ years in wood. Full of mellowness, yet delicate in body and palate-pleasing in flavor. Try Mount Vernon in the square bottle.

Two more days, today and tomorrow, and Golden Gloves registration for the Chicago sectionals will end. After midnight tomorrow no amateur boxer will be permitted to file application.

In yesterday's mail were the names of 29 additional entries from Franklin park, 14th street and Kolin avenue. The entry was submitted by Irwin Weiner, director of the park, who also reported that all boxers on the west side of Chicago are welcome to train at Franklin park, which is fully equipped for boxing. It is one of the few parks in the city with adequate facilities for boxing. Nine of the entries will compete in the open division.

SOUTH—All open division boxers, Feb. 18.
NORTH—All novice division boxers, Feb. 18.
NORTH—All open division boxers, Feb. 10.

Since it is impossible to have all weights in both division boxing on the same evening, the entry has been proportioned. Each boy who passes his physical examination can tell from the ticket he received the evening to report.

Gauze Bandages Permitted.

In the letter of instruction given out at the physical examination it states that soft gauze bandages may be used on the hands. The A. A. U. rule provides that "soft cotton or linen bandage, two inches wide and not to exceed 10 yards in length, may be used for each hand." Training bandages, which are heavier, are not permitted.

C.Y.O. SHAMROCKS ACQUIRE MURPHY, EVELETH PLAYER

The C. Y. O. Shamrock hocky team strengthened its forward line yesterday with the acquisition of Floyd Murphy of Eveleth, Minn. Murphy will see action for the first time here this season when the Shamrocks battle the Detroit Chevrolet club Sunday afternoon at Chicago Stadium.

Last season Murphy was one of the main cogs on the Boston Store team. Floyd reports himself in fine physical condition, having been working out with the Eveleth team, which has sent many stars to the professional ranks, including Mike Karakas, leading National Hocky league goal tender now with the Blackhawks.

Murphy is 23 years old, weighs 170 pounds, and is considered one of the best amateur hocky players now performing. He will play right wing Sunday against the Chevrolets.

DETROIT FIVE TO MEET DUFFY FLORALS TONIGHT

Detroit's Hed-Aids, leaders in the Midwest Professional Basketball league, will meet the Duffy Florals tonight at St. Rita gymnasium. Of its games in the new league, the Detroit five has won eight, including an overtime decision over the Duffys in Detroit recently.

Detroit will present a lineup of Norbert Crowe of Notre Dame, Harold McCammon of Ball State Teachers, Carl Gussin of Alma college, George Chestnut of Indiana State Teachers, Harry Solomon of Michigan State Normal, and others.

The game will be preceded at 8:15 o'clock by an amateur contest between Balaban & Katz All-Stars and Edward J. Barretts.

Wolfram and Scalba Will Meet Monday

Nick Scalba, who as Nick Scialaba won the Chicago Golden Gloves bantamweight championship in 1931, has been signed to box Frank Wolfram, Winnipeg, Man., featherweight, in a ten round windup at Marigold Gardens Monday. Jack Kearns signed for Scalba. The match will be Nick's first here since he fought six rounds to a draw with Lenny Cohen at Chicago Stadium last Feb. 15. During his absence Scalba became a headliner at Hollywood, Cal., showing to advantage in four fights there. He whipped Sal Hernandez, Ray Campo and Little Dempsey and held Varias Milling to a ten round draw.

Harry Dublinsky, Chicago welterweight challenger, will conclude training this afternoon at Madison Square loop gymnasium for his 12 round elimination with Billy Celebron of Rockford at Cicero stadium Friday. Dublinsky's superior boxing skill have caused critics to favor his chances of victory and thus end a string of six triumphs compiled by Celebron. However, Celebron, who will check in tomorrow, appears to be more rugged and hits harder than his rangy opponent.

Tommy Howell, 1935 Danville, Ill., sectional Golden Gloves lightweight titleholder, will be in quest of his seventh victory in as many professional appearances in a supporting match against Davey White. Howell, who turned 21 last July, reached the quarter-final round of the Tournament of Champions last year.

Ray Wozniak, Villa Park light heavyweight amateur star, will meet Emil Campagna in a feature bout at the Silver Dragon arena, 3741 West North avenue, tonight. Bob La Monte, west side welterweight, will second Campagna in the match, one of the most important in Emil's career.

Johnny Pacek, Chicago Golden Gloves alumnus, yesterday returned to Los Angeles from Oakland, where he scored a one round knockout over Bud Schildor Monday. . . . Patrick Henry, south side welterweight, will fight as Jack Stevens hereafter, it is announced by his representative, Lou Gross. . . . Efforts are being made to arrange a bout between Milt Aron, Dubuque, Ia., and Pat Murphy, Danville, at Marigold Feb. 10. . . . Laddie Tonelli, Marseilles, and Sam De Pasquale, Chicago, returned yesterday from Milwaukee, Wis., the former carrying bad luck and De Pasquale good luck after fights there Monday. Tonelli scored a knockdown over his welterweight foe, Dom Lemanski, in the third round, but Lemanski was given the eight round decision. De Pasquale whipped Billy Ritchie on the card, headed by a return match between Tait Littman and Gorilla Jones. Jones made it two straight over Littman by stopping him in the tenth round. . . . Max Marek has been offered a match with John Henry Lewis, light heavyweight king, at New York this spring, it has been reported.

FLORIDA RULES TWO HORSEMEN OFF FOR LIFE

Miami, Fla., Jan. 28.—(AP)—The Florida state racing commission today ruled off Benjamin Davidson and Thomas Hurley from all Florida tracks for life. Davidson and Hurley were charged with administering caffeine to the horse Pay Rack on Jan. 11, and again on Jan. 24, the horse being scratched by the stewards on the latter date and the saliva test taken.

Davidson and Hurley were represented by counsel, and did not deny the confession both had previously made admitting their guilt in stimulating Pay Rack with caffeine. Both men were arrested following the hearing by county officials, to be held for violation of the racing law which provides, "any person who shall stimulate or depress a horse for the purpose of affecting the result of a race shall be guilty of a felony."

Regents Hear Meanwell and Then Adjourn

was so small and that he felt they needed a stimulant after such a discouraging day.

They Haven't Discussed It.

Significant of the breach between the two men was Meanwell's admission that he never had discussed the situation with Coach Spears.

Meanwell first refused to answer concerning his lending his name to the identification of athletic equipment, including basketballs and basketball shoes, on the basis that such matters were his private business but, upon the insistence of the regents, revealed that his income from the Meanwell shoe had netted him $2,000 annually for several years.

Bill Woerner, end coach on the football staf, testified the players expressed criticism of Spears, but could not say whether or not it was an unusual amount in view of the disastrous season. He said both regulars and reserves complained, mainly because of the repeated changes in offensive plans and the labor involved in learning new plays each week.

Tells of Complaints.

Robert Duncan, a member of the faculty of the extension division, denied that he called Spears a "rotten coach" when Wisconsin was negotiating for the coach's services, but admitted he had told Regent Carl Drexler that he did not think Spears was the "type of coach for the material at Wisconsin." Duncan said two players complained to him last season. One claimed he had been removed from a game because of misstakes made by other players.

Duncan and Woerner appeared in open session, but two other witnesses, Fred Miller, former freshman basketball coach, and Jack Bender, captain of the 1934 football squad, testified behind closed doors at their own request.

SHOEMAKER TIES ROGERS FOR LEAD IN CUE TOURNEY

New York, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Herbert Shoemaker of New York gained a tie with E. Charles Rogers of Glen Cove, N. Y., for the lead in the national amateur pocket billiards tournament when he defeated last year's runner-up, Herbert Courtney, of New York, 125 to 48, tonight.

The match was completed in 19 innings. The victory put Shoemaker, 21 times winner of the title and defending champion, on even terms with Rogers. Each has four victories and one defeat. They will meet tomorrow night in the deciding match.

Courtney, taking his second defeat of the day, dropped into a tie with Harry Hendrie of Chicago for fifth place with two games won and four lost. In an afternoon match Courtney was beaten by Alvin Hardgrove of Detroit, 125 to 86, in a 17 inning match.

Hardgrove completed his schedule with four games won and two lost to tie Lester Brooks of Philadelphia for third place.

Three Day School Players Get Varsity Letters Today

Coach Marny Mewhorter of Central Y. M. C. A. day high school's basketball team will present letters to three graduating members, George Lorenz, Ellis Mandel and John Francis, at the annual senior breakfast this morning in the school auditorium. Lorenz, Mandel and Francis will play their last game against Chicago Christian High school tomorrow afternoon at Christian.

Englewood Forward Sets Scoring Mark

Dan Talan, Englewood forward, is the new individual scoring record holder in the Chicago Public High School league. Talan yesterday established a mark of 33 points, sixteen baskets and one free throw, as Englewood defeated Harper's senior quintet, 63 to 19. Talan's record was five more points than the mark set by Harry Krotish of Crane Tech last week.

The tall sharpshooter, member of the Englewood lightweight team last season, is a sophomore. His record probably would have been higher had he played the entire game. Englewood led at the end of the first half, 28 to 11, and held a 43 to 16 advantage at the third period.

The leaders in the junior division found no difficulty scoring their fourth consecutive victory. Manley, high scoring team with 143 points in three games, added 34 more to its total as it defeated Harrison Tech, 34 to 16. Crane Tech triumphed over Foreman, 47 to 32, and Roosevelt defeated Lake View, 39 to 27.

Downers Grove Wins.

Waller dropped from the undefeated class, losing to Amundsen, 33 to 29. A rally in the last period gave Amundsen victory. Harrison and Schafer led the Amundsen attack, the former with four baskets and one free throw, while Schafer contributed four field goals and four free throws.

Downers Grove moved closer to the West Suburban heavyweight title by defeating York, 31 to 22, last night. This was the eighth triumph in nine starts for Downers Grove.

The race for second place honors became more complicated when Glenbard and Riverside won their games, placing them in a tie with La Grange. Each has won six while losing three.

Maine Beats Hinsdale.

The feature game in the lightweight division was a double overtime battle between Maine and Hinsdale. Maine won, 17 to 15. The regulation game ended with the score tied at 15 all. With one minute left to play in the second overtime session, John Schimmel sank a long shot for Maine.

West Chicago's lights moved into a tie with Hinsdale for the league lead by triumphing over Glenbard, 19 to 12. Lineups:

What to Do with Stark? That's a Puzzle to Frick

New York, Jan. 28.—[Special.]—With no precedent to guide him, President Frick today seemed utterly stumped on how to go about bringing the recalcitrant umpire, Dolly Stark, into the fold.

"I don't know what I'm expected to do now," said the National league head, "because until I read this morning's papers I had no idea it was all a matter of money. In fact, Stark never intimated to me he wanted to be classed as a 'holdout,' and even now I don't know what he wants.

"We thought we had given him a substantial increase for this year. I might even say that the increase we have offered Dolly is the largest ever given to an umpire in the history of the league.

"Now, if it is just a matter of a few hundred dollars, perhaps we may be able to adjust that. But if Stark wants to boost an umpire's salary into the one-time Babe Ruth class, why that is something else again."

SET DATES FOR NATIONAL INDOOR POLO TOURNEY

New York, Jan. 29.—(AP)—The dates for the national indoor polo meets were set today at a meeting of the executive committee of the Indoor Polo Association of America.

To complete the play before Easter eliminations in the eight circuits are to be completed by March 7. The eastern and western events will be held to conclude by March 21, and the nationals, bringing together the sectional winners, will be held March 28 to April 4.

The eastern tournaments, along with the intercollegiate and interscholastic title events, will be held in New York, and the western in Chicago. The east-west games probably will be played in Chicago, although a final decision has not yet been made.

Little Hopes to Seek Third Double in Golf

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 28.—(AP)—Lawson Little, British and American amateur golf champion, said tonight just before leaving for Chicago and his forthcoming marriage, that his "greatest ambition" was to win the two major links crowns for the third successive year next summer.

Little, who will marry Miss Dorothy Hurd Feb. 8, said his plans were indefinite, but he "hoped to make the trip abroad next May for the British amateur."

Denying reports he had decided not to defend his British title, Little said "that story started as a joke the other day. A San Francisco newspaper man told me he'd like a story to send abroad, that if I thought my game wasn't strong enough for the American open championship it still would be good enough in the British amateur. We all laughed and I remarked it was pretty expensive to play in England, and maybe the future Mrs. Little wouldn't feel like spending the money.

"Nevertheless, I hope to be able to play in both the British and American tournaments this year. They are too far off to make a definite decision, and in the meantime I have to concentrate on making a living."

Vines Expects Tilden to Retire Next Year

Pasadena, Cal., Jan. 28.—(AP)—Ellsworth Vines, professional tennis player, said today he believes "Bill" Tilden will retire next year.

"He's getting pretty old, and although he still plays a bang-up game, he finds his legs do not hold up sufficiently to stand the hardships of professional touring," Vines said.

PANCOAST WINS RACE.

New Orleans, La., Jan. 28.—(AP)—Pancoast, a 6 year old gelding today whipped seven other platers in the six furlong feature race at the Fair Grounds.

Gelbert Awarded Most Courageous Athlete Trophy

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—As a reward for his comeback in baseball after a hunting accident almost crippled him for life, Charley Gelbert, St. Louis Cardinals infielder was presented with the "most courageous athlete" award at the annual banquet of the Philadelphia Sports Writers association tonight.

The former Ambler, Pa., and Lebanon Valley college athlete, accidentally shot during the fall of 1932, was forced to the side lines during 1933 and 1934, but returned to action last summer.

Special placques were presented to Hank Greenberg, first baseman and Goose Goslin, veteran outfielder of the world champion Detroit Tigers.

CHAMPION LOSES TO MRS. CREWS IN FLORIDA GOLF

Punta Gorda, Fla., Jan. 28.—(AP)—Favorites advanced today in the championship of champions women's golf tournament.

Mrs. Maureen Orcutt Crews of Miami, ousted the 1935 winner, Mrs. Mark McGarry of St. Petersburg, 4 and 2, and Lucille Robinson of Des Moines, Ia., downed Mrs. G. C. Blaisdell of Waterville, Me., by the same score.

Patty Berg of Minneapolis, runner-up in the 1935 national championship, won by default over Mrs. Al Nelson of Sarasota, Fla. A 3 and 1 victory over Mrs. Lillian Zech of Chicago sent Marion Miley of Lexington, Ky., into the second round.

In other matches, Peggy Wattles of Buffalo, N. Y., beat Mrs. Carey Seay of Fort Myers, Fla., 6 and 5; Marion Turple Lake of New York ousted Mrs. George Chalmers of Fort Myers, one up; Mary Ford Maurer of Kansas City defeated Mrs. Lillian Robinson of Toronto, Can., 6 and 5; and Mrs. Helen Hockinjos of Lake Hopatcong, N. J., eliminated Mrs. C. R. McCubbin of Kansas City, 6 and 5.

WRECKING OF A'S LEAVES OTHER CLUBS IN TROUBLE

Mack's Club Will Be Dead Weight at Gate.

New York, Jan. 28.—(AP)—The demolishment of the celebrated house of Mack, now rapidly nearing completion, probably has achieved the purpose of pulling its proprietors out of the red, but it leaves a bundle of trouble on the door step of the American league for some time to come.

Not even the spectacular rally of the Red Sox, the A's No. 1 buyer, has obscured the fact that the league will operate this year on a seven-club basis, from the box office standpoint. No boycott will be needed to keep the fans away from Shibe Park and there is not likely to be any excitement aroused by the Athletics on the road.

Only Two Left.

The disposal this week of two pitching veterans on the club's roster, George Blaeholder to Cleveland and Roy Mahaffey to St. Louis, indicates the work of razing the once proud world championship structure is getting down to the ground floor. The fact that both deals were announced first by the purchasers testifies to the extent of the rupture in Philadelphia, where criticism of Mack's policies developed an open break in his relations with newspapermen.

If the A's will come down a bit in their price they probably can sell the few remaining marketable chattels. They include Frank [Pinky] Higgins, third baseman wanted by the Yankees, and Wally Moses, young outfielder. The escape of either or both of these surviving inmates would leave Mack with the most obscure collection of talent under contract to any club in either major league.

Its Their Fight.

Perhaps no tears need to be shed for any of the parties involved, inasmuch as the several club owners seeking to strengthen their lineups readily took advantage of Mack's wholesale auction. The liability with which the magnates are faced in Philadelphia, in other words, is strictly of their own doing.

In the four years elapsed since the Athletics finished a three year pennant reign, Connie Mack has unloaded close to $1,000,000 worth of ball players.

Marquette Coaching Staf Guests at Banquet Here

Athletic Director Conrad M. Jennings and the entire coaching staf at Marquette university will be guests at the Marquette Alumni Club of Illinois' annual dinner at the Adventurers' club, 14 North Michigan avenue, tonight at 7:30 o'clock. The committee in charge includes Judge Charles F. McKinley, president of the club; Richard B. Ward, William E. McNamara, and Donald M. Keenan.

It's our family's whiskey, neighbor—and neighbor, it's your price!

HERE'S THE FOUR OF US LOADING
The Wilken Family sure is going places—and that's thanks to all the orders you're giving for our Family's Whiskey. You're keeping us powerfully busy, but I'll tell you this—we'd rather disappoint you by not being able to deliver than to ever let the quality of our Family's Whiskey suffer. So long as I'm alive or any of my boys are alive, you can count on every bottle being just exactly like the other! Harry E. Wilken, Sr.

I guess folks are buying more than one bottle of our Family's Whiskey at a time!

If that pack of orders you're so kindly giving for our Family's Whiskey is by reason of you're wanting to make sure you got enough so as you won't risk running short of it, I think it's a real good idea. Up our way, we keep a supply right in the living room cupboard, for there's no knowing when some neighbor will take it into his head to drop by unexpected. I'm sure mighty pleased at how kindly you're taking to this Family's Whiskey of ours. I've been making whiskey over 40 years, but as yet I never did see folks act so delighted as everybody seems to be over the mildness and tastiness of our Family's Whiskey. This picture is me and the boys, so now you know the Wilken Family. But it's the Wilken Family Whiskey you really ought to know!

New York, Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Trading in bonds on the New York Stock exchange today saw treasury issues stage a reversal of the recent trend and recover some of the ground lost in previous sessions. Gains ranged from 4-32ds in Treasury 4¼s of 1947 to 10-32ds in Home Owners' Loan 3s. A majority ended in the higher brackets.

With the bonus question definitly out of the way, the advance in government issues was accomplished with much less volume than yesterday's decline. This indicated to observers that offerings had dried up and buyers had to pay higher prices for the securities.

Federal Financing Awaited.

While dealers and banks do not expect that the treasury will begin immediately to build up the probable cash requirements of the bonus, it is conceded that within the next five months this must be done. Meanwhile, it will be necessary for the government to replenish its balances, which are being steadily drawn upon to make up current deficits.

Furthermore, although March 16 is an open date as far as long term obligations or notes are concerned, it is recalled that during October and November the treasury sold nine weekly bill issues of $50,000,000 each, setting March 16 as the maturity date for all of them.

Corporate Bonds Steadier.

Changes in corporate bond prices were less numerous and not as broad as they have been recently. However, gains of a point or more were recorded in Anglo-Chile Nitrate 7s, Chicago and North Western general 4s, Milwaukee general 4½s, Lehigh Valley general 4s and 4½s, "Katy" 4s of 1962, New Haven convertible 6s, Seaboard refunding 4s, Warner-Quinlan 6s, and Warren 6s.

Yellow Truck and Coach Mfg.

Investors' Guide: Kindly give me information regarding Yellow Truck.—M. L. H.

Answer: It appears likely that 1935 will be the first year in five that Yellow Truck and Coach Manufacturing company will report a profit. From 1927 through 1934 the company was able to operate profitably in only two years, but in the first nine months of 1935 net income was $350,000, or $2.33 per share of 7 per cent preferred, against loss of $239,000 for the corresponding 1934 period.

This reflected the gain in sales to $26,500,000 from the $21,840,000 reported in the corresponding 1934 period.

Sales in 1934 totaled $28,250,000, against $19,668,000 in 1933, $16,438,000 in 1932 and $26,948,000 in 1931. Offsetting increased dollar sales in 1934, however, was the fact that the gain took place wholly in lighter, inexpensive trucks on which the profit margin is small.

As a result the company was able to cut its 1934 loss only to $886,000 from the $982,000 loss in 1933. Net loss in 1932 was $3,787,000 and in 1931, $2,762,000. A profit of $1,115,000 was earned in 1930.

The company, an important manufacturer of complete lines of trucks, taxicabs, buses, etc., is controlled by General Motors. It does not operate as a division of the parent company.

Current position on Dec. 31, 1934, was satisfactory. Working capital was $12,663,000, about $600,000 less than the year before. There is no funded debt. Capitalization consists of 150,000 shares of 7 per cent $100 par preferred, on which nothing has been paid; 1,300,000 shares of class B, $10 par, a substantial amount of which is held by General Motors, and 800,000 shares of $10 par common, all of which is held by General Motors.

In view of the $6,314,000 profit and loss deficit on Dec. 31, 1934, poor record of earnings and the $56 a share accumulation of dividend arrears on the preferred, all classes of stock are regarded as quite speculative.

CHICAGO STOCKS ACTIVE; CHANGES IN PRICES MIXED

Chicago stock prices were mixed yesterday in a turnover of 120,000 shares, which sent the total volume for the year 2,039,000 shares. January thus becomes the first 2 million share month on the Chicago exchange since July, 1933. The total at this time in 1935 was only 560,000 shares.

Of the 129 issues traded yesterday, 48 advanced, 42 declined, and 39 were unchanged. Eighteen new highs for 1935-'36 were recorded. Central and South West Utilities common and Cities Service advanced fractionally. Other utilities at new highs were Midland United preferred, Northwest Utilities preferred, Utility and Industrial common, Southwestern Gas & Electric preferred, and Public Service of Illinois no par, the latter up 1½.

Other new highs yesterday included Ainsworth Manufacturing, Allied Products, Brach & Sons, Central-Illinois Securities preferred, Chain Belt, Chicago Flexible Shaft, Godchaux Sugar B, Illinois Brick, Lynch, Modine, and Storkline preferred.

PRODUCE MARKETS

Milder weather decreased demand for eggs and also led to the arrival of delayed shipments. Prices eased ½c per doz yesterday. Receipts were 8,078 cases. Butter was also in larger supply and prices were shaded ¼@½c per lb to make sales. Live hens and leghorn hens were steady to ½c higher and broilers were ½c per lb lower. Receipts were 3 cars and 15 trucks. Potatoes were in good demand and the market firm. Receipts were 65 cars with 232 cars on team track.

The Chicago office of the bureau of agricultural economics is now making available the price paid by retailers and other large buyers of department of agriculture inspected and graded eggs. These eggs, known as "government certified," are a quality product and at times the price has apparently little relationship with that of the general market. Each egg in order to secure the government grade of "extras" must have a minimum individual weight.

New York, Jan. 28.—[Special.]—The United States Steel corporation, largest steel company in the world, today reported that its 1935 operations resulted in a net profit of $1,084,917, the first time since 1931 that the corporation has shown a net profit for a full year. Add 3 Millions to Surplus.

After provision for the preferred dividends the total addition to the surplus for December quarter was $3,525,012, compared with a deficit of $3,106,610 in the preceding 1935 quarter and a deficit of $12,035,818 for the last quarter of 1934. The December quarter from an operating point of view proved to be the best since the second quarter of 1934.

As of Dec. 31, 1935, net working capital aggregated $389,783,893, compared with $375,937,488 on Dec. 31, 1934, which was an increase of $13,846,405.

Operations of finished steel products for sale for the year averaged 38.8 per cent of capacity as compared with 31.2 in 1934 and 28.7 in 1933.

The corporation reported that shipments of finished steel products for the last quarter of 1935 totaled 2,030,076 tons, compared with 1,787,224 tons for the preceding quarter and 1,128,711 tons for the quarter ended Dec. 31, 1934.

Taylor Cites Bigger Demand.

A statement by Myron C. Taylor, chairman, said:

"Increased demand for steel products which developed during the summer continued in gradually expanding volume during the balance of the year, and since Jan. 1 the average has been somewhat above that of last year.

"There is still, however, a low volume of demand for the heavier steel products required in construction and development work, which type of products constitutes a substantial proportion of the capacity of the subsidiaries. There is evidence that the taking care of maintenance and obsolescence as well as expansion and development enterprises are gradually bringing about better demand for these classes of steel products."

SOY BEAN FUTURE TRADE IS AGAIN STUDIED BY PIT

For the third time the Chicago Board of Trade is considering the feasibility of establishing a futures market in soy beans. Robert P. Boylan, president of the exchange, yesterday announced the appointment of a committee, headed by Austin D. Sturtevant, to study the subject.

The previous studies made by the exchange in recent years led to no definite action. The committees reported that while such a market might be desirable at a future date, it was inadvisable at the time.

About 2,000,000 bushels of the beans are stored in Chicago elevators.

Directors of the exchange yesterday elected John Hill Kitchen of New York to membership.

Reserve Bank Begins Study of Deposit Movements

New York, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Seeking data for a statistical study of the movement of bank deposits, the Federal Reserve bank of New York, acting for the board of governors of the reserve system, today requested information from member banks as to deposit accounts of customers which were in excess of $100,000 on Oct. 25, 1935, or on Nov. 1, 1935.

49 Railroads' Incomes Show 31 Pct. Upturn

With the first 49 railroads to report December net operating income showing an increase of 31 per cent over a year ago, the New York Central yesterday disclosed that the figure for that month was the best since 1929 while net operating income for 1935 was the highest since 1930.

Net operating income for the 49 carriers during all of 1935 was $332,087,202, an increase of 7 per cent over the $310,605,628 for 1934. Gross income of $2,139,093,355 was 3 per cent higher than the $2,084,649,276 in 1934.

Far Above Year Ago.

The New York Central had a net operating income of $3,491,373 in December, compared with $4,422,727 in November and $1,575,958 in December, 1934. The total of $36,748,247 for 1935 compared with $29,160,028 in 1934. A net operating income of $1,231,975 for the Northern Pacific in December was the largest for the month since 1928. The Illinois Central experienced a sharp drop in earnings for both December and the year, due to the charging off $5,277,176 in deferred maintenance costs during the month. The railroad's 1935 net deficit after charges was $9,932,399, compared with $3,099,851 in 1934. Net operating income for the year was $6,724,243, compared with $13,543,614 in 1934. Net operating deficit for December of $3,831,546 compared with a net operating income of $1,763,714 in December, 1934.

ILLINOIS SECOND IN PAYMENT OF FEDERAL TAXES

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—(AP)—Illinois was exceeded only by New York as a source of income for the federal treasury in the 1935 fiscal year, the bureau of internal revenue announced today.

Federal taxes—income, corporation, processing, and miscellaneous—collected in Illinois totaled $288,472,221. New York, in the same period, paid $729,909,718. North Carolina was third with $285,138,570, and Pennsylvania fourth with $265,974,435. The total collected in the year from all states, territories, and possessions was $3,359,229,745.

The 1935 Illinois collections were $2,605,922 less than those of the preceding year, although total federal receipts for 1935 were $365,057,174 more than those of 1934. The first Illinois collection district, which includes Chicago, accounted for $228,694,522 of the Illinois total.

The 1935 returns from Illinois corporations were $20,185,077. Larger than those of 1934, the individual income tax payments exceeded those of the previous year by $9,245,101, and miscellaneous receipts were $16,925,005 larger.

The biggest difference in income from the state for the two years was in the collection of processing taxes. The 1934 payments in this classification were $97,978,213, compared with $48,961,107 for 1935.

UTILITY LOBBIES MUST REGISTER, SEC INSTRUCTS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—(AP)—New lobbying rules requiring registration of those seeking to influence government public utility policies were issued today by the Securities and Exchange commission. The rules apply only to persons working for holding companies. Since most major companies have refused to register pending a test of the holding company's act's validity, only a few are affected.

The commission's rules require those employés of registered holding companies seeking "to influence the exercise of discretionary powers" by members of congress or the securities and federal power commissions, to report their activities.

This report should include statements of what the employé may do, his compensation and expenses. The rules exempt employés whose duties are largely routine.

INLAND STEEL NEARLY TRIPLES INCOME IN YEAR

Extra Dividend Is Made Regular.

Net income of the Inland Steel company and its subsidiaries for 1935 aggregated $9,417,818, which was the best showing for the company since 1929, according to a report issued by the company yesterday. The 1935 total, however, does not include the profit of Joseph T. Ryerson & Son, Inc., acquired on October 1, 1935, for the first nine months of the year.

Net income of the company for 1934 was $3,729,889. Giving effect to the issuance of 240,000 shares of stock in the acquirement of the Ryerson property, Inland at the end of 1935 had 1,440,000 shares of capital stock on which the earnings, excluding the Ryerson figure for the nine months, were $6.54 a share, compared with $3.11 a share on 1,200,000 shares outstanding at the end of 1934.

Make Extra Dividend Regular.

Directors of the company declared a quarterly dividend of 75 cents a share, payable March 2, 1936, to stockholders of record Feb. 14, 1936. In each of the two preceding quarters the directors voted extra dividends of 25 cents a share in addition to the quarterly dividends of 50 cents a share.

Net income of the company for the last quarter of 1935 totaled $2,749,309, which was the best record for the period since the last quarter of 1929 when the net income was $4,176,412.

Quarterly Income $4,553,784.

Income of Inland for the Dec. 31 quarter of 1935 was $4,553,784. Deductions of $1,804,475 for interest on bonds, depreciation and depletion and estimated federal taxes brought the net income to $2,749,309. Income after deducting administration expense and all charges for repairs and maintenance but before the above deductions for the entire year 1935 stood at $16,400,205.

Earnings for the last quarter of 1935 were at the rate of $1.90 a share on the common stock now outstanding compared with $1.51 a share on the then outstanding stock at the end of the preceding quarter and 46 cents a share for the last quarter of 1934.

BEGIN DIVIDENDS ON CONTINENTAL STEEL COMMON

An initial dividend of 50 cents on the common stock of the Continental Steel corporation and an extra of $2 declared on the common stock of the Norfolk & Western railway were outstanding in the list of favorable dividend actions taken yesterday by leading corporations.

Similar extras were paid by the Norfolk & Western during the two preceding years. The directors elected I. W. Booth as director and vice president in charge of finances, succeeding E. H. Alden, retired, effective Feb. 1. Booth has been secretary.

Regular quarterly payments of particular interest in Chicago were those of 25 cents declared by Swift & Co. and 37½ cents by the Chicago Mail Order company.

United Engineering & Foundry company placed the common stock on an annual basis of $1.50 with a declaration of 37½ cents quarterly. Last Nov. 8 the company paid a quarterly disbursement of 25 cents a share.

Elgin National Watch company voted a dividend of 25 cents on the common stock. In December the company paid 55 cents, prior to which 15 cents quarterly was paid.

Sterling Securities corporation declared an accumulation dividend of $3 on the $3 first preferred stock. West Virginia Water Service company declared an accumulation dividend of $1.50 on the $6 preferred stock. Holland Land company voted a liquidating dividend of $2.50 on the common stock.

Air Condition Five Floors of 'Fed' Bank Here

BY AL CHASE.

First steps in an air conditioning project involving a 15 story loop office building, were taken yesterday by Gov. George J. Schaller of the Chicago Federal Reserve bank. He signed a contract with the Kroeschell Engineering company, of Chicago, for the immediate air conditioning of five floors—two basements and the first, second and third stories of that building. Completion is scheduled for June 1.

G. J. SCHALLER.

According to Gov. Schaller, air conditioning will be given a thorough test throughout the summer, with the expectation of having all other floors of the building equipped with complete temperature control next fall.

Two Other Banks Equipped.

The initial installation will provide 250 tons of refrigeration daily, according to Robert Kroeschell, vice president of the Kroeschell Engineering company. This will give the federal reserve bank the largest amount of refrigeration of any downtown bank. At present two other loop financial institutions are air conditioned: the Northern Trust company and the American National Bank and Trust company. The latter was equipped by the Kroeschell concern, which also equipped Tribune Tower and the W-G-N building adjoining.

According to Gov. Schaller, approximately 85,000 square feet of floor space is involved in the initial air conditioning program. The installation, work on which was started by the Kroeschell company yesterday shortly after the contract was signed, will give employment to 100 men for the next four months, Kroeschell said.

Largest Job in 12 Months.

The federal reserve air conditioning job is outstanding in several particulars, according to both Schaller and Kroeschell. It is the largest air conditioning contract signed in the last twelve months, Kroeschell stated. It will be the largest bank temperature control installation in the middle west.

At present only four of the twelve federal reserve banks throughout the country enjoy summer cooling. They are the Dallas, Kansas City, Philadelphia and Cleveland banks. The Chicago Federal Reserve bank has 1,275 employés, according to Howard Preston, deputy governor.

Lindsay Light Reports Larger Profit in 1935

The Lindsay Light and Chemical company, 161 East Grand avenue, yesterday issued a preliminary report showing net profit of $51,958 for the year ended Dec. 31, 1935. This would be equivalent to 63 cents a share after preferred dividends and compares with $41,828, or 50 cents a share, in the preceding year.

GLASS DROPS FIGHT AGAINST ECCLES AS RESERVE BOARD HEAD

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—(AP)—An open announcement by Senator Glass [Dem., Va.] today that he would give up his fight against confirmation of Marriner S. Eccles of Utah virtually assured senate approval—probably Thursday—of President Roosevelt's reorganized federal reserve board.

Glass made known his attitude after the senate banking committee had given a speedy and unanimously favorable report on the six nominations sent to the senate yesterday by the President. A seventh member of the new board is yet to be named.

Eccles, present executive head of the board who was renominated for a four year term, had been opposed by Glass because of his monetary views and also on the ground he had not sufficiently divested himself of banking connections to qualify.

While the Virginian, co-framer of the federal reserve act, would not give his reasons for withdrawing his opposition, his associates said Glass had practically "dictated" the other appointments and it would be difficult for him to carry on the fight under those circumstances.

"It's a pretty safe board," Glass repeated today.

Chairman Fletcher [Dem., Fla.] of the senate banking committee said not a single objection was raised against any of the nominees in committe. He predicted quick senate confirmation.

WAR DEBT BOND PLAN REVIVED BY VANDENBURG

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—(AP)—Senator Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.] asked Secretary Morgenthau today whether steps might be taken to convert overdue war debts into marketable securities to replenish the treasury. In a letter to the secretary he reminded that $971,225,092 is overdue from foreign nations and that $193,789,042 additional will be due July 1, 1936, of the total of $11,577,000,000 outstanding funded debt.

In agreements with these nations, Vandenberg said, debtors were obligated, on demand, to convert the present huge lump sum into bonds "suitable for sale to the public" upon the same terms and rates of interest. To each agreement, however, was appended that such new bonds shall be issued subject to repayment of principal upon terms that "shall be agreed upon."

"I desire to inquire," Vandenberg wrote, "whether it would be feasible—and whether any consideration has been given to such proposition—to ask that the provision in the refunding agreements for 'exchange of marketable agreements' be invoked to liquidate these overdue accounts."

STOCKS WABBLE WHEN INFLATION PEP WEARS OFF

Close Is Irregular; Volume Shrinks.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 28.—Inflationary sentiment died down on the stock exchange today and the market turned spotty. Farm implement, utility, and railroad issues continued to plug for the bull cause, but most of the industrial favorites, mines, and mercantile issues drifted down. The oils and mail orders were mixed.

The pace of business slowed down with the subsidence of speculation for the rise, the turnover falling to 2,292,890 shares, compared with 3,117,285 yesterday. Business conditions did not show much change, although the tendency to view the long term outlook as favorable appeared as strong as ever in responsible quarters.

Earnings Help Rail Stocks.

A fresh batch of railroad earnings statements for December was a source of strength to the carriers. Atchison, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, New York Central, and Northern Pacific were prominent.

The farm implements basked in predictions of heavy crops this year, with all New Deal restrictions on production removed, and Case, Deere, Minneapolis Moline, Caterpillar, and Oliver were in a buoyant mood. Case and Deere rounded out the session some 3 points each better off than they were yesterday.

Minneapolis-Honeywell, which is all set for a 3 to 1 split, jumped 9 points on a single sale to the highest price on record.

In the market packing division, Armour issues were conspicuously active and strong. Armour prior preferred rose 2 points, most of which gain was later surrendered, however, and the 7 per cent preferred jumped 8 points to the highest price since listing.

General Motors Rises, Subsides.

Among the motors, General Motors started off in promising fashion on publication of its earnings statement late yesterday, but its ambition died out later on.

Airplane stocks continued active, with Douglas, Curtiss Wright, United Aircraft out in front. Some of the early performers of the division ran into profit taking snags in the afternoon and finished a shade lower on the day.

The utilities attempted a little "spread" in the late afternoon trading. American Water Works, Consolidated Gas, and the low priced Commonwealth and Southern were features. People's Gas rose fractionally.

Sugars hardened and some other foods made creditable showings. Price additions of 1 to 2 points or more were made to Bigelow-Sanford, National Supply, Yellow Truck, and a few others. Rubbers were firm.

MARKET HOURS NORMAL AFTER TRIBUTE TO KING

Principal security and commodity exchanges of the United States, which delayed their openings yesterday as a tribute to the late King George V. of Great Britain, will function as usual today.

Markets throughout the British empire were closed all day yesterday in observance of the king's funeral, but will reopen today.

In New York, the stock and curb exchanges and other markets delayed their openings for one hour, except the Wool Tops exchange, which postponed trading for 45 minutes. In Chicago, the stock exchange deferred its opening 15 minutes, but the Board of Trade opened at its usual time.

U. S. Spending Voted Blow to Business, Jobs

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—In answer to a nation-wide referendum conducted by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, the business and trade organizations of the country have overwhelmingly declared that combined expenditures of federal, state, and local governments have taken such a large part of the national income that business is discouraged, the security of wages and savings is threatened, and employment is retarded.

The chamber disclosed today that of 1,677 replies on this subject, 1,598 declared against the government's heavy spending and only 79 reported other views.

Want Budget Balanced.

Ninety-nine per cent of the chamber's members expressed themselves in favor of balancing the budget. The chamber's committee on federal finance issued a report based on the referendum and declaring that many of the existing taxes, especially income taxes, have passed the point of maximum productivity.

"A revenue system with any such schedule of taxes as would be needed to cover the present volume of expenditures," the report said, "would be considered fantastic and politically impossible."

By a vote of 1,683 to 22, the membership voted for discontinuance of federal expenditures for the purpose of developing or extending governmental activities which compete with private business. The vote also decided that it was contrary to sound public policy to use federal taxing power primarily to compel states or individuals to conform to social or economic readjustments, with revenue only incidental.

Other Questions Asked.

Other questions and the votes were:

"Should emergency expenditures necessary for the relief of the destitute unemployed be provided by and under the control of the states of their residence, with reimbursable advances from the federal government only on application of those states or municipalities which are unable to obtain the needed funds for that purpose?" Yes—1,613. No—62.

"Will mounting tax rates tend to destroy incentive to invest funds in private enterprise and thereby diminish the sources on which the government must rely for future revenues?" Yes—1,631. No—50.

"Should the federal estate tax be repealed and inheritance taxes avoided in order that these revenue sources may be left to the several states?" Yes—1,310. No—305.

DOLLAR REGAINS MORE OF RECENT EXCHANGE LOSS

New York, Jan. 28.—[Special.]—With activity in the foreign exchange markets both here and in Europe materially reduced due to the closing of the London markets for the funeral of the late King George V., the American dollar erased still further its losses of the last week.

The statement by Secretary of the Treasurey Morgenthau that only orthodox methods would be followed in the financing of the soldier bonus payments had a further opportunity to find reflection in the upturn of the dollar, which gained 20 points to close at 99.54 per cent of parity against the franc.

All of the gold bloc currencies, as well as the pound sterling, suffered losses. Sterling fell back 1⅛ cents to $4.99⅜ after reaching a high of $5.00⅜. The report from London that the French officials in London for the funeral of the late monarch would also attempt to make arrangements for a huge loan, which would in some measure help to solve the French financial crisis, weighed heavily on the franc, although the loss was held to 1⅜ points. The closing price was 6.66⅜ cents.

The guilder suffered the greatest decline among the gold bloc currencies, moving down to 68.52 cents.

RESERVE BANKS WANT SECURITY FOR GOLD TAKEN

Seek Notes Instead of Credit by U. S.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Questioning the type of "bookkeeping credit" that the United States treasury department has given them in exchange for their billions of gold coin and bullion, the federal reserve banks are demanding better security, it was learned yesterday following the disclosure that the New York Reserve bank had drawn two billions of gold certificates out of the treasury.

Despite assurances from officials of the New York bank that the move bore no significance and that it was merely a technical change, it was learned that the reserve banks in Chicago, New York and elsewhere have been dissatisfied with the treatment that they have received since the government commandeered their gold reserves and have been moving to strengthen their positions as much as possible.

Banks Liable for Billions.

The twelve reserve banks have 3 billion 608 million dollars of federal reserve notes in circulation and, in addition, hold 5 billion 802 million dollars of deposits left in their care by commercial banks belonging to the federal reserve system. Against these vast liabilities the reserve banks hold certain assets, the most important being 7 billion 619 million dollars of gold certificates. These gold certificates are technically warehouse receipts for the gold which the government expropriated from the reserve banks when it took over all monetary gold.

Yesterday's action of the New York reserve bank in demanding 2 billion dollars of the certificates from the treasury suddenly disclosed that up to the present time the reserve banks do not hold in their own vaults even these warehouse receipts for the confiscated gold.

Hold Only Book Credits.

The reserve banks' only physical evidence of the billions of gold which they once held as security for their outstanding paper money and deposits consists of bookkeeping credits made out in their favor in records of the treasury department.

The Chicago reserve bank, it was learned, about three months ago raised the question with the treasury department of the soundness of this method of leaving them with mere bookkeeping entries in place of the gold which once packed their vaults. Attorneys for the Chicago bank took up the matter with Washington authorities but the matter has not yet been definitly settled one way or the other.

The New York reserve bank yesterday, however, ordered the transfer to its own vaults of two billions of the three billion 419 million dollars of gold certificates reposing in treasury vaults in Washington.

May Hold Gold Notes.

Under the law the reserve banks have the privilege of holding gold certificates, series of 1934, although they are not permitted to hold actual gold bullion or coins. These gold certificates are not negotiable, however, and may not be held by any private institution or individual other than the reserve banks.

No hint of the argument between the reserve banks and the treasury was given by officials of the New York reserve bank yesterday. They answered the flood of inquiries which poured in from bankers and newspapers all over the country merely by saying that their withdrawal of two billions of gold certificates was a "bookkeeping" matter.

This gave rise to many rumors. Some bankers are guessing that the move was in some way the result

BUSINESS MAKES 6TH CONSECUTIVE MONTHLY GAIN

December Brings Upturn in Many Lines.

Business in the United States during December increased for the sixth consecutive month and brought to a close a year that witnessed more activity than any of the preceding depression years, the national industrial conference board announced yesterday.

December activity included contra-seasonal rises in construction and steel output, a larger than seasonal increase in bituminous coal production, an all-time peak in power output, and an increase of 59 per cent in department stores sales over November, against 49 per cent ordinarily.

Prices Move Higher.

Wholesale prices rose 0.4 per cent during the month and 4.9 per cent for the entire year, while retail prices gained 0.9 per cent over November and 5.8 per cent over a year ago. Residential building contracts awarded in December were 13.7 per cent more than in November, compared with a usual decrease of 6.8 per cent, and were more than three times as large as in December, 1934.

Industrial production during the last quarter of 1935 was apparently the highest since the second quarter of 1930, the board reported. Increases for major industries during 1935 over 1934 were: residential building, 92 per cent, total construction, 19½; machine tool orders, 86; automobiles, 45; steel ingots, 31; bituminous coal, 3; electric power, 9, and petroleum, 9.

Department store volume of sales in 1935 was 7 per cent larger than in 1934. Total retail sales were 12 per cent more than in 1934 and 28 per cent higher than in 1933, but nearly 10 per cent lower than in 1931.

Chicago Stores' Sales Rise.

Chicago experienced the sharpest increase in department store trade during December of the leading cities in the Seventh federal reserve district, the gain over November amounting to 56 per cent, compared with 52 per cent for the whole district, the Chicago Federal Reserve bank announced yesterday.

The district increase was about seasonal and the rise of 9 per cent of December, 1934, while not as heavy as the similar comparison for November, compared favorably with year-to-year comparisons for other months in 1935.

Wholesale trade in the district was higher than seasonal in two fields—drug and electrical supply trade—and declined more than seasonably in the other two divisions listed by the bank, these being groceries and hardware.

RESERVE BANKS WANT SECURITY FOR GOLD TAKEN

Ask to Hold Notes Instead of Credit by U. S.

Move Starts Other Rumors.

Other rumors held that it foreboded an attempt to export gold to Europe or that it indicated the impending establishment of a "free gold" market in this country. All of these apparently were without foundation. The only apparent motive was a desire by the New York reserve bank to get the strongest type of security possible under existing gold laws.

The withdrawal reversed a trend which had been under way for several months toward reducing the amount of gold certificates outstanding outside the treasury. From August through November, last year, the amount thus outstanding decreased 660 millions. Yesterday's transaction increased the amount of outstanding certificates by two billion 122 million dollars. The certificates withdrawn by the New York bank by denominations were as follows: 19,996 one hundred thousand dollar certificates; 30 ten thousand dollar certificates; 50 at $1,000 and 500 at $100. Express and insurance charges for shipping this paper from Washington to New York will amount to several hundred dollars.

Prefer Notes to Credits.

Possession of gold certificates which cannot, under existing laws, be exchanged for gold still leaves the reserve banks a long way from possession of the actual metal but it is believed to be preferable to mere bookkeeping credits on treasury ledgers.

The 1934 series of gold certificates were a special new type printed when the treasury took over all of the reserve banks' gold. A certificate of this series bears on its face the following: "This is to certify that there is on deposit in the treasury of the United States of America $—— in gold payable to bearer on demand as authorized by law." Certificates of the old 1928 series, which were in general circulation prior to the government's seizure of monetary gold, carried the following: "This certifies that there has been deposited in the treasury of the United States of America $—— in gold coin payable to the bearer on demand.

The important distinction between the two is that the 1934 certificates may be exchanged for gold only "as authorized by law" and present laws bar even the reserve banks from the privilege of turning them in for gold.

DIVISION STATE BANK HAS PLAN FOR LIQUIDATION

Proposes to Pay Off Most of Depositors.

BY HERBERT VEDDER.

A plan for payment in full of 8,000 of the 8,500 depositors of the closed Division State bank and at least half of the claims of the remaining 500 depositors was disclosed last night by William B. Berger, former counsel of the bank. The plan is expected to become effective in 60 days.

Carrying out of the plan will involve immediate payment of $245,000 of the $415,000 liability to creditors remaining after a previous payment of $59,089, or 15 per cent, of depositor claims.

The cash is to be raised in three ways: $160,000 on a loan from the Reconstruction Finance corporation, $80,000 in cash and marketable securities now held by Receiver William L. O'Connell, and $40,000 in new cash provided by stockholders.

Stockholders Waive Deposits.

Stockholders also are waiving their deposits of $70,000, including $38,000 of Emil Jenisch, president of the old bank. Larger non-stockholding depositors are waiving $100,000 of their claims, the waivers in no instance being for more than half of an individual deposit.

The plan, said Berger, has the approval of State Auditor Edward J. Barrett and the RFC. The new cash has been raised and the waivers obtained. Legal details are being worked out with the RFC.

Remaining assets of the bank are to be transferred to a liquidating corporation known as the Division State Mortgage company, which will have three classes of stock. Non-stockholding depositors will receive $100,000 in first preferred stock in consideration of their waivers of like amount.

Status of Different Stocks.

This preferred stock will be subordinated only to the RFC obligation and must be paid off before attorneys or officials of the liquidating group can draw any fees.

An issue of $40,000 in second preferred stock will go to stockholders who subscribed the new cash. Payments toward retirement of this issue cannot begin until the first preferred is retired.

The third stock, $70,000 of common, will be issued to the stockholders for their waiver of deposits.

The plan was worked out to avoid further drain on assets through heavy costs of receivership and stock liability collections. With the costs of receivership eliminated, stockholders believe they will be repaid the $40,000 in new cash put up and the $75,000 of deposits they are waiving, with a possibility of something being left over.

Receivership Costs $131,818.

Receivership costs aggregate $131,818 since the bank closed June 15, 1932. These include $17,460 interest and $17,372 in advances to protect assets which have not been refunded yet, as well as regular expenses of $96,986—$55,595 clerical, $36,161 legal fees, and $5,230 receivers' fees.

The committee in charge of the plan consists of Jenisch, Berger, J. L. Friedman, sanitary district trustee, and Sam Rosen, president of the New York Baking company. The law firm of Berger and Newmark is counsel for the group. The plan was evolved after attempts at reorganization were dropped.

EGGS DROP 1 TO 2 CENTS; BUTTER ALSO CLOSES LOWER

Forecast for warmer weather over the leading egg producing sections started a selling movement on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday. The January delivery of refrigerator standards dropped 2 cents per dozen with the close at 19½ cents. Other futures lost ¼ to ½ cent. January at the lowest showed a decline equal to $420 per car from the high point on Monday. Short covering checked the break.

Better weather conditions and heavy arrivals of New Zealand butter at New York carried futures in that product off ⅛ to ½ cent with January closing at 31¾ cents per pound. Receipts of foreign butter at New York were 2,200,000 pounds, only slightly less than the total reported held in storage at that market.

Sales of butter were 68 cars and eggs 47 cars. Prices:

Two of 20 Closed State Banks Make Further Deposit Refunds

The First State Bank of Steger and the Fullerton State bank made the only further repayments to depositors in the final three months of 1935 from the group of 20 closed banks for which State Auditor Edward J. Barrett issued Dec. 31, 1935, statements of condition yesterday.

The Crawford State Savings bank, which will return another 5 per cent, is the only one of this group expected to make a payment this quarter. Progress was made by the First Englewood State and the First State of Barrington in repaying Reconstruction Finance corporation loans. The Forest Park Trust and Savings may yield a dividend by summer, as also may the Des Plaines State and the Equitable Trust and Savings banks.

Condition of Banks Analyzed.

Below are individual analyses of the 20 banks. These contain best available information on prospects for future payments to depositors as well as progress in liquidation and distribution of receipts to date and during the final quarter of 1935. Figures used apply to entire period of receivership unless stated otherwise.

TWO CLOSED NATIONAL BANKS INDICATE DELAY IN FURTHER REFUNDS

Statement of condition of the closed Inland-Irving National and Jefferson Park National banks as of last Dec. 31 were issued last night by R. C. Sullivan, receiver. No further returns to depositors in the near future are indicated, though Inland-Irving has wiped out its debt to the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

The Inland-Irving has paid $1,819,211, or half of deposit liabilities, but remaining assets of $2,431,264 are estimated to be worth only $294,642 in liquidation. This would indicate less than 10 per cent more can be expected by depositors. Prior claims of $1,075,092 have been paid. Total collections have been $4,252,761, including $1,083,800 from RFC loans. Receipts last quarter were $24,648, compared with $45,347 in the preceding quarter.

The Jefferson Park bank has paid $338,506, or 40 per cent of deposits. Remaining assets on the books at $853,092 are estimated to be worth only $165,544 when able to be sold. This would indicate about 15 per cent more for depositors after paying a $30,000 balance due on an RFC loan, plus expenses and claims not yet settled. Total receipts of $1,825,248 include $519,194 from the RFC. Other prior claims of $834,505 have been paid. Receipts last quarter were $42,907, compared with $77,818 the preceding three months, including $57,000 from the RFC.

DEFENSE HINTED BY OBJECTIONS IN BANK STOCK SUIT

Argue 50 Million Loan Was Illegal.

Arguments to be made by the defense were foreshadowed yesterday as attorneys engaged in a succession of clashes over admission of evidence in the suit of the Reconstruction Finance corporation attempting to collect $10,000,000 from 3,000 Illinois stockholders of the Central Republic Trust company, liquidating shell of the old Central Republic Bank and Trust company.

The legal arguments before Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, who is hearing the case without a jury, were listened to by scarcely a dozen spectators; reflecting the prosaic nature of the proceedings. The chairs reserved for lawyers, however, were all occupied.

Admitted with Reservations.

Judge Wilkerson, in each case, admitted the RFC's exhibits into evidence over defense objections, but carefully qualified the admittances by stating that any conclusions to be drawn fro mthe exhibits will not be binding unless proof is offered later in substantiation of positions taken.

Two points, which the defense indicated it will seek to show, are that the final $50,000,000 advance of the RFC to the bank was illegal and that the RFC has not made proper disposition of funds from sale of collateral.

Near the end of the day's session O. John Rogge, RFC counsel, succeeded in introducing a letter of Sept. 28, 1932, from C. C. Hafner, then executive vice president of the Central Republic bank, to J. B. McDougal, governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago. The letter inclosed a promissory note from the bank to the RFC for $50,000,000 at 5½ per cent interest and dated Oct. 3. It asked that credit to the bank be arranged.

Cites RFC Act Amendment.

S. M. Rinaker of defense counsel immediately objected. He said the letter was not binding on defendants because amendment of the RFC act in July had forbidden loans to banks with officials who had been directors of the RFC within the previous year.

"This," continued Franklin J. Stransky of defense, "represents an attempt to manufacture evidence to produce an appearance of facts not existing and to evade the law. This is an attempt to make the 50 million loan of October part and parcel of the original 90 million commitment of June 27, 1932."

Rogge retorted that if defense wished to repudiate the letter he should call in officers of the bank, and objected to statements that he was seeking to manufacture evidence.

The RFC is seeking to show that the 50 million final loan was just a part of the original commitment, while the defense contends it was actually made in October, when Gen. Charles G. Dawes had returned to the helm of the bank after resigning as chairman of the RFC.

CASUALTY FIRM HAS PROFIT; BIG LOSS YEAR AGO

Maryland Casualty company of Baltimore had an underwriting profit of $195,852 in 1935, the first time since 1928 that the company has shown a profit, Silliman Evans, president, announced yesterday. The operating profit was $1,576,160 before a voluntary reserve of $800,000 was set up for fluctuation in the value of securities. This compares with an operating loss of $10,140,331 in 1934.

The profit for 1935, Evans said, was achieved through an increase of $2,709,827, or 11.7 per cent in gross premiums, an increase of 10.6 per cent in the net premium volume for the year to $23,686,302 from $21,412,819 in 1934, a decrease of $1,320,473, or 11.6 per cent in losses paid during the year and a reduction of 1.8 per cent in the expense ratio.

ATTORNEY TELLS OF INVESTMENTS WITH ROSENBAUM

Testifies at Hearing on $104,000 Claim.

Attorney Benjamin F. Goldstein yesterday took the stand in the court of Federal Judge William H. Holly to tell the story of his business transactions with the Rosenbaum Grain corporation before and after the company filed its petition last April for reorganization under section 77B of the bankruptcy act.

The attorney told of his former close business and personal associations with Emanuel F. Rosenbaum, president of the corporation. He related in detail the various steps by which he turned over $375,000 to Rosenbaum for investment. He had such complete faith in Rosenbaum, Goldstein said, that he "looked upon him as a father."

Tells of Inducement.

The attorney said that he was induced to turn his money over to Rosenbaum for investment after the latter had told him that he would be able to earn 6 per cent on his money and would be able to withdraw his principle "on five minutes' notice."

Goldstein has filed a claim for $104,000 with the trustees of the firm, part of which is being contested.

After he turned over his money, Goldstein testified, he went abroad and left the managing of his account entirely up to Rosenbaum.

To illustrate his faith in Rosenbaum, the attorney said that on one occasion he made him a loan of $25,000 without the formality of a note or an I. O. U. His testimony covered the association up to the time that the corporation got into financial difficulties last April.

Will Resume Today.

He will resume the stand today and is expected to tell of the alterations which were alleged to have been made in his account after the firm was placed in the hands of trustees by the federal court.

At one point in his testimony Goldstein said that Rosenbaum had misrepresented the financial condition of the corporation to him when his legal advice was sought in drawing up reorganization papers.

STORKLINE PLAN IS DELAYED BY INJUNCTION SUIT

Hearing on a petition for an injunction to halt the recapitalization of the Storkline Furniture company was set yesterday by Superior Judge Charles Williams for Feb. 5. The petition was filed on Monday by Attorney Clarence Edelson of behalf of Maurice Tumpeer, William Kabaker, and Laurel Karasik, owners of 250 shares of preferred stock. Judge Williams directed that no further action be taken by officers of the company with respect to putting the recapitalization into effect until after the hearing next week.

The petition, which sets forth the financial history of the Storkline company, accuses Abraham G. Feldman, president, and Mortimer Goldstone, vice president, of a violation of their fiduciary duties as directors in sponsoring the recapitalization program, and sets forth that it is "unfair and tantamount to a fraud upon the preferred stockholders."

Stockholders of the company on Monday approved the recapitalization plan.

COTTON MARKETS DULL; PRICES LOWER AT CLOSE

Trade in cotton was unusually light yesterday and prices held within a range of less than 50 cents per bale. A small upturn early was followed by a recession and the finish was at net losses of 25 cents to 30 cents per bale in Chicago and 5 cents to 35 cents in other markets. Uncertainty about congressional action on acreage control this season continues to restrict speculative operations.

Spot cotton closed 5 points to 10 points lower with New Orleans at 11.65, Houston and Galveston 11.50 cents, and New York 11.80 cents per pound. Prices in cents per pound:

Chicago's December Business Gains Exceptionally Large

One of the sharpest business and industrial gains in Chicago's history occurred just before the close of 1935, according to an analysis made public yesterday by the Chicago Association of Commerce.

A comparison of statistics on the various activities in December with those of the same month in 1934 showed that in only two lines were there recessions. The most impressive gains were in building, real estate transfers, and sales of new automobiles.

The outstanding improvement was in new building contracts, which rose from a total of $567,000 in December, 1934, to $6,642,800 last December. Real estate transfers last month were valued at $14,707,771, compared with $7,934,618 in December, 1934.

The survey disclosed that there was a more than 100 per cent increase in transactions on the Chicago Stock Exchange, the total for the month running to 1,502,000 compared with 701,000 in December, 1934. An increase of more than 100 per cent was also reported in the production of pig iron.

SUGAR PRICE WAR DEVELOPS AT NEW YORK

New York, Jan. 28.—[Special.]—A sugar price war broke out today when eastern refiners reduced prices to meet the schedules of the Sucrest company, subsidiary of the American Molasses company, which is just completing in Brooklyn, the first new sugar refinery built in the United States in ten years.

In that time several of the most important refineries have been closed. In some cases plants have been demolished. Consumers, who have just had the benefit of a price reduction of a half cent a pound, will not immediately feel the effects of the war among the refiners, as most orders at cut prices are for May and June delivery.

U. S. RUBBER CO. IS CONSIDERING REFUNDING PLAN

New York, Jan. 28.—[Special.]—It is likely that the stockholders of the United States Rubber company will be asked to approve a plan to refund the 5 per cent bonds of the company when they hold their annual meeting on April 21.

The company issued $69,000,000 of 5 per cent bonds, but only $51,000,000 are outstanding at present, $16,000,000 having been retired or purchased for redemption and $2,000,000 held in the treasury. The bonds are callable at 105 on any interest date after 90 days' notice.

WHEAT RECEDES; TRADERS AWAIT NEW FARM LAWS

Light Selling Is Enough to Depress Prices.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The price of May wheat, the principal future contract, fell a cent a bushel yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade. When the market closed the contract was quoted at $1.00⅞ a bushel. The decline in the price level, which amounted to less than a cent in futures based on the 1936 crop, could not be traced to definite news developments. While the volume of business in wheat and other grains was small, there was fairly steady selling that weighed the market down.

The outstanding characteristics of the market at present are lack of any substantial volume of business and backwardness of commercial buyers.

Grain Speculators Timid.

Speculators are timid in their operations and commercial operators apparently feel that they have no reason to be stampeded into buying. The result is almost a market stalemate.

The selling that came into the wheat pit yesterday was traced largely to the professional traders who had bought last week on the theory that values would go up on another inflation movement. Such an advance has failed to materialize and the selling is a natural consequence. The price pattern cut by wheat was followed by other grains. Corn prices fell a quarter to a half cent a bushel and most contracts in rye and oats were a trifle lower.

Final prices on the May future contracts, with comparative prices, follow:

	Yesterday.	Monday.	Week ago.
Wheat	$1.00⅞	$1.01⅞	$1.00
Corn	.60⅛	.60⅝	.59⅞
Oats	.28⅝	.28¾	.28⅛
Rye	.57⅛	.56⅞	.54⅞

Fear New Farm Legislation.

It was freely prophesied a few weeks ago that when the fate of the administration's agricultural program had been definitly decided by the Supreme court there would be immediate expansion in commercial and speculative activity in the market. Instead, the volume of trading is now running near record low figures.

Processors of wheat, corn, and other grains, relieved at the disposition of the AAA and the processing taxes, are now worried over what new farm program the administration may seek to enact during the current session of congress. That some type of a scheme will be embraced is believed certain and the limited time in which the administration has to prepare such a program does not add to the assurance of the commercial interests affected.

A Chicago Board of Trade membership was sold yesterday for $6,200 net to the buyer, an increase of $600 over the preceding transfer.

CONSUMERS BALK AT PORK PRICES, HOGS TURN WEAK

Lamb Market Is Higher; Cattle Strong.

Consumer resistance to the higher pork prices resulting from the tieup of livestock receipts by cold and snow last week, broke the wholesale market for pork yesterday and reversed the higher trend of the hog market. Fresh pork loins declined as much as $1 per hundred pounds at most points as sales fell off sharply.

Hog receipts were lighter than the trade had expected, and this encouraged some early hog buying at 10 to 15 cent higher prices, but the gains were quickly erased and additional losses were incurred on sluggish closing rounds. A deadlock developed on about 3,000 hogs that commission men took off the market when large local packers asked reductions of 15 to 20 cents, so that few hogs actually sold more than 5 to 10 cents under the average quotations of Monday.

Small Supply on Way.

Railroads and truck owners reported that transportation facilities were almost normal in most of the middle west livestock country, but up to a late hour in the afternoon only 15,000 hogs were reported en route for today's trade, the smallest Wednesday run in nine weeks, barring holidays.

A few early sales of hogs were made up to $10.35 and $10.40, but later it was difficult to sell the best above $10.25 and some good grades of medium weight butchers were purchased as low as $10.15. The average price for the entire session at $10.10 was steady with Monday.

Lambs Sell Higher.

Lamb buyers "gave in" after sellers had carried 10,000 head until late in the afternoon demanding higher prices, and paid advances of 25 cents for the bulk of the run.

Packers and shippers obtained the bulk at $10.40 to $10.50, while city butchers paid up to $10.60.

Farmers found better action in the cattle trade at steady to slightly higher prices.

Most of the steers were of the class bringing $7.50 to $10.75, the best available averaging 1,080 pounds and selling at $13.15. The trade is carrying a nominal quotation of $15 for highly finished steers.

HIGHER PRICES FOR LARD CAUSED BY SHORT COVERING

Outside interest in lard futures was much improved yesterday and the market closed with net gains of 7½ to 17½ cents.

Buying, according to pit brokers, appeared to be in the way of short covering, while the upturn was checked by selling attributed to cash interests. Clear bellies [salt pork] closed nominally unchanged. Deliveries of lard on January contracts aggregated 50,000 pounds.

Cash lard closed at $11.12½; loose, $10.62½; leaf, $10.25 and clear bellies at $14.75 per 100 pounds. Prices in dollars per 100 pounds:

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—(AP)—COTTONSEED OIL—Bleachable was firm today, closing 5 to 9 points net higher with sales of 140 contracts. The advance was in sympathy with the strength in lard and advance in crude oil which caused scattered local and commission house buying. January contracts expired at noon with sales of 3 contracts and an advance of 70 points. Bleachable spot was nominal; March closed 10.37c per lb; May, 10.41c; July, 10.42c.
